Entry day Thursday for 91st Pennington Co. fair

Wash up the livestock, press the needlework, pick out the canned goods, cut your best flowers, frame the artwork, buy your advance ride tickets, reserve your Friday and Saturday concert seats and be ready to put on your walking shoes. The 91st edition of the Pennington county fair will accept entries on Thursday after preliminary opening activities Wednesday. The fair will continue into Sunday evening.

Open class entries will be accepted beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing until 6 p.m., except for flower exhibits which must be entered by 4:30 p.m. Entries are open to people in Pennington county and other residents of northwestern Minnesota. Judging will begin at 9 a.m. Friday in the Huck Olson Memorial Center and the curling club building as well as in the livestock areas.

Despite the fact that there are five area county fairs this week (in West Polk, Kittson, Lake of the Woods and Marshall counties in addition to Pennington), number of animal entries in Thief River Falls will be up this year. About 120 head of cattle, 60 horses, 40 to 50 sheep and 90 goats are expected, in addition to increases in rabbits and poultry and an unknown number of hogs.

Increase in horse numbers may result in some cattle being housed in the poultry, rabbit, sheep and swine building to make room for horses in the cattle barn.

Pennington county 4-H club members will have conference judging on Thursday beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing until 3:30 p.m. Under conference judging, judges will discuss the entry with the club member and give reasons for the ribbon placing awarded. Grand champions in the 4-H division are asked to meet at the championship booth area at 4 p.m. Thursday to have photos taken for The Times.

This year there will be 155 members of 11 county 4-H clubs entering 459 exhibits at the fair, including 150 animals, according to the Pennington county extension office. This is down slightly from 1991 when 172 exhibitors had 488 exhibits, but only 122 animals were entered.

As the Pennington fair expands into a more inclusive five-day event, a number of activities are planned for Wednesday, July 8. The Murphy Bros. carnival will open at 5 p.m., Minnesota team penning will be held from 5 to 9 p.m. in the horse show arena and Gospel music will be presented from 7 to 10 p.m. in the bandshell.

Beginning Thursday the bandshell will have free entertainment for four full days with shows from 3:30 to 10:30 p.m. Performing this year will be the Martin Family, Franco the Magician, Memories and Revival.

Assisting in financing the free entertainment at the bandshell will be the fair board's raffle of a 1992 Dodge Dakota club cab pickup with V-8 engine, automatic transmission, tilt wheel, cruise control, air conditioning, power locks and windows, AM/FM radio and cassette player, aluminum wheels and more. A limited number of $10 tickets will be sold and the drawing made Sunday at the Jaycees demolition derby. The Pennington County New Car Dealers association is cooperating with the fair board in the fund-raiser.

Two-Concert Package

Again this year the fair board is offering a two-concert package with top entertainment in front of the grandstand Friday and Saturday nights. Mike Reid will be featured Friday, July 10 and Mark Chesnutt Saturday, July 11, both with concerts at 7 and 9 p.m. Purchasers of the $13 ticket will be admitted to the same seat for concerts at the same time both nights.

An outstanding college (he won the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding lineman) and professional football player, Reid was the recipient of ASCAP's songwriter of the year award in 1985 for the Ronnie Milsap hits 'Stranger In My House" and 'Lost In The Fifties,' both of which earned Grammy awards. He has only recently become serious about entertaining on his own, and 'Turning for Home" is his debut album for Columbia Records.

Chesnutt's first single "Too Cold At Home" established him as one of the best of the new breed of hardcore country singers, and his most recent single, "I'll Think Of Something,' ranks high on the charts. He began singing around his home town of Beaumont, TX, at the age of 17 and now at the age of 28 has a decade of experience behind him.

His second album "Longnecks And Short Stories" includes "Old Flames Have New Names, "I'm Not Getting Any Better (At Goodbye)," "Bubba Shot The Jukebox" and "Talkin' To Hank" as well as "I'll Think Of Something."

Team penning new event for county fair

A horse and rider event gaining in popularity around the area has been added to the program at the 91st annual Pennington county fair this year. Team penning will be held Wednesday beginning at 5 p.m. at the horse show arena on the fairgrounds in Thief River Falls.

Teams of three riders participate in the timed event. Twenty-one steers, numbered in groups of three from one through seven, are located at one end of the arena. Riders must separate the three steers of their assigned number from the herd and drive them into a pen on the other end of the arena.

After seven teams have competed a new group of 21 steers will be used for the next series of events.

No more than four steers, including the three with the assigned numbers, may cross the center line of the arena or the team is disqualified. Teams are given a maximum of two minutes to pen their steers and those which accomplish the task in the shortest time win.

Contestants may enter more than once but at least one of the three-member team must be changed for additional entry. Trophy belt buckles and cash will be awarded to the winning team. The event is non-sanctioned and open to all entries.

Sponsoring the event is the Thief River Falls Saddle club with co-sponsorship by St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator feed division and tack shop, QLF, Reichert Saddlery and SR Ranch.

Bleacher seating will be available and admission will be $3 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under.

Petting zoo at fair has many animals

Kiraim Stobles Animal Attractions from Shakopee will have its "Animals of Many Nations" petting zoo at the Pennington county fair Thursday through Sunday.

Six pens of animals and birds will be arranged, nearly all of which allow children and other fair visitors to touch as well as see the animals, according to Dave and Gloria Hennen who operate the zoo.

Two performances a day featuring "Kirbor," the white Arabian liberty horse, will be presented Thursday and Friday and three performances a day on Saturday and Sunday. The horse has performed in Shrine circuses and in many events up and down the East Coast of the U.S., including a featured performance at Belmont Race Track during the running of the Belmont Stakes, the third leg of the famous Triple Crown. Performance times will be posted at the petting zoo. Pony rides will also be offered.

Animals to be shown include three breeds of exotic pigs, a donkey from Italy, African pygmy goats, llama, miniature horses, Scottish Highlander cow, baby goats, four-horned sheep, rabbits and others. Birds include the macaw from South America and cockatoo from Australia.

The petting zoo will be free with a charge made for pony rides.

A horseshoe tournament was one of Goodridga's Fourth of July activities. Danny Johnsrud and Rick Bjerklia won first place, Rodney Bjarklia and Brian Swenson won second place and Shana Vettleson and Al Vattleson won third place in the tournament.

Kari DeLap in TRF pageant

(Following is the second in a series of articles about candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls scholarship pageant to be conducted Saturday, August 1, at the Lincoln high school auditorium.)

Pursuing education for a career in international business and harboring hopes for a family in the future, Kari DeLap believes in setting goals to have something meaningful to work toward. It is a strategy that apparently has worked for her in the past.

Eighteen-year-old Kari is the daughter of Roger and Carol DeLap of Thief River Falls, a 1992 graduate of Lincoln high school and enrolled as a freshman at Concordia college in Moorhead. She is four feet, 11 inches tall, has black hair and brown eyes and her pageant talent number will be a vocal solo.

At Lincoln high school Kari earned an academic letter for having a grade point average of 3.7 or higher and was named to the all-academic team. She was a member of the National Honor Society, Captain's club, Business club and school newspaper staff.

She earned an athletic letter as a member of the Lincoln tennis team and as a hockey cheerleader won an athletic letter, served as captain and co-captain and won most valuable and most spirited awards.

It is music, however, that has been a high point in her life over the years. She has taken piano lessons for eight years (winning a gold cup for superior and excellent ratings in National Federation of Music clubs competition) and private vocal lessons for three years. She also had 10 years of ice skating lessons.

She won the most valuable singer award among the Varsity Singers and earned superior ratings in vocal solo and as a member of the women's choir, concert choir and jazz choir at Lincoln where she was soprano section leader. During the choir's "Evening of Enchantment" dinner she had both solo and ensemble performances.

Kari had a lead role in the musical "42nd Street" for which she had to learn to tap dance. She was also named to the Minnesota All-State Women's choir and sang for the Minnesota Music Educators association winter convention in February at Orchestra Hall in Minneapolis.

Kari has two sisters, Lisa 17 and Lori 16. Her hobbies include singing, dancing, reading, riding bicycle, swimming, watching movies, playing tennis, writing and spending time with family and friends. She is employed by Pizza Hut and previously has worked at mowing lawns, cleaning houses and babysitting.

"I'm very interested in world affairs and how business is a big part of it," she said. "I have taken two years of college Spanish and enjoy learning about different languages and cultures.

"I plan on working in an international corporation in America or abroad. As of now I plan to have a business administration degree with an emphasis in accounting. I believe that businesses are becom-

Citizens committee to review sales tax

When representatives of the Interim Citizens Advisory Committee meets Tuesday night (tonight) representatives will review a list of projects with an estimated cost of $15 million.

During the last State legislative session the legislature adopted a resolution allowing the city to implement an additional sales tax of up to one-half of one per cent, which is subject to a local referendum. That referendum must be conducted during a general election before December 1, 1992.

In the meantime, an interim citizens advisory committee has been formed. The purpose of the committee is to provide guidance to the city in implementing the special legislation, which provides the community with the option to impose the additional sales tax. This group will meet in the basement meeting room of the city auditorium 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 7.

The purpose of the first meeting will be to provide the committee with background on work, which began over two years ago on the local sales tax option and on the benefits the community might receive by implementation of the tax.

The sales tax option developed as a result of increasing demand from the public for economic development, public safety, historical preservation, and development of tourism related projects.

A background sheet provided to participants in the committee explains the interest in a sales tax. "Having witnessed the successes of the Grand Forks 'Growth Fund", with revenues generated by a local one per cent sales tax and which has been implemented by other North Dakota cities similar in size to Thief River Falls, a task force of local citizens began exploring the concept of pursuing the option of special legislation for a local sales tax of up to one per cent. Community-wide surveys conducted in 1988 and again in 1990 indicate that there are a number of perceived community needs which cannot be met with available funding sources. Economic development initiatives finished number one in both surveys. A number of other projects which would improve the community's quality of life, making it a more attractive place for employee and business recruitment and to enhance tourism aspects, were also mentioned prominently in the surveys.

'Largely with private funds, the city has constructed a senior citizens — community center and completed major portions of a Riverwalk project. Private donations are providing funding for a 1992 expansion of the city's golf course from 9 to 18 holes.

"There remains, however, a host of other projects related to economic development-tourism-outdoor recreation-historical preservation for which funding is not available. Among others, they include an outdoor swimming pool, sports arena-convention center-athletic complex

Sharon LaCoursiere

. . . Home Perms—Why?

We are frugal people in my family. We hardly ever have beauty shop permanents but, instead, give one another home perms. I hate home perms.

As long as I can remember I have hated home perms. My mother used to give them to me when I was a little girl and I hated them then.

Back in the "olden days," hairdos were different than they are now. All the magazine models and movie stars wore their hair almost straight, with just a wave or two. Needless to say, there was no such thing as a "frizzie" look.

Well, my hair was straight and fine and wouldn't do anything but just sit limply on my head. I needed something to give it a little "oomph," so I would allow my mother to give me a perm, hoping, I suppose, that it would become wavy and beautiful.

Never, ever, not even once, did my hair become wavy and beautiful.

The pictures on the perm boxes show wavy, beautiful hair. They lie. Does anyone look like the pictures on the box right after they have a perm?

I bet you can guess who went to school looking like a dandelion-puff the day after her perm. I would wake in the morning and take one look in the mirror and cry. My mother would always say something soothing, like, "Here, we'll put this barrette in it and it will be fine. You'll look just like all the other girls."

In would go the barrette, or maybe two or three, and some bobby pins (remember those?) as well, and off I would go to school, looking like the slightest breeze would carry my dandelion puff head and me away. I did not look like all the other girls, either. None of them had hair like mine. I looked like Little Orphan Annie.

As I got older, I gave my mother her home perms. She liked her hair very curly and I would roll it as tightly as I could. She never minded, except to mention now and then that it felt like she was getting a face lift at the same time as the perm.

Come to think of it, it did look like I was trying to pull up all the loose skin on her face. Wasn't it nice of her not to yell at me? Poor thing.

Now my daughters give me my home perms and I can certainly understand what my mother went through. I think I am being paid back for subjecting my mother to tight rollers. Now my own loose skin is getting pulled up into that same face lift every time my daughters give me a perm.

And my hair still looks like a dandelion puff the day after my perm. I don't cry too often now, though.

Not to mention the smell of those home perms. That awful smell permeates every nook and cranny of the house while the perm is being given.

And then that awful smell stays in my hair for weeks after my perm. Every time I wash it, every time it gets rained on, every time I perspire, I can smell that awful smell coming from my hair.

Wouldn't you think that the people who make home perms could have come up with something better in 40 years? Wouldn't you think that I would have learned my lesson in 40 years and be able to spend a little money for a beauty shop perm?

Dear Readers,
Many mature people prefer to select their own funeral director in advance, and to prearrange details of their funeral service. This is both proper and feasible, and the funeral expense fund can be placed in trust with a local financial institution. We can supply further details on prearrangement.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home
Larry Belmont

Citizens committee to review sales tax

improvements, rivers beautification and sedimentation removal, tourist park expansion, and completion of major features of the "Follow the Rivers" project with an estimated price tag of $15 million."

Don Stewart, community development director, and staff representative to the committee, explained that the cost estimates are only estimates. Some of the estimates on project costs are fairly real, but many are just guesses. At this time, all of the projects are being considered even though some may not even be offered in the final analysis. At this time, there are also no priority to the list of projects.

The following is a list of the projects and project descriptions provided committee members:

- Economic Development "Growth Fund". The sales tax would provide additional money to the community development revolving loan fund for business retention and expansion and job creation increasing total assets of a revolving loan fund to $2 million by the year 2000 and provide $40,000 per year for 10 years. This project is estimated at $400,000.
- Outdoor swimming pool. The sales tax would provide money for a recreational pool with a "water-park" atmosphere. The cost of the project has been estimated at $1.15 million.
- Franklin indoor pool addition. Sales tax revenue would help provide for expansion and improvements to the indoor pool, such as a shallow water training and recreational area and other improvements.
- Rivers management and beautification. The sales tax revenue could help development and implement a management plan, which is currently being developed by the Red Lake Watershed district. The plan, which could cost $1.5 million, would address sedimentation and weed problems, riverbank restoration, and provide water-related tourism attractions.
- Soo Line depot acquisition and preservation. Sales tax revenue could help in the acquisition and renovation of the depot for public and or private use, relocate the steam engine and provide on-site parking. The total project cost estimate is $400,000.
- Follow the Rivers project. Sales tax revenue could help in paying for the construction of a pedestrian bridge, construction of a focal feature such as a fountain or sculpture, and, development of native American historical facilities on the Northland Community College site. The conceptual cost estimate is $400,000.
- Tourist and R.V. park expansion. Sales tax revenue could help in the acquisition of property and improvements which would provide additional tourist recreational vehicle and camping facilities. A conceptual cost estimate was placed at $250,000.
- Youth activities center. Sales tax revenue could help in providing the funds to remodel and/or expand the existing building and provide furnishings and equipment for a youth activities center. A conceptual cost estimate was placed at $100,000.
- Huck Olson Civic Center Renovations. Sales revenue could help pay for the estimated $400,000 cost of replacing the concrete floor and piping; help pay for the estimated $438,000 acoustical treatment and roof insulation; help pay for the estimated $247,000 cost to insulate the building was and complete exterior finish and replace the floor.
- Huck Olson Civic Center Improvements. The sales tax could help pay for an estimated $822,000 building addition that would include locker and team rooms, a Zamboni room, ground level public restrooms. It could also help pay an estimated $1.82 million for an expanded lobby, ground level concession area, office space, meeting rooms, elevators and fire sprinkling system. The sales tax could also help pay for an estimated $948,000 cost of an athletic field for football and track, tennis courts, new parking ints and facilities lighting at the civic center.
- Additional eligible project costs. The special legislation prepared for the city of Ely and Thief River Falls indicates that authorized expenses could include securing or paying debt service on bonds, the expense of operating facilities and operations to promote and develop the project. It was decided to include an additional $5 million to cover these costs and the total amount requested was rounded off to $15 million.

Give Local Retailers The "First Shot"

Following column entitled the "Rutherford Report" was written by Gary Rutherford.

The other day I was talking to a small town retailer. He told about a woman in his community who had come to his store wearing a new pair of shoes. As she was browsing he overheard her say, "Gosh, I could have bought these shoes right here and saved money besides."

I could see he was hurt. He asked, "Gary, aren't neighbors supposed to help each other? I'm fighting for my financial life in this community. She could have helped me by buying in this store and I could have saved her money."

I see this everywhere. Community retailers are not given first shot at new purchases. People exhaust their shopping list in the city mall without thinking that the items could be bought at home. And, in this case, the shoes were actually priced lower there than in the city. Yet, when local stores close, few connect their buying habits to the closure.

By giving your local retailers first shot, you give them the purchasing clout that they need to provide lower priced goods and services. And you reinforce a retailer's faith in the community. But how many people in rural communities have consciously decided to give local retailers first shot at all of their purchases? Put yourself in the retailer's place: would you put much inventory in stock if you saw the majority of items in town coming from the mall?

The retailer remarked, "You know, Gary, it hurts all the retailers to know we hold no priority. Basically, the whole town has turned into a big Seven-Eleven. We are the last choice and only used for the small purchases that are urgent."

Most of you are familiar with a mass merchandising term called "loss leader." That's an item or two priced very low to bring the consumer into the store, even at a loss if necessary. The consumer comes to buy "just that one item," but rarely ends up with just that. It's located way in the back of the store, and by the time he or she finds it, the cart is filled with many other non-bargain items. However, many of those can be purchased at an equal or lower price in your own community. So while the "loss leader" strategy works for the mass merchandiser, the cart is filled with the life blood of your community's retail future.

I know this is a tough discussion. I find myself driving across town to buy gas at $1.02 instead of $1.04. On ten gallons I save 20 cents—but I spend 50 cents more in gas getting there! The concept of saving seems very enticing. But it turns out to be a false saving. Furthermore, even if there are real savings, the reality of the death of a small town's retail sector cancels that out. If you only want to buy the lowest priced product, there isn't any question that you can find it in the Sam's Clubs and Wal-Marts of the bigger cities. But then the profits will continue being shipped to Arkansas and your retailers will continue to close up, never to start again.

And when you get down to the bottom line, your savings may not be as great as you think. Final cost is the actual price we pay when everything is figured into the equation.

To be fair, you have to figure in at least 25 cents per mile for gas and wear and tear on your vehicles, at least $5 per hour for the extra time spent traveling, and generally there is a sandwich or a treat that we would have skipped. Add that to the loss we personally suffer from a decline in the value of our property as our main street declines and I think the math is no longer so gracious. There actually is a tremendous difference between the first and the final cost which we ultimately will pay for an item in the city.

On the other hand, I don't believe your loyalty should be to a local retailer who refuses to try and compete. If service is poor, if stocks are old and depleted, if the last paint job was in 1960, then buy in the city. Retailers who refuse to compete need to be replaced.

But where retailers are trying, before you decide to make a purchase outside of your community, really weigh the cost—the total cost vs. the first price. If you get close with a local retailer's price, give him or her your business. By giving them your first shot, and your commitment to the long term, local retailers will have a reason to improve. They will have a restored faith in their future and for the community as a whole.

Sharing Waseca's Pain

"Sad as this summer is for Waseca, the campus' closing is right for the university and the state of Minnesota," states an editorial entitled "Waseca's pain should be shared" in the July 1 issue of the Star Tribune published in Minneapolis.

"Minnesota taxpayers pay for too much brick-and-mortar in the name of higher education," the editorial continued. "As tight times have descended on all government enterprises, the need to dispense with some classrooms, labs and campus greens has become very apparent.

"The university's regents saw that need, and acted. Their vision and courage should by now have inspired similar moves toward consolidation, combination and closure in one or more of the state's other three higher-educational systems. Instead, they've chosen to use their pending bureaucratic merger, to be completed in 1995, as an excuse to avoid the obvious.

"....One lament reported by the Chronicle (of Higher Education) deserves to be taken to heart by the state's education policymakers. C. Eugene Allen, a university vice president, said, 'If you close one campus and you need to close more, you'd better close them all at the same time. Let the pain in the state be shared.' Indeed. An overbuilt higher education system is not just Waseca's problem."

There may be some truth to the Star Tribune's editorial contention, but the problem seems to be the tendency always to look outside the metro area to effect economy. The three higher education systems referred to in the Star Tribune editorial as being involved in a 1995 merger are the state university system, the community college system and the technical college system. We look for very little if anything in the way of economy to come out of that legislatively manipulated menage a trois, but it is worth noting that the vast majority of the facilities involved in that merger are in non-metro Minnesota. Apparently this is where the Star Tribune writer feels educational facilities are expendable.

If there is need to "dispense with some classrooms, labs and campus greens" as the writer states, let that activity begin where there is a proliferation of public and private higher education facilities—the Twin Cities metropolitan area. If pain is to be shared, Waseca and other communities around the state would be most willing to share with their big city brethren.

"SORRY SON, BUT A SEVEN DAY WAITING PERIOD IS REQUIRED TO BUY A 'SUPER SOAKER'..."

Beth Johnson

This past weekend I heard Irving Berlin's song "God Bless America" sung. As always I was moved by the words in the song. If you haven't read the words recently, look them up. They are worth your trouble.

The song caused me to think once again about this great country of ours. It caused me to consider the pride I feel in being able to call myself an American. It also troubled me.

Remember as a child when you were told to say your bedtime prayers? If your prayers were typical childlike prayers, you said something like this: "God bless Mommy and Daddy. God bless my brother and sister. God bless all the people. Amen."

How simple those early prayers were, yet how full of faith they also were, because as a child, we just plain expected God to bless all for which we were praying.

Irving Berlin's song reminds me of those early prayers. "God Bless...America." What troubles me is when did we stop praying this prayer? When did our faith in the blessings of God cease?

Maybe my answer is in the second phrase of his song which tells of the land that we love. Do we truly love this land? We can probably all say that we would not want to live anywhere else. We would probably all say that this country treats us better than most nations treat their peoples. But, do we love this land?

If we loved this land, we would all be concerned for the environment of our nation. We would all be conserving and reusing and make-doing and remaking. If we loved this land we would all be preserving as much of it as we possibly could for the use of future generations. If we loved this land we would be careful with it. We would be cherishing it daily.

We ask God to stand beside and guide our nation. Yet, when did we lose the faith that our nation's guidance and wisdom was from a higher Source?

As we sing of the beautiful land, do we see only the environment of our nation—oceans, mountains, plains, and every natural environment in between? Or, do we also see the people that live in and near the different environments? Have we forgotten the people of our land? Do we ignore each other? Do we look out for only ourselves and our best interests? How can we expect God to bless our land if we forget one another?

Remember the days when faith and patriotism went hand in hand? Those are days that we should have cherished for the next generation. The pride we had in America, in our faith, in our families, has been dealt a dose of reality. Pride tarnishes when it is not cherished. Yet how can we cherish abuse and neglect and ill treatment of others? How can we cherish lack of hope and lack of trust? The reality of the suffering in our nation's peoples causes us to forget the pride we have in being Americans.

It is interesting to look back on the past, and then look at the present and in the looking, see the similarities. Today, we are being admonished to start protecting our environment. Today we are beginning to see the value once again of family life. Today we are beginning to see that faith does matter.

God bless American, does not have to be only wishful thinking. As we pray for guidance, we must also listen for wisdom. In the listening we gain the ability to cherish one another and our great nation.

We are daily being blessed in our nation. Let's remember the Source of these blessings and in the remembering, give thanks.

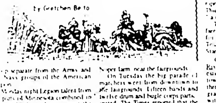
PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Beito



"Legionally speaking, all roads now point to Thief River Falls."

This was the lead in an editorial in the American Legionnaire of Thursday, August 6, 1925. It described the coming of the 7th annual convention of the Minnesota Department of American Legion to Thief River Falls.

"Convention trains from all parts of the state will resound with gayety of the travelers. By Sunday night the flag bedecked streets of Thief River Falls will be filled with the vanguard of Legion hosts. At least 5,000 will be there by Monday."

In 1925 special trains on the Soo Line and Great Northern traveled from the Twin Cities and northern Minnesota, convention bound to Thief River.

Railroad companies left their special trains on sidetracks in the city in order that they be used as sleeping quarters during the three days. They also operated their dining cars. The city of Thief River Falls provided ample lighting in the railroad yards.

The Soo Line advertised that on the "official and shortest route special trains will leave St. Paul on Sunday, August 9 to accommodate delegates and their friends from the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th and 7th districts". These trains left St. Paul and 10 p.m., Minneapolis at 10:40 p.m. and arrived in Thief River Falls at 7 a.m. the next day.

Other housing preparations were taken care of by the aid of residents who threw open their homes for the overflow crowds that could not be taken care of by hotels and the trains. Mrs. A.W. Swedenburg, head of the housing committee, announced rates for rooms at $1.25 a day with meals from 35 to 50 cents each.

Many automobile parties pitched camp at the Convention City, selecting their sites well in advance of the general invasion.

"Delegates will be putting the finishing touches on 'Tin Liz' with the grease gun in preparation for the annual gathering," the Legionnaire reported.

The town elaborated a decoration scheme for lamp posts of flowers and flags with myraids of clusters of electric lights to set the design off at night. American Legionnaire reported, "Even the annual alfalfa shows of Pennington County have not brought forth the ideas of decoration that have been set up to welcome the Legion and Auxiliary."

Official convention badges proclaimed, "Home of Alfalfa."

The Commander of the Minnesota Department, Edwin A. Lindel, arrived by airplane.

The speeches were many. Stafford King said, "The Legion, organized as it is in honor of the dead through service to the living, believes that the man who died for his country died for his friend."

Mrs. J. M. Bishop of Thief River Falls, who was in charge of convention arrangements for the Auxiliary said, "The blood of the World War is represented by the American Legion, while the Auxiliary represents the tears."

One item of business at the convention was a vote to keep the Air [illegible] group separate from the Army and the Navy groups of the American Legion.

Monday night Legion talent from all parts of Minnesota combined in a Stunt Night performance at the Auditorium. Twenty acts filled the [illegible] that was free to all.

Earlier Monday evening four Curtiss type planes from the Minneapolis 109th Squadron offered their thrills by performing loop the loop and other gyrations above the streets. The Air Derby ended with a "battle in the clouds" that provided a fireworks spectacle for the early dusk. The planes landed on the Soper farm near the fairgrounds.

On Tuesday the big parade of marchers went from downtown to the fairgrounds. Fifteen bands and twelve drum and bugle corps participated. The Times reported that the corps provided "brilliant uniforms and snappy, throbbing rhythm."

On Wednesday the visitors traveled to Winnipeg. "With kindly feeling toward Thief River Falls for cordial hospitality, 1,500 boarded four special trains. Hundreds of Thief River Falls citizens were at the Stations to bid visitors farewell."

The trains departed Thief River Falls at 2 p.m. and arrived in Winnipeg at 6 p.m. where the Board of Trade provided a dinner for 2,000 Legionnaires [illegible] overnight [illegible] cars and the next day replicated the parade, then went shopping and sight seeing in Winnipeg. They left Winnipeg at 6 p.m. Thursday arriving in Minneapolis at 7 a.m. Friday.

The total cost, including railroad fare with sleeping accommodations for five nights was $21.57 for a Tourist Sleeper and $28.65 for a Standard Sleeper.

On August 13, 1925 the Thief River Falls Times reported that they estimated that the population of the town increased by 10,000 for the three days. "The Convention was a grand success. The cordial spirit with which Thief River Falls greeted convention guests was an outstanding phase of the event."

The Times concluded, "Although there was much hilarity and fun-making, the greater part of the convention was business, particularly welfare activities among veterans and families."

Note: Thank you to Mayor Bob Reeve for providing a reprint of the 1925 Legionnaire.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF CRAIG BERNDT

You bid no one last farewell
Or never, said goodbye
You were gone before we knew it.
And only God knows why
We miss your smiling face
A million times we needed you
A million times we cried
If love alone could of saved you,
You never would have died
In life we loved you dearly
In death we love you still
In our hearts you hold a place,
No one could ever fill
It broke our hearts to lose you
But you didn't go alone,
For a part of us went with you
The day God took you home

Sadly Missed, With Love,
Mom & Dad,
Sisters Jamie & Angie,

Melo Lutheran church northeast of Angus will observe its 100th anniversary with events Saturday and Sunday, July 11 and 12. A communion service Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and centennial program Sunday at 2:30 p.m. will be among the main events.

Melo church to note centennial

Located five miles east and two miles north of Angus, Melo Lutheran church will observe the 100th anniversary of its founding Saturday and Sunday, July 11 and 12. Area residents and former members are invited to participate in events planned for both days.

Opening event will be an informal gathering at 3 p.m. Saturday with coffee, lemonade and cookies being served. A potluck meal will be served at 6 p.m., followed by a communion worship service at 7:30 p.m., led by Rev. Richard Luedtke, pastor of the congregation.

Opening event Sunday will be a catered meal at noon, for which reserved seating has already been sold. A hymn sing at 2 p.m. will be followed by a special Centennial service at 2:30 p.m., at which several former pastors and interns have indicated they will participate.

Melo church history dates back to March 17, 1892, when a group of people led by Rev. Beravend Anderson, who occasionally visited the community to preach, met at the John Gabrielson home to organize a congregation.

The constitution was written by Lars Chelson and adopted at the meeting. Since most of the settlers in the area were from Melo, Helgeland, Norway, they voted to call the congregation Melo. Services were held in the homes and membership was about 40 people. At the first annual meeting Dec. 19, 1892, the decision was made to organize a Sunday school.

Rev. Skunes became pastor in 1895 and it was during this time that Melo church joined with the Warren parish which included Our Savior's Lutheran church.

In 1895 the congregation also decided to build a church building. An acre of land in Section 5 of Brandt township was purchased because it was centrally located among the membership and construction began June 24, 1896.

It wasn't until 1898 that the walls and ceiling were closed up and iron rods were installed to pull the spreading walls together. These rods are still in place in the church today.

Many additions and improvements have been made to the building over the years to help modernize it. Presently there are 104 baptized and 74 confirmed members with Rev. Richard Luedtke as pastor. Organists are Mrs. Wayne Hamrick and Mrs. Don Votava and Mylo Carlson is president of the congregation.

Albert Chruszch serves as general chairman of the centennial steering committee which has a number of subcommittees. They include the following with the first person listed chairing the subcommittee:

Arrangements—Blake Owens, Donne Gallegber, Randy Owens, Darlene Novacek, John Pearson, Kevin and Sandi Kalt and Marilyn Chruszch;

Program—Mylo Carlson, Duane and Marie Fillipi, Wayne and Char Strickler, Linde Hamrick, John Johnson and Michael Carlson;

History—Marlene Carlson, Dorothy Hamrick, Ralph Hamrick, Alice Pederson, Mary Chruszch, Pearl Johnson, Rhonda Owens and Margaret Carlson;

Public Relations—Lowell Hamrick, Shirley Hamrick, George and Marie Owens, Florence Owens, Luverne and Marlene Owens, Robert Hamrick, Donnie Hamrick, Gary and Brad Owens, Lawrence and Sandra Solvik; Building—Warren Hamrick, Jim and Karen Pearson, Kevin and Lori Hamrick, Wayne and Steve Hamrick, Larry and Faith Rud and Joel Flaten.

Souvenirs of the centennial will be available at the event and will include caps, cups, note cards, cookbooks and history books.

"As we at Melo come to this milestone of our church, we thank those of past years and those who are now active for 'A Century in His Hands,'" says a statement issued by the centennial committee. "We wish God's blessing to all who will come and join in our celebrating this 100th birthday of Melo church. Everyone is welcome."

One injured at R. L. Falls

One man was injured Thursday in a one vehicle accident near Red Lake Falls.

According to a spokesperson for the Minnesota state patrol an accident occurred at about 4 p.m. Thursday, July 2, when a pickup driven by Ronald Chay, 51, of Beausejour, Manitoba, went off the road and struck a tree.

The pickup was southbound on Highway 32 in Red Lake Falls when it swerved to avoid another pickup turning left. The pickup was considered a total loss, but the trailer it was hauling had no damage. Chay was treated at Northwest Medical center and released.

Prison escapee caught Thurs.

Red Lake County sheriff's deputies captured a prison escapee from Washington state Thursday.

According to a Red Lake county sheriff's deputy, David Ray Simanovski, 22, was arrested at 8:40 p.m. July 2. Simanovski, convicted of burglary, had escaped from a Washington state correction facility in mid June. Red Lake sheriff's department received information that Simanovski might be in the area.

Officers observed Simanovski going into a residence in Red Lake Falls. It then took Red Lake county sheriff's deputies about 45 minutes to talk Simanovski out of the house. He was arrested without incident.

Simanovski is being held at the Northwest Regional Correction Center in Crookston.

Local man arrested

A local man was arrested in connection with a shooting incident in Smiley township early Thursday morning.

According to a Pennington county sheriff's department spokesperson, a car with five men in it drove into the yard of a Smiley township residence at about 2 a.m. Thursday morning. Darrel Roy Flatten, 23, Thief River Falls, came out of the house with a rifle pointed at people in the car. Flatten's brother then got out of the car and lifted the gun into the air and it discharged four times. Nobody was injured.

Flatten has been charged with second degree assault. He allegedly said he was just trying to scare the people in the car. He appeared in a Ninth District court Thursday and was released on his own personal recognizance.

Beich faces sentencing

Steven Mark Beich of Thief River Falls has plead guilty to a charge of third degree possession of a controlled substance in a Ninth District court in Kittson county.

Beich was arrested in Kittson county on December 2. At the time, packets of cocaine valued at about $3,000 and over $600 in cash were seized by Kittson county deputies. He was originally charged with possession of a controlled substance in the first degree.

Beich has entered a plea of guilty to possession of a controlled substance in the third degree. Sentencing was set for July 20 in Thief River Falls.

Shortly after his arrest in Kittson county, Pennington county authorities charged Beich with possession of a controlled substance in the fifth degree. Those charges resulted from a search. Beich has since entered a plea of guilty to two counts of possession of a controlled substance in the fifth degree.

Sentencing on the charges in Pennington county also have been set for July 20.

She also serves on the Nutrition Site Council and puts in many hours of volunteer work at the Heritage Community Center.

One injured in accident Monday night

One man was injured in an accident Monday night near Thief River Falls.

Minnesota state patrol received a report of an accident at 10:50 p.m. Monday night two and one half miles south of Thief River Falls on Highway 59.

According to the accident report, Shirley Fortemann, 39, Red Lake Falls, was driving a 1981 Chevrolet four door north on Highway 59, when a 1974 Honda driven by Billey Perez, Thief River Falls, age 19, attempted to pass her on the shoulder of the road. The vehicles locked up and both went into the ditch. Fortemann was able to maintain control of her vehicle. The Perez vehicle, however, rolled a number of times. Ray Perez, 17, a passenger in the Perez vehicle was taken to Northwest Medical center with head and neck injuries. He was later transferred to United Hospital in Grand Forks. Billy Perez was treated and released at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

Rodney Nissen withdraws plea

Rodney Melvin Nissen, St. Hilaire, withdrew his plea from an earlier lawsuit in which he was convicted of terroristic threats, but changed his mind when he appeared in court on Monday and entered a plea of guilty.

Minnesota court of appeals had remanded Nissen's case back to district court and ordered that Nissen be allowed to withdraw his earlier plea, which led to his conviction, or change his sentence from 44 months in prison to 36 months. Nissen's earlier conviction was obtained after a plea agreement in November of 1991.

Nissen was serving out his 44 month sentence in a correctional facility in Lino Lakes when the case was remanded to district court in Pennington county. He was recently transferred back to Pennington county. He appeared in a Ninth district court on Thursday and withdrew his earlier plea and requested a jury trial. Bond was set at $20,000.

On Monday, Nissen appeared in court and pled guilty to terroristic threats. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered. He will be sentenced in a week to 10 days.

Marshall County sheriff's department received a report of a fatal accident five miles west of Warren on Highway 1 on Thursday, July 2, at 3:55 p.m. According to the accident report, a tandem-axle grain truck driven by Scott Loeslie, Warren, was traveling east on Highway 1 when a car collided with the rear of the truck.

Edmond J. LaFreniere, 64, Grand Forks, was killed in the accident. Two passengers, Heather LaFreniere, 13, and Russell LaFreniere, 12, were injured. Heather and Russell were taken to Warren Hospital. Heather was later taken to a hospital in Fargo. The car was considered a total loss.

One injured, two trucks totaled in Friday mishap

Two pickups were considered total losses following a collision at 11 a.m. Friday, July 3 in Red Lake Falls.

According to a Minnesota state patrol spokesperson in Thief River Falls, a 1987 Ford pickup driven by David Cordes, 33, of Alexandria was traveling west on Eighth Street in Red Lake Falls, when it collided with a 1984 Mazda pickup driven by Deann Armstrong, 21, of Red Lake Falls, which was traveling on Falls Avenue. The vehicles collided in the intersection.

Armstrong was brought to Riverview Hospital in Crookston and was transferred to United Hospital in Grand Forks. A nursing supervisor for Riverview Hospital in Crookston said Armstrong was in fairly stable condition.

Matt LeMoine attends Forkhorn Deer Camp

Matt LeMoine of Thief River Falls attended the second of five Forkhorn Camps, June 21-27, at Deep Portage Conservation Reserve near Hackensack. He was sponsored by the Thief River Falls Chapter of the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association.

Matt LeMoine

While participating in the week-long camp, LeMoine and his fellow students studied environmental concepts in relationship to the whitetail deer. Special emphases were placed on wildlife management, deer habitat, and population dynamics. Skills were also introduced in the areas of map and compass, canoeing, safety, first aid, woodcraft, and survival.

The students tested their newly acquired skills during a canoeing overnight, a survival camp, and the Forkhorn Woodcraft Olympics. In addition, each student practiced marksmanship and range safety. All were given an opportunity to practice with a .22 caliber rifle, .30-30 rifle, and .50 caliber black powder rifle. At the end of the week, a firing range competition was held.

Each student who completes the Forkhorn Camp this summer can return to Deep Portage next summer for the Advanced Forkhorn Camp. In addition to more in-depth study in the above areas, emphasis during that camp is on archery. All Forkhorn Camps are sponsored by the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association.

Deep Portage is a 6,107-acre resident environmental learning center. During the school year thousands of youngsters from throughout Minnesota, Iowa, and North Dakota experience three-day adventures of environmental awareness activities taught by Deep Portage faculty.

For additional information, contact Deep Portage, Route 1, Box 129, Hackensack, MN 56452; telephone 682-2325.

Agassiz Refuge/FWS check presentation is made to Marshall Co.

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge manager Joseph Kotok recently delivered a revenue sharing payment of $41,006 to the Marshall County treasurer as part of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service annual revenue-sharing program for loss of tax revenue on lands occupied by the refuge.

The funds may be used for any government purpose.

The program is authorized by the Refuge Revenue-Sharing Act of 1964, as amended in 1978. The original act provided for payments only on lands within the national wildlife refuge system. The 1978 amendment provided that payments be made on all lands administered by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service – national wildlife refuges, national fish hatcheries, waterfowl production areas, and administered sites.

Check presented to Marshall County officials is for the 61,449 acre Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge located in eastern Marshall County. It is 89.50 percent of the full entitled amount due to the county for Fiscal Year 1990, which is 4 percent less than what was paid in Fiscal Year 1990, and represents the maximum payment allowable due to budgeting constraints.

Despite the sputtering economy, boating gained more than 100,000 new enthusiasts in 1991, according to boat manufacturing officials. This nearly matches the increase from the previous year, making boating one of the top leisure activities among Americans.

Some 73,480,000 boating enthusiasts took to the waterways in 1991.

Michigan leads the way with the most number of registered boats (848,584), followed by California (792,930), Minnesota (714,802), Florida (681,240), Texas (606,942), and Wisconsin (497,080).

Barnd at conference

Northland Community College physical education instructor and coach Sue Barnd was one of 100 participants selected to take part in a National Association for Girls and Women in Sport leadership conference recently in Leesburg, VA.

Funded in part with a grant from the United States Olympic committee, the purpose of the conference was to help reverse the decline of women in sport leadership positions.

Links to Leadership was designed to help women to reach their leadership potential and learn hands-on strategies to infuse more women into coaching positions, athletic directorships and officiating positions within education institutions and the Olympic movement.

The conference was held in commemoration of the 20th anniversary of Title IX legislation.

"Twenty years ago when Title IX was passed, more than 90 percent of women's teams were coached by females," pointed out Barnd in a release from the national group. "Today, only 48.3 percent of the coaches of women's teams are females. For the future of girls' and women's sport we must not allow this to continue."

Barnd serves as head coach of the Pioneers' women's basketball and softball teams.

Star/North winners

Official results recently distributed by organizers of the 1992 Minnesota Star of the North State Games held June 26-28 in Moorhead showed two Thief River Falls girls with Gold Medal-winning performances.

In fact, Theresa Giauque had five first place finishes in the female ages 13-14 swimming portion of the competition. She won the 50, 100 and 200 freestyle, 100 butterfly, and 200 individual medley races, while adding a second place in the 100 I.M. and a third in the 100 breaststroke.

Leah Helgenset, meanwhile, was a first place finisher in the 3,000 meters in the track and field youth age group.

Nearly 6,000 athletes representing more than 300 communities in Minnesota and Cass County of North Dakota participated in 26 different sporting events during the Star of the North State Games.

New multi-zone buck license offered

Department of Natural Resources announced that applications are now available for a new multi-zone buck license for the 1992 deer hunting season.

The multi-zone buck license allows firearms deer hunters to hunt for bucks only in more than one deer firearm hunting zone. Up to approximately 20,000 of the $45 licenses are available for Minnesota residents only.

Applications for a first-come, first-serve drawing can be picked up at any DNR wildlife office, license vendor, county auditor, or the DNR License Bureau in St. Paul. Applications must be post marked or hand delivered to the License Bureau no earlier than July 13 and no later than July 31. Applications post marked or delivered before or after these dates will not be accepted.

Hunters will be allowed to apply in groups of up to four individuals, and must submit the license fee with their application. Hunters successful in the drawing will be sent their multi-buck license by Aug. 17. Unsuccessful applicants will have their checks returned to them by Aug. 17 so they can purchase a regular firearms license and submit an antlerless permit application before the Sept. 10 deadline.

Hunters who purchase a multi-zone buck license are not eligible for the antlerless permit drawing, or other special hunts. Preference earned in previous antlerless permit drawings, however, is unaffected by the purchase of a multi-zone buck license. If a hunter chooses to reenter the antlerless permit drawing next year, the preference they earned previously will be used in the subsequent drawing.

A multi-zone buck license allows a person to hunt during any open time and zone option during the November firearms deer season, except the late Zone 3B season in southeastern Minnesota and the late muzzleloader season. Open zones include Zone 1A (Nov. 7-22), Zone 2A (Nov. 7-15), Zone 3A (Nov. 7-15), Zone 4A Nov. 7-8, and Zone 4B (Nov. 14-17). The license will be valid only for legal bucks, but license holders will be able to hunt as a party with regular firearms hunters.

DNR Section of Wildlife Chief Tim Bremicker explained that the number of licenses had to be limited to ensure that there would be no significant shifts in hunting pressure as a result of this license. "The multi-zone buck license is a very attractive option for deer hunters to extend their hunting opportunities, and we are concerned that if interest is too high we may adversely affect people's experiences."

Bremicker also noted that the drawing process for the license will give everyone an equal chance of obtaining the license. "All applications post-marked on the same day, whether you live outstate or to the metro, will be treated equally for the drawing," he said.

Ruffed grouse numbers follow cycle

[illegible] drumming counts [illegible] the ruffed [illegible] indicate the birds [illegible] Minnesota may be down [illegible] from 1991, according [illegible] Department of Natural Resources.

[illegible] drumming males [illegible] central and southeast Minnesota reported a rangewide [illegible] of 33 percent from last year. The biggest decrease, 41 percent, was in the north central part of Minnesota. In the northwest range, drumming counts were the [illegible] year.

[illegible] decrease is seen by DNR officials as part of a natural 10 year population cycle, which peaked in 1989. The population is expected to follow patterns recorded over the past 50 years, which indicate a decline throughout the early 1990s.

Such a sharp drop in drumming this year was unexpected, however. DNR wildlife researchers suspect a variety of causes contributed to the decrease in grouse numbers: poor nesting success and brood survival in the summer of 1991, [illegible] the molting [illegible] that developed [illegible] and numerous [illegible] that [illegible] in northern Minnesota.

Bill Berg, a DNR wildlife [illegible] at Grand Rapids, says [illegible] though the size of [illegible] took [illegible] a bit by surprise [illegible] ruffed grouse to [illegible] down. "Simply put it was time," he said.

Sharp-tailed grouse numbers also dropped substantially for the first time since 1987. Counts of males at traditional spring mating grounds were down an average of 31 percent in the primary range of east-central and northeast Minnesota.

That both grouse species declined an identical amount in their overlapping ranges points to the factors listed above as being the cause of decline for sharptails, too, Berg noted.

The 1992-93 federal duck stamp, the nation's oldest conservation stamp, made its debut for sale during special celebrations in Washington, D.C., and in Jackson, NJ, June 30 and July 1.

The 1992-93 federal duck stamp features spectacled eiders in flight with snow-capped Alaska mountains in the background. Joe Hautman, the designer, was on hand for the celebrations in Washington and his hometown of Jackson, NJ.

All waterfowl hunters 16 years of age or older are required to carry a current, signed federal duck stamp. The stamp is also popular with non-hunters simply wanting to make a contribution to conservation. In addition, an increasing number of stamp collectors are adding duck stamps to their collections.

INSURANCE Update

by Carol Nelson

Careful comparisons are needed when shopping for services as well as products. Insurance is a service that provides important protection for you and your family. Comparative shopping is important, but price alone is not always in your best interest. You want a product or service that will perform when you need it. When you comparison shop, make sure the levels of coverage are exactly the same as other policies you are considering. Make a side-by-side comparison to check if the amounts are identical. It's also important to check on the history of the company. How long has it been in business? Is it licensed to operate in Minnesota? Will you have easy access to your agent if you have questions?

NORTHERN STATE AGENCY will assist you in selecting the best coverage for your particular needs. Stop in and talk to our staff members to find out what coverage you have and what coverage you should have to protect your way of life. The office of NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is conveniently located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are from 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri., 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

NOTICE OF HEARING
BOARD OF ZONING APPEALS
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Jack and Carol Haymond, 405 Riverside Avenue, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, have applied for a Variance to the Zoning Regulations governing Interior Side Yard Setbacks for accessory buildings (garage). The property is legally described as Lots 3 & 4 in Block Twelve of Poner's Addition to the City of Thief River Falls.

Granting of the Variance Request would allow the petitioners to construct a 24' X 28' garage on the above described property. The proposed garage would have an Interior Side Yard Setback (to the roof overhang) of one foot (1'), at the south property line, which would be a two feet (2') Variance to the three feet (3') minimum Interior Side Yard Setback as required by Sect. 11.32, Subd. 8., for the R-2 General Residential District.

Notice is further given that the Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a Hearing on the Variance Request at approximately 7:30 P.M. (CDST) on Monday July 20, 1992 following Hearings conducted by the Planning Commission on other Applications, in the City Council Chambers of the City Auditorium. All persons wishing to comment on the Variance Request will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Auditorium, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, or telephone 218-681-2500.

NOTICE OF HEARING
BOARD OF ZONING APPEALS
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Linda C. Anderson, 706 Dewey Avenue North, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, has applied for a Variance to the Zoning Regulations governing Rear Yard Setbacks in the R-2 General Residential District. The property is legally described as the North half (1/2) of Lots 2 & 3, less the East 11 feet thereof, in Block Seven of Riverside Addition.

Granting of the Variance Request would allow the petitioner to place a 36' X 18' addition on the north side of the existing residence. The existing building on the property has a Rear Yard Setback (to the roof overhang) of fifteen feet (15') which does not conform to the Yard Requirements. The easterly wall of the proposed addition would have the same Rear Yard Setback as the existing building and would, therefore, require approval of a twenty feet (20') Variance to the thirty five feet (35') minimum Rear Yard Setback, as required by Sect. 11.32, Subd. 5, for the R-2 General Residential District.

Notice is further given, that the Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a Hearing on the Variance Request at approximately 7:20 PM (CDST) on Monday, July 20, 1992, following a Hearing by the Planning Commission concerning a Zoning Amendment Request for the same property. The Hearing will be conducted in the City Council Chambers of the City Auditorium. All persons wishing to comment on the Variance Request will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Auditorium, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, or telephone 218-681-2500.

NOTICE OF HEARING
PLANNING COMMISSION
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Linda C. Anderson and Doyle Thompson have requested an Amendment to the Zoning of their properties located on the East side of the 700 Block of Dewey Avenue from C-1 Neighborhood Business to R-2 General Residential District. The properties are legally described as the North half (1/2) of Lots 2 & 3, less the East 11 feet thereof, in Block Seven (L. Anderson property) and the South 24 feet of Lot 1 in Block Seven (D. Thompson property), both in Riverside Addition to the City of Thief River Falls.

The Doyle Thompson property, which includes all of Lot 1 except the North 60 feet, is currently vacant. If the Zoning Amendment Request is approved, Ms. Anderson proposed to place an addition to the existing residence located on her property. Ms. Anderson would propose to continue to operate a beauty shop on the property located at 706 Dewey Avenue as a Home Occupation in accordance with Section 11.71, Subd. 4. of Chapter 11 of the City Code. Placement of the addition to the existing residence, as proposed, will also require approval of a Variance Request to the Rear Yard Setback Requirements.

Notice is further given, that the Planning Commission will hold a Hearing on the Zoning Amendment Request at 7:10 P.M. (CDST) on Monday, July 20, 1992 in the City Council Chambers, City Auditorium. All persons wishing to comment on the Zoning Amendment Request will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Auditorium, P.O. NOTICE OF HEARING
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Kenneth and Evelyn Berg, Southwoods Corporation and Idyl Inc., of c/o Kenneth Berg, 101 Idlewood Court, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, Norwest Bank MN West N.A., c/o Roger Reuter, President, 110 Third Street East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, and the City of Thief River Falls (Park and Recreation Department) have requested an Amendment to the Zoning of properties located in Southwoods Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, which includes a Rearrangement of Lot Two, Block One, Oakville Second Addition and of Outlot A, Oakville Addition. The owners and parties having an interest in Lots 1 - 11 in Block 1 of Southwoods Addition are requesting that all of these properties be zoned C-2 General Business District. A portion of these properties are currently zoned AG Agricultural.

The C'mon Inn is located on Lot 2 of Block One in Southwoods Addition. The balance of the properties described above are vacant and undeveloped. The owners of these properties propose to offer these properties for sale and development for commercial purposes permitted in the C-2 District.

The City of Thief River Falls, owner of Outlot A in Southwoods Addition, is requesting that this property be zoned PR Park and Recreation District. A portion of this property is currently zoned R-1 Suburban Residential. Outlot A, which is undeveloped and, for the most part, covered by trees, lies between the above described properties proposed for commercial uses and the residential area to the west (Oakville Addition). It is the current intent of the City's Park and Recreation Department that this property will remain in its existing state to provide greenspace and a buffer between future commercial development and the residential properties.

Notice is further given, that the Planning Commission will hold a Hearing on the Zoning Amendment Requests at 7:00 P.M. (CDST) on Monday, July 20, 1992, in the City Council Chambers, City Auditorium. All persons wishing to comment on the Zoning Amendment Requests will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing, or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Auditorium, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or telephone 218-681-2500.

Unemployment in region rises

Unemployment in Minnesota's economic development Region 1 in northwestern Minnesota increased by .5 per cent from April to May, the same rate of increase as noted for the entire state, according to information received from the Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training.

Minnesota's jobless rate increased from 5.0 to 5.5 per cent while the Region 1 rate increased from 8.1 to 8.6 per cent. The national unemployment rate was set at 7.2 per cent.

Of the state's 2,431,516 people in the labor force in May, 132,815 were out of work. For Region 1 the 45,997 in the labor force included 3,953 who were unemployed.

Marshall and Red Lake counties were the only counties in the region with unemployment higher than 9.1 per cent. Red Lake with a state high 16.0 per cent and Marshall with 12.6 per cent. Polk county was close at 9.0 per cent — up from only 7.6 per cent in April.

Pennington county unemployment dipped slightly to 8.6 per cent in May from 8.7 per cent in April—one of only three counties in the region to have a decrease. The others were Red Lake—down from 17.1 per cent and Marshall—down from 13.5 per cent.

Kittson increased from 7.3 per cent to 7.9 per cent, Norman from 8.1 per cent to 8.3 per cent, and Roseau from 3.9 to 4.7 per cent.

Labor force for each of the region's counties in May was as follows with the number unemployed listed in parentheses.

Kittson, 2,768 (219), Marshall, 5,219 (656), Norman, 4,072 (337); Pennington, 7,211 (618), Polk, 15,406 (1,384), Red Lake, 1,832 (293), and Roseau, 9,489 (446).

"In contrast to the second half of 1991 when the labor force was contracting, the state's labor force has been growing quite rapidly in recent months," notes R. Jane Brown, commissioner of the department of jobs and training.

"The number of jobs is also growing, but only moderately," she said. "Consequently, the unemployment rate has not dropped but instead remains near the same level as a year ago."

Lincoln instrumental music instructor Bruce Felt asks project architect Griff Davenport a question about the preliminary floor plan sketch for music department at Lincoln high school during a meeting of facilities subcommittees Monday evening at the Lincoln physical education gymnasium. Work at the Lincoln school is part of a proposed $17 to $18 million facilities upgrading being recommended to the board of education by the citizens committee which has been studying local school district needs for some time.

MPCA and EPA plan to inspect various underground tanks in MN

Inspections are planned at various underground storage tank facilities in Minnesota this spring by the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Tanks that store petroleum products or hazardous substances can pose an environmental an public health threat if they leak. Because of those potential threats to the environment and health, the MPCA and EPA will be conducting joint inspections to ensure that underground storage tank facilities in Minnesota are in compliance with federal and state laws.

Minnesota has more than 14,000 active tank facilities. More than 4,000 releases from underground storage tanks have been reported in the state. The latter figure does not include spills or releases from above ground storage tanks and pipelines.

One of the most important elements in preventing or minimizing tank and piping releases is the requirement for leak detection systems, says the MPCA. These requirements are being phased in by the federal and state government over a five-year period from 1989 to 1993. Currently, this requirement applies to tanks and suction piping installed prior to 1975 and those installed after December 1988. Leak detection for all pressurized piping has been required since December 1990.

"Implementing leak detection systems on underground storage tanks that have not been upgraded to meet federal and state standards is an effective way to minimize leaks from these tanks," says Gordon Wegwart, MPCA Hazardous Waste division manager. "For this reason, both the MPCA and the EPA acknowledge the importance of having good leak detection systems in place. The Petroleum Tank Release Compensation board also recognizes the importance of leak detection by reducing the levels of reimbursement when leak detection requirements have not been followed."

In addition to checking for leak detection, the inspectors will be checking for spill and overflow prevention, notification, corrosion protection and record keeping and reporting requirements. Violations can result in the issuing of notices of violation and administrative orders containing monetary penalties.

Kujava attends BSU workshop

Leatrice Kujava of Greenbush participated in the child management workshop held at Bemidji State University this summer.

Kujava, a parent and a teacher in the Greenbush elementary school system, indicated the developmental techniques would be beneficial to incorporate in the classroom as well as in the home setting.

Directed by Dr. Timothy Martines, assistant professor of psychology at BSU, the workshop was a training program designed to teach social learning techniques and child management skills to parents of children ages three to 11.

Yard wastes can't be put in landfill

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency reminds state residents that as of January 1, 1992, a ban on sending yard wastes to landfills is in effect. The MPCA said that these plant wastes can be composted and reused instead.

The law that will ban landfilling of yard wastes from the 80 counties outside the Twin Cities area was passed by the 1988 Minnesota Legislature to help save on scarce landfill space and improve the efficiency of garbage incinerators by keeping yard wastes out of Minnesota's garbage. The same law banned the landfilling of yard wastes from the Twin Cities seven-county area in 1990.

Yard waste makes up about four per cent by weight (about 68,000 tons) of the garbage discarded each year in the 80 counties outside the Twin Cities area, according to the 1991 MPCA Waste Composition Study. In the Twin Cities area, community compost sites for yard wastes composted more than six per cent of the area's total solid wastes in 1991—a four-fold increase over the amount in 1989 before the ban went into effect, according to Metropolitan Council data.

Under the statewide ban—which applies to households, businesses and institutions—grass clippings, leaves, weeds, and prunings may be composted as a way to recycle these yard wastes back into a useful, natural mulch, the MPCA said. These wastes can be composted in back yard compost piles and bins or at community compost centers. Currently, there are more than 160 community composting sites available in the 80 counties affected by the 1992 ban.

A properly-prepared compost pile speeds up the natural decay of plant wastes and will not attract pests or produce unpleasant odors. Grass clippings can be left on the lawn to eliminate the need to put them in a compost pile, the MPCA said. Residents can find out more about composting at home by calling the MPCA toll-free at 1-800-652-9747 or by calling the nearest MPCA regional office (Duluth - 218/723-4660, Brainerd - 218/828-2492, Detroit Lakes - 218/847-1519, Marshall - 507/537-7146, Rochester - 507/285-7343).

Not all community composting sites will accept tree prunings. In some areas, trees and branches are chipped up to create a landscape mulch. Christmas trees are not included in the landfill ban for yard wastes and may be sent to a landfill or garbage incinerator that will

THEIR LEGACY WAS THE FREEDOM OF OUR GREAT COUNTRY

Let's celebrate, but not forget
We owe them a tremendous debt:
Those men who risked their all and signed
That piece of paper which defined
The reasons for their great demand
For independence of our land.
This document for all to see
Forever lives in history;
And yet, the freedom that we gained
Must be eternally maintained,
With our alertness as the cost,
So what they gave us won't be lost.
The lessons of our faith portray
The gratitude we should convey;
To thank them for their legacy:
Our precious land of liberty.

NOT the Problem

Here's how to cure slow drains forever. Professional plumbers know the real problem is not in the U-shaped trap. It is in the pipes behind the wall and underground – the other 99% of your plumbing system.

It starts with a deposit of grease or soap film. The same film that leaves a ring around your tub or sink. In time daily deposits form a black, smelly layer of gook. As the gook gets thicker your drains run slower and slower.

Now, without calling a costly rooter service, you can remove this gook with Plumb Cleene.

Amazing Plumb Cleene contains safe, natural bacteria. As they multiply they move from the trap to the sewer or septic. Since they use the gook for food they literally eat your pipes clean.

Revolutionary Plumb Cleene is so simple and safe even a child can use it!

Only original Plumb Cleene has this unique formula. Only original Plumb Cleene Guarantee makes you this promise. Use Plumb Cleene as directed for 30 days and we guarantee your drains will run like new or your money back!

So cure the slows. Get safe, guaranteed Plumb Cleene today.

Capitol Commentary

by LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator — District 1

Crime has captured headline space and the attention of lawmakers in the past year. The latest changes in Minnesota will put criminals away longer.

One of the hottest topics in the past legislative session was the sentencing of sex offenders. Here is where the Legislature made the most dramatic changes.

The new sentence for rape/murder will be life in prison without parole. The old law allowed someone convicted of this crime to apply for parole after 30 years.

The standard sentence for rape (first offense) will also be longer. It changes from seven to 15 years. A second offense will mean 30 years. A third offense will mean life behind bars.

The legislature also toughened the law on prisoners with "Psychopathic personalities." The Corrections Department will identify them before they are released and the Attorney General will help counties with commitment procedures. This could keep predatory criminals locked up indefinitely.

There were other changes that affect sentences for all crimes. For example, if a prisoner commits a crime, the new sentence must be served after the current one—not concurrently.

Time off for good behavior will also be tougher to get. It will not be granted as easily and prisoners will have to comply more strictly to earn it.

When inmates are released, their release times will be different. They will no longer get out on Fridays, Saturdays, Sundays or holidays. If they are released to a halfway house or treatment program they must be escorted by law enforcement officers.

All these changes will affect the state budget. More than $4 million was added for prisons to keep up with the increased load of prisoners. To help pay the bill, the Legislature increased the fines that convicted criminals will have to pay.

To prevent future crimes, the Legislature also worked on crime prevention education. An anti-violence curriculum in the schools will be established.

Because abused children face an increased risk of becoming criminals, an abuse prevention program will be operated through Early Childhood Family Education. To help keep teen sex offenders from becoming adult rapists, a treatment program was set up.

The rights of crime victims were also addressed. Because many victims do not know their rights, a 24-hour toll-free phone line was set up to help them. There were also programs added specifically to help sexual assault victims.

No one is naive enough to think that these changes will eliminate crime. What they will do is help to make our state safer, help victims, and perhaps help prevent some young people from becoming criminals.

REPORT

From The

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Rep. Wally Sparby reminded Minnesotans this week that parents who enroll their children not covered by health insurance in the Children's Health Plan will be the first eligible participants in Minnesota's new health insurance plan — HealthRight.

"The Children's Health Plan (CHP) is one of the most successful state programs we have. It provides necessary health care for children in families that can't afford health insurance. I hope all eligible families enroll now, while rates are low and before funds are exhausted," Rep. Sparby said.

The CHP costs only $25 per child per year, he said, and is available to children under the age of 18 who do not have any health insurance in an effort to provide primary preventive care from doctors and dentists.

Beginning October 1 this year, the Children's Health Plan will be expanded to provide health care coverage for the families of those children already enrolled in CHP. The state's new, more extensive program is called "HealthRight" and it will cover both families and full-time financially dependent students up to the age of 25.

Once the new HealthRight program starts, costs for each family will be determined on a sliding fee basis according to ability to pay. Low-income families who have already enrolled their children in the Children's Health Plan and who do not have health insurance themselves can apply for HealthRight as early as September 1 of this year. Rep. Sparby pointed out that this is another reason why eligible families should enroll their children now.

Beginning December 1, 1992, HealthRight coverage will be expanded to cover all modest-income families with children who do not have health insurance.

"Now is the time to enroll, because when HealthRight gets up and running, costs could increase for most families, since premiums will be based on income and the sliding fee scale. As the program expands, costs might increase because the state will need to purchase more insurance coverage.

The premiums for HealthRight will vary according to income and family size, but the average cost for a family of two with a monthly income of $1,000 will be $21 per month. For a family of three with monthly earnings of $1,400 the premiums will be $29 per month. A family of four with monthly earnings of $2,400 will pay $95 per month.

If you have any further questions or want to apply for either the Children's Health Plan or HealthRight, call (612) 297-3682 or 1-800-657-3672.

The stores will continue the sale of the stamps and bonds through July, it was announced."

MN plans to reach education goals with $10 million grant

How is Minnesota planning to reach the national and state education goal that calls for United States students to be first in the world in mathematics and science achievement by the year 2000?

A major boost could come from a matching federal grant of $10 million from the National Science Foundation if an unprecedented statewide planning effort is successful.

The proposal is being developed with the backing and involvement of Governor Arne Carlson, Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga, top business leaders and educators statewide. The effort recently garnered the support of the 1992 Legislature, which will provide a portion of the matching funds, with the remainder to be raised by business.

"The resulting $20 million would help Minnesota raise math and science achievement to world-class levels, enroll many more students in the study of these important subjects, and enlist parents and the business community in creating a climate for excellence," said Commissioner of Education Gene Mammenga.

"If we want all our young people to be qualified for higher level, better-paying jobs in this competitive world economy, we've got to give many more of them advanced skills in math, science and problem solving," he said.

The final draft of the proposal is still being written, but a key priority already identified is raising public awareness.

"In the United States we assume that only certain students have the aptitude for math and science, and we don't expect everyone to continue study throughout high school as we do in English or social studies," said Sharon Stenglein, state mathematics education specialist. "That's not the attitude in other industrialized countries, which expect high performance from all their students. U.S. students rank at or near the bottom in math and science when compared to their counterparts in other advanced economies."

Another priority in the draft is increasing parent involvement. Studies show that a major factor in student achievement in other countries is high parental expectations.

Other priorities include:

- Changing the way mathematics and science are taught in the classroom, stressing more hands-on activities and practical, real-life applications so students see the value of what they are learning. "We want them to get excited and view math and science as something they do, not just study," Stenglein said.
- Emphasizing higher-level problem-solving skills, approaches that cut across different subject areas, and an early start in the elementary grades.
- Creating professional development and teacher education programs that prepare teachers for the new types of classroom instruction and assessment required.
- Building partnerships with business and industry to ensure that students are adequately prepared for employment.

The final proposal, which is due in Washington, D.C., by mid-July, will include the final goals, strategies and an action plan for the five-year life of the grant. A precondition of the grant is that all major stakeholders be involved in the development process, which has been coordinated by the Minnesota Department of Education. Regional meetings have been held this spring to get further input from parents, educators and citizens statewide.

Another precondition of the grant is that changes be systemic — that the funds be viewed as seed money to create major changes throughout the system with an impact extending beyond the life of the grant. That is why the draft proposal is addressing issues like attitude, collaboration, parent involvement, teacher preparation and changes in classroom instruction and assessment that can serve as models for better practice throughout the state.

The National Science Foundation has given 20 such grants to states during the past two years. Minnesota is competing for one of the few remaining grants. For more information about the process, contact either Stenglein at 612-296-4070, or Dick Clark, science education specialist, at 296-4071.

Schmitz passes actuary exam

Darrell Schmitz of Red Lake Falls was one of the six Bemidji State University students who passed the first of a series of actuary science examinations. Schmitz graduated from BSU in 1991 with degrees in computer science and mathematics.

Administered by the Casualty Actuarial Society and the Society of Actuaries, the three-hour examination covered calculus and linear algebra. On average, only 26 per cent of individuals taking the test score a passing grade. The BSU group achieved a 50 per cent pass rate.

Students who participate in the exams may be preparing for employment in actuary fields within government or insurance businesses. The series consists of 10 examinations, although the first two are typically completed by undergraduates.

Students were prepared for the examinations through their course work at BSU in math and computer science as well as participation in actuary science seminars.

Olive Lunke of Thief River Falls and Edgar Neplin of St. Hilaire were chosen as Pennington County's Outstanding Senior Citizens. They were awarded the honor at the Pennington County Fair last Friday, Senior Citizen Day. Lunke has been active in activities such as county vice president of the Northwest Senior Federation and she has worked to promote the alternative care program. Neplin has been active in activities such as the Golden K, St. Hilaire Lions and the Food Shelf.

91st Pennington fair was a qualified success story

Operation ran smoothly, exhibits and premiums were up but attendance down

"There are two ways you can look at having a successful county fair," stated Richard Anderson, president of the Pennington County Fair Association Monday following conclusion of the 91st annual event on Sunday.

"One way to judge success is by the quality of the presentation and whether people attending had a good time and enjoyed themselves," he continued. "The other is how well it fared financially. We believe this year's fair was very successful on the first part of the equation but we know it was less than successful from a financial viewpoint."

Anderson said the 1992 county fair set a record in carnival revenue and a substantial increase in premiums paid to exhibitors, but had its biggest setback in lack of attendance at the professional entertainment programs presented by Mike Reid and Mark Chesnutt Friday and Saturday nights.

"The general consensus was that both of the entertainers put on tremendous shows and that it was too bad more local people weren't on hand to enjoy them," Anderson said.

"We have a couple of concerns as a fair board," he added, "and one of them is the lack of local support shown for the relatively expensive 'big name' entertainment. Our records show that approximately 80 per cent of the crowd, exclusive of fair board members (who also purchase their own admission tickets), came from outside the Thief River Falls area."

Terry Nelson, fair board treasurer, said that only 1,077 tickets were sold for the Reid and Chesnutt shows, leaving the county fair association with a substantial but as yet undetermined loss. Last year the two for the price of one promotion resulted in attendance of 2,248.

A number of factors were cited as possible reasons for the decline, including five area county fairs going on simultaneously, increase in the number of county fairs adopting similar entertainment programs, proliferation of high quality entertainment in the area at such places as the WE Fest in Detroit Lakes and Chester Fritz auditorium at UND, and the impact of gambling casinos in the area—both as an attraction by themselves and by the entertainment they sponsor.

Attendance at the Thursday evening teen dance was 421, up from a year ago, but demolition derby attendance of 1,206 adults and children was down from 1,346 last year and 1,506 in 1990.

Another concern expressed by the board was the volume and quality of rides provided by the Murphy Bros. carnival at the fair this year. This was also attributed to a number of factors, again relating to the number of county fairs in the area on the same dates.

Last year the fair board was impressed with the Murphy Bros. operation here and signed a five-year contract. Several other area

Michele Bodell enters pageant

(This is the fourth in a series of articles about candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the Miss America Preliminary Scholarship Pageant to be held Saturday, August 1, in the Lincoln high school auditorium.)

An elementary school music student who decided athletics was more of a challenge and who is a member of the Minnesota Waterfowl association is now a candidate for the Miss Thief River Falls title.

Michele Bodell, daughter of John and Linda Bodell of Thief River Falls, is 22 years old and a 1988 graduate of Strandquist high school. She is five feet seven and one-half inches tall, has blonde hair and blue eyes. Her pageant talent presentation will be a comedy number.

At Strandquist high school Michele lettered in basketball and cheerleading and she also enjoys volleyball and softball. In elementary school she played piano and the trumpet but decided she liked the challenge of athletic competition. She was involved in Knowledge Bowl and the prom committee and served on the annual staff and newspaper staff.

Presently enrolled at Northland Community college in Thief River Falls, she has been named to the President's List for academic performance. Michele will graduate from Northland in 1993 and then transfer to a four-year college to earn her bachelor's degree in business management.

Presently employed at Lutheran Social Services' home and community based services, she is a counselor for handicapped children. This year she took a client to the Special Olympics and watched her earn silver medals. Michele also works as a night auditor at the C'mon Inn motel.

LHS Marching band returns from Calgary

Tour results in third place finish in Calgary Stampede parade

by Karmen Ortloff

Editor's note: Karmen is a band member and a student participating in the Artist/Mentor program sponsored by the Northwest Regional Development Commission.

After a full year of fundraising, months of rehearsing, and a summer filled with parades, the Prowler Marching Band was escorted out of town June 30 by a Thief River Falls Law Enforcement Center squad car.

The band's ultimate destination was the Calgary Stampede and Exhibition in Calgary, Alberta, Canada. The reason for the police escort was partly fanfare for this occasion and possibly to make sure that the band did, in fact, leave town. The latter could explain the parent convoy that followed the three charter buses for several blocks.

The pilgrimage to Calgary was virtually a 24-hour, non-stop bus ride — excluding meal breaks and the occasional equipment checks. One of the stops landed the band in Saco, Montana, home of a combination library/laundromat/liquor store.

After 24-hours on the bus, the band finally arrived at Ernest Manning high school in Calgary. This was to be the Prowler marching band's home for the next week. The band shared the school with five other bands from such places as Colorado, Utah, and Wisconsin.

Considering that over 100 people were crammed on three buses with sleeping bags, band uniforms, carry-ons, luggage, and no showers, the band director, Bruce Felt, had this to say: "We looked and smelled terrible! The natives were getting restless. But for such a tough trip, it worked really well!"

Following a night of sleep on foam cushions laid on gym floors, the band headed west on a highway to Banff National Park. Upon arrival at Banff, each bus received an individual tour guide that escorted the band through a Buffalo reserve, hot sulphur springs, and Hoodoos (trails in the mountains that natives considered to be evil). Tour guides were very friendly, however each band member was warned about "shadow people," which is a nice term for the homeless.

The eve of the Stampede Parade was topped off by an authentic Italian three-course meal at Mama's Ristorante. During the evening, Felt was presented with a combination cowboy hat, sheriff's badge and whistle. Felt received the hat because he was at the Stampede and you couldn't be without one, the badge represented authority, and the whistle was to replace one he broke earlier this summer during a rather unpleasant rehearsal. Also at this dinner, the band was briefed as to what to expect the following day and what was going to happen

Dear Readers,

Prearrangement of a funeral service may relieve the survivors of a difficult chore during their emotional turmoil - it can assure the type of funeral that you wish - it can provide peace of mind that the task is completed. To finance the funeral service, a trust fund, earning interest, can be established at a local financial institution. We invite you to inquire about prearrangement at Belmont.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home
Larry Belmont

1992 county fair has mixed success

fairs contracted with the Dale Thomas Shows. During the winter, Dale Thomas died and Murphy Bros. acquired the majority of that show, attempting to fulfill the Thomas Shows' schedule with a combination of rides and other equipment this year. Spreading of the equipment over several fairs resulted in having fewer rides in Thief River Falls than had been anticipated.

Assurances were given by the carnival management that the fair here next year would have bigger and better rides if better scheduling could be worked out among the area fairs so there is less duplication of dates. Local fair board officials would prefer to have the Pennington fair a week or two later than this year if possible.

Lowell Swanson of Goodridge won the Dodge pickup truck awarded by the fair board on its annual raffle.

Total premiums paid out this year were $9,389.50, an increase from $8,871 in 1991 and $8,423 in 1990. Open class premiums at $7,566 were up from $7,140 in 1991 and $6,567 in 1990 while 4-H club premiums at $1,823.50 were up from $1,731.50 last year and just slightly under the $1,856 paid in 1990.

Open class premiums by division include the following with the comparative 1991 figures listed in parentheses:

Beef, $1,719 ($1,505); Dairy, $612.50 ($622.50); Sheep, $357.50 ($414); Swine, none ($96); Goats, $631 ($434.50); Poultry, $688.50 ($665); Rabbits, $174 ($183); Horses, $1,137.50 ($867.50); and Dogs, $26.50 ($42.50);

Also Agriculture, $363.50 ($417); Adult Flowers, $166.50 ($244); Children's Flowers, $32.25 ($38.25); Adult Culinary, $450.50 ($452); Children's Culinary, $112.50 ($78.50); Adult Needlework, $169.50 ($206); and Children's Needlework, $4.75 ($7);

Also Adult Sewing, $120 ($127.25); Children's Sewing, $36 ($24); Adult Arts and Crafts, $401.25 ($386); Woodworking, $125.50 ($89.50); Student Art, $129.50 ($114); and Senior Citizens, $107.75 ($126.50).

General attendance at the fair was down this year from the tremendously successful fair of a year ago, Anderson said. Parking income was down in relation to the total attendance.

"The board will have some deep thinking to do and a number of decisions to make in regard to the 1993 fair," Anderson said. "We hope to build on the team penning event which was well received and we had a number of positive comments about the petting zoo and the Wednesday evening gospel music night at the bandshell.

"We believe that things ran well from an operational standpoint and that most people were pleased with most aspects of the fair. We only could have used more people and more dollars, and maybe they just weren't available this year."

and four in possession in the Fergus Falls/Alexandria and Southwest Border zones. Hunting is prohibited within 100 yards of any surface water during these seasons. Hunting is also prohibited from public roads or rights-of-way in the Twin Cities and Fergus Falls/Alexandria areas. A summary of the regulations and map depicting the hunt zone boundaries is contained in the 1992 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations, which will be issued in early August.

"The majority of hunting opportunity for those seasons is on private land," Bremicker noted. "Hunters should secure permission from landowners well before the season."

Band returns

throughout the day. This briefing, however, did not prepare the band for what was to occur the next day.

Waking early to eat, shower, and dress in uniform, the Prowler Marching band was escorted by police to the beginning of the parade route along with a convoy of five other bands. The police escort showed exactly how organized the 70-year-old parade was. Not only was the traffic on the main streets stopped, but a team of motorcycles and squad cars kept any other traffic from interfering with the convoy.

When the band finally arrived at the parade route, they had to quickly unload, have pictures taken, warm-up, and they were off! The parade route itself was rather simple: a rectangle that ran right through the heart of downtown Calgary.

Along the nearly three-mile route, close to 250,000 people wildly cheered the band on. The folks in Calgary thought nothing of walking right in front of or in between the band. As if this large amount of people were not enough, three different television stations broadcast the parade to millions of viewers across Canada and the United States.

At the end of the parade, band members were congratulated on a job well done by spectators, other bands, chaperones and Felt. All this attention was fine, but what the band was really interested in was the table full of ice cold water a block from the end of the parade.

With a quick trip back to Ernest Manning high for well-needed showers, the band's next destination was the Stampede and exhibition grounds. To make a comparison in size, imagine the Minnesota state fair times three. One can now comprehend the size of the grounds which consisted of a large midway, and entire Indian village, hundreds of games and food booths, a grandstand and rodeo arena, the Olympic Saddledome (home of the NHL's Calgary Flames), and hundreds of other facilities.

The band was granted time to wander the grounds at their leisure, but met in front of the grandstand to go to the Stampede Opening Ceremonies.

To begin the night's festivities were nine heats of chuckwagon races. Each chuckwagon had four horses, plus riders on single horses to lead the wagon through barrels and around a one-mile track.

In the first heat of the chuckwagon races, the front two horses of the lead wagon became tangled in the traces and went down only a few feet from a first place finish. One horse walked away without injury, the other had a heart attack and died.

When the chuckwagon races were completed, the official opening ceremonies began. As one of his duties as grand marshal, actor Leslie Nielsen of "The Naked Gun" fame declared the Stampede open. What followed was three hours of extravaganza.

The opening ceremonies included a performance of the Young Canadians. The more than 10,000 people packed into the grandstand seating area were treated to performances by the Young Canadians. Young Canadians are a group of roughly 100 youth from across Canada that put on a huge choreographed show that could rival any Broadway performance. Perhaps the most unique thing about the show is that all of the Young Canadians were the age of many members of the Prowler Marching band or younger.

Other performances included traditional Indian dancing, as well as Ukrainian dancers, commentary/comedy by a Canadian comedian, a 125 gun salute (one for each year of Canada's independence) by Canadian cadets, acrobats from the Moscow Circus and countless other performances.

The entire show ended with a fireworks display that lighted the sky as if it were midday.

Activities for the band within the next few days included several stand-up concerts performed in the middle of a street located in Heritage Park — a city within Calgary that hasn't changed since 1900 — and in Rope Park. Actually, Rope Park only exists during Stampede time. It is otherwise known as Olympic Village. The Olympic Village is where award ceremonies of the 1988 Winter Olympics were held. It is also where the Prowler Marching band received its award for placing third in the high school/community band competition in the Stampede parade. The band had to beat 20 other bands to win third prize.

During a stand-up concert, members from the Stampede band committee presented a white ribbon and $1,500 to the marching band. Usually third place receives only $1,000, but the band committee decided to award an extra $500 because ". . . the band exhibited the true spirit of the Stampede," according to Felt.

Accepting the ribbon and money on behalf of the band were Commanders Heather Thompton and Karmen Ortloff. When salutes were given, pictures taken, and speeches made, the band played and marched out of the Olympic Village for the last time.

Other noteworthy activities for the band in Calgary included a trip to Canada Olympic park, site of the Olympic 90-meter ski jump, luge and bobsled tracks, as well as the Olympic Hall of Fame and many other sport facilities.

The band also stopped by a water park, went shopping in Calgary malls, and had free time to explore Calgary on their own.

On July 6, the band was back on the road to the United States. The first stop was Glacier National Park in Montana. While in Glacier, the band spent its only night in a hotel. The Swift Current Motor Inn was far less than glamorous, as no room had a television set or even a telephone. It did, however, have a hot shower, and beds with real mattresses, which were welcomed luxuries to the 100 band members who had previously slept on gym floors and waited in endless lines for ice-cold showers.

Because there was no recreational facilities, band members had to resort to good old mother nature for the evening entertainment. One group of band members were out for a hike and were chased up a tree and on a cliff by a black bear.

Once again, early the next morning, the band climbed on tour buses that would take them on the "Highway to the Sun." The buses were 1930 tour buses that had recently received new engines. It was a good thing the band took these buses because the regular charters might not have made it up the steep mountain roads. (While in Alberta, the passengers of one bus had to get out and literally push their bus until it started.)

The day in Glacier was a wet, and chilly day; but riders on several of the tour buses decided to be adventurous and tour the mountains with the roofs of their bus retracted.

After making it to Logan Pass, the Continental Divide, the Weeping Wall, and countless waterfalls and mountains, the band was dropped off at one resort only to hop on the bus and head for another resort.

At the last resort, the band had time to relax at a real resort. Swimming, golfing, dining, and shopping were only a few of the activities one could join. Following a full day of fun, many band members only wanted to head home, but they had one more event.

At the huge Glacier Park Lodge, a banquet was prepared in honor of the band. Band members and chaperones were treated to a feast of barbequed steak, chicken, potatoes, apple pie, and all the other traditional summer picnic food.

When everyone finished eating all they could, the band climbed on board their buses and began its trek across Montana and across North Dakota.

After another 24 hours on the bus, the band pulled into Thief River Falls to receive the same fanfare that marked the beginning of their adventure. A police escort lead the buses through town and back to Lincoln high school where balloons, parents and a reception awaited band members.

Many band members stuck around to watch television coverage of their performance and accept the congratulations from Mayor Bob Reeve, School Board Representative Larry Belmont, Director Bruce Felt, and the Band Boosters.

After a long and rewarding adventure, members of the Lincoln high school marching band were happy to get home to hot showers, good mattresses and soft pillows.

Kay Steiger nominee for hospital board

Nominating committee of the Northwest Medical Center board of directors has nominated Kay (Wedul) Steiger to succeed Dale Dillon on the board of the medical center with the annual meeting and election to be held Monday, September 14.

Dillon will complete nine years of service on the medical center board in September and under the center's by-laws is ineligible for board service until three calendar years have elapsed. The board officially expressed its appreciation to Dillon for his three terms of service.

Also nominated for three-year terms by the nominating committee were incumbent directors Cathy Belmont, Larry Rohlf and Dr. Peter Johnson, all of whose terms expire in September. All have agreed to have their names placed in nomination. The committee's report was accepted by the medical center board at its June 22 meeting.

By-laws of the medical center association provide the association membership with the opportunity to nominate candidates from among the membership. These nominations are due in the hospital administrative office at or before 5 p.m. on Saturday, August 1. Each nomination is to be accompanied by the nominee's written consent to serve if elected and the signatures of five association members.

Meeting time and agenda for the annual meeting September 14 at the Best Western Inn have not been determined by the board of directors at this time but will be announced prior to the meeting, according to Richard A. Spyhalski, chief executive officer of the medical center.

Public input sought in MN graduation rule

An important part of the proposed new graduation rule being considered by the State Board of Education are specific performance standards in reading, writing, mathematics and problem solving. The proposed new rule would base graduation on student demonstration of competency in specific skill areas, in contrast to the present rule which requires only completion of 20 credits in specified subject areas, without regard to what is actually learned or the standard for measuring success.

Through a series of regional meetings, the State Board of Education has sought public input in identifying 43 competencies in seven areas essential to the well-prepared high school graduate: communication, decision making, influencing community action, understanding diversity, working cooperatively, developing physical and emotional well-being and contributing to economic well-being.

Now the board is inviting public comment to determine performance standards in the critical areas of reading, writing, mathematics and problem-solving. The board seeks to identify practical behaviors from everyday life that reflects the knowledge and skills essential to success as a person, citizen, worker and lifelong learner, behaviors such as the ability to read instructions for filing basic tax returns, write a persuasive letter to the editor or use statistics in understanding reports.

What do you see as practical measures of competency in the four key areas? The State Board of Education seeks your suggestions of specific examples of behavior that best complete the following statements:

- A high school graduate should be able to read...
- A high school graduate should be able to write...
- A high school graduate should be able to use mathematics in the following situations...
- A high school graduate should be able to solve problems in the following situations...

Your suggestions are needed. Please send them to Joan Wallin, 660 Capitol Square building, 550 Cedar street, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Your Times

Allows readers to speak out on a variety of issues

by Sen. Roger Moe

The University of Minnesota Regents should be applauded for their vision and courage in expanding the Crookston campus to a four-year baccalaureate program.

I had the opportunity to speak individually to each of the 12 regents prior to last week's vote, and was pleased that they seemed to have an excellent understanding of the needs of our campus.

In his commentary to the regents, University of Minnesota President Hasselmo said:

"The Crookston campus is at a turning point. We believe that the well-being of the Crookston campus and the interests of the northwestern part of our state are best served by introducing a carefully formulated four-year program of study that responds to the education needs of the region and compliments the capacity of higher education in the northwest."

It is clear that expansion of the services offered at Crookston is necessary to meet the growing needs of area students. Studies have shown that students entering UMC increasingly plan to pursue baccalaureate degrees, are very satisfied with the quality of education at UMC, and would continue their education there if given the opportunity.

Nontraditional students are also becoming a growing share of the student population at UMC, as economic dislocation forces individuals to seek alternate or additional education to be successful in the shrinking recessionary job market.

UMC has demonstrated its ability to build partnerships with neighboring education institutions. Their strong track record of cooperation with other higher education institutions, high schools, local community and business leaders is indicative of the success they can expect in establishing UMC as a four-year institution.

It's vital that all of the institutions work together to ensure that our region provides a comprehensive range of quality educational opportunities. Collaboration with the state university campuses at Moorhead and Bemidji is particularly important to the success of the Crookston plan to ensure that duplication of programs does not occur.

Again, I applaud the UM Board of Regents for their vision and courage in expanding the Crookston campus to a four-year program. The next step in the process of establishing UMC as a four-year institution is review of the plan by the Higher Education Coordination Board (HECB).

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I have read the proposal for the grade school building to be built on the airport road. The traffic on that two-way street is now overcrowded at busy times of the day and the future pressure is to increase substantially from the increase in enrollment at the airport school in the next couple of years.

I would like to see the proposed cost of road construction we will need to that site as opposed to the site at the north end of Duluth Avenue and Arnold Avenue. That site seems to be a natural for direct connection to the other buildings of the school district, such as the high school on Duluth and the Washington school on Arnold. Making them one-way streets would give them an easy and safe flow of traffic. The sewer and water are now at the end of those streets.

Again, what will the real cost of the airport road site be for the taxpayers?

Sincerely,
Jim Engelstad

Dear Thief River Falls:

Today, July 8, 1992, we had the pleasure of serving your high school band as it passed through Devils Lake on its way back from Calgary. They were one of the nicest groups of young people we have ever waited on—polite, well disciplined and enthusiastic. They also did very well in Calgary and were eager to share that with us.

Your community, I am sure, is very proud of them..and you should be. We enjoyed every minute they were here. Our hats off to Mr. Felt and his crew. Thanks for stopping; you made our day!!

Sincerely,
Jerry Bugliosi McDonald's

The Black Battle

[illegible] I may have started something I may regret [illegible]. My son-in-law did.

[illegible] have read this column on a regular basis, you know [illegible]-law, Jon Hatland, and me. He has a nice little [illegible] North Dakota, and writes a (pretty much) [illegible] similar to mine. His is called, "Thoughts While [illegible]"

[illegible] that that title tells you something, doesn't it? I'm [illegible] that title because it is one that I would never steal [illegible] of a few other titles he could have used for his [illegible] but they are not printable in a family newspaper.

[illegible] you can see, my son-in-law and I have a little [illegible] back and forth. It is all in good fun, of course, or [illegible] been until now. Now I may have really done it!

I don't know when this competition started. Maybe it started at [illegible] daughter's wedding, when I hugged him and whispered [illegible] ear, "You take good care of her, OR ELSE!"

Maybe it started when he came over and sneaked the pork [illegible] I had in the fridge for supper. Well, actually, he just ate one of them. The funny part was that they were merely browned and needed to be baked for another hour or so. I bet it was the toughest pork [illegible] he ever ate! I just hope he doesn't get some disease from eating raw pork, because he will surely blame my cooking.

Maybe it started when he wrote a column about the "Black Hole" in my back yard. Remember that one? He claimed I had a "Black Hole" in my back yard because he always had car trouble when he parked back there.

Maybe it started when I wrote a column back at him and called him the "Master of Disaster," and said there wasn't any "Black Hole" in my back yard and it was all his own fault and trouble followed him wherever he went like a "Black Cloud" over his head.

Yes, I guess you can see that we now have some kind of "black" thing going back and forth. But wait until I tell you about the latest "Black" thing that went on between us.

One day last fall, September or October, I think, I came back to work after my lunch break and the girls said, "Some flowers came for you."

Oh, I was so pleased. I hardly ever get flowers at work—just maybe once or twice on my birthdays (which I would rather not remember, anyway). I turned to look and...

...The flowers looked dead! Had they frozen? I tried to smile and say, "What beautiful flowers," but the words stuck in my throat. I looked at them and looked at them and finally realized that they weren't dead. They hadn't frozen.

The doggone flowers were BLACK! Every single last one of them was black. Black chrysanthemums, black daisies, even black babies' breath and ferns! All placed neatly in a black bowl. Arrgh!

What did the note say? Who would have sent me black flowers? There it was—"Happy Mother-in-Law's Day. Love, Jon."

The flowers sat around the office for a while and got more and more black and pretty dried up. They were definitely a conversation piece!

But, one day I figured out what I would do with those dry black flowers. I took the arrangement apart very carefully and placed each and every black chrysanthemum, every black daisy, every piece of babies' breath, and every single black fern in a box, along with the black bowl and the card that had come with them.

Yesterday was my son-in-law's birthday. He was 29. That is a good age for black, isn't it?

You guessed it. Jon got a large, very carefully gift wrapped, beribboned package yesterday from his mother-in-law. He even got a card that had "Mother-in-Law's Day" crossed out and changed to "Birthday," and "Jon" crossed off and changed to "Mom-in-Law."

The question now is, what "Black Thing" will he think of next? Or maybe he should be wondering what "Black Thing" I will think of next, hum? Christmas is coming, after all. Ha!

INSURANCE Update

by Carol Nelson

Q. If a car is stolen, what type of insurance coverage will pay for its replacement?
a. collision
b. liability
c. underinsured motorist
d. comprehensive

Answer d. is correct. Comprehensive insurance is sometimes called "other than collision" coverage. Comprehensive coverage would apply if your car is stolen, damaged by fire, flood, or tornado. Glass coverage is also included under comprehensive; and damage as a result of hitting a wild animal. To cover all possible perils that may physically damage an auto, you must buy both comprehensive and collision coverages. Banks and other lenders will require this coverage if you have a loan on your auto.

Every driver on the road today should be sure to have adequate auto insurance as a safeguard against unforeseen perils. NORTHERN STATE AGENCY can provide you with the appropriate coverage to protect your interests. Let NORTHERN STATE AGENCY put you on the road to insurance security. Impressions . . .

by
Beth Johnson

The day I saw a tornado is seared in my memory, not because of the powerful storm I witnessed, but rather, by the emotions of a little child.

It happened one day about 10 years ago. At the time, we were living in a town in Central Kansas. As you know, Kansas is known for its ability to produce numerous tornadoes. Tornadoes become a way of life during the summer season in Kansas. Houses are built with a storm shelter. If a house doesn't have a built in storm shelter, it most likely has an under-the-ground storm shelter evident in the yard, somewhat close to the house. This underground shelter is visible because it looks like a mound with a door and a chimney.

The day I saw a tornado was an ordinary Kansas summer day. Our boys had a baseball game scheduled to be played in a nearby town. ("Nearby" in Kansas meant at least an hour of driving each way). There were storm warnings on the radio—but, that too is a regular occurrence. The sky was not shimmering blue, but it was not bad, so off the team of little boys went to play baseball. As usual, an entourage of parents transported them to the game.

I rode along for the game. My friend was driving. In the front seat was a little boy whose name I forget. In the back seat were four little boys, my two, my friend's son, and another kid on the team. On the way to the game, it was all excitement in the back seat as they were going to play one of the more rival teams.

My friend and I realized as we were driving along that this game was probably going to be short-lived. The sky looked like it was going to storm sometime.

Well, we arrived in the town for our game, and soon the game started. We parents, complete with our ever present jugs of iced tea to ward off the thirst of the typical 100+ temperatures, settled back to watch our children play. Our team was doing well. In fact, they were actually winning!! But, as we predicted, the game was called because the storm was beginning to roll into the immediate area.

So, into the cars we all piled to begin our hour-long drive home across the flat Kansas countryside. The sky was almost touching the earth. The clouds were black. The lightning was everywhere. The rain was intense. I was thankful I was not driving.

From the back seat was heard the excited jabberings of the boys. This was scary and exciting. One of the boys was talking nonstop. We tended to ignore his constant talking. This child was also known to exaggerate, so when he kept saying that there was a tornado we checked out the windows, but saw nothing resembling a tornado.

To get home, we had to drive east for many miles, and then turn south. When we turned south, I could now see what the back seat talker had been telling us, and sure enough there was a tornado right near us. I calmly told my friend, the driver, that a tornado was in sight. I also told her to keep driving. Now, that of course is the wrong thing to do with a tornado present—you are supposed to get out of your car and hide in a ditch. But, that was impossible as we were driving on a road over a dam, so of course, no ditch was available. Needless to say, we got home quite quickly. No one was hurt. And, at home, the sun was shining.

But, as I said, the tornado did not impress me nearly as much as the little boy in the front seat whose name I have long since forgotten. As we were traveling away from this tornado and the storm from which it came, this little voice next to me said that he would much rather head into the fierce storm than go home.

No child, or adult either, should have to live in such a storm-filled environment that to be inside a tornado would be more desirable. The storms of nature end, and the sun again shines. The storms of life need to end as well. As much as it depends on you, create some sunshine around you.

Catfish fishing is catching on in Minnesota

[illegible] live in several of [illegible] rivers—the Mississippi below the Coon Rapids [illegible] St. Croix below Taylors Falls and the Minnesota River [illegible] throughout Minnesota's larger river systems, including the Mississippi, Minnesota, St. Croix [illegible] Red Rivers and [illegible]

[illegible] a growing number [illegible] catfish anglers have [illegible] its head by [illegible] the unique catfish [illegible] of the Red River of the North.

The Red River begins at Breckenridge [illegible] at the confluence of the [illegible] and Bois de Sioux rivers. From there it flows north, 500 miles to Lake Winnipeg in Manitoba, Canada. Together with the Bois de Sioux it forms the entire boundary between North Dakota and Minnesota, draining a watershed area of more than 35,500 square miles. The Red River, its tributaries, and Lake Winnipeg form North America's northernmost native range of channel catfish.

"The Red River is truly a unique fishery in that the catfish are extremely long-lived and slow-growing compared to those in the [illegible] states," said Henry Drewes, [illegible] Department of Natural Resources [illegible] project coordinator [illegible] in Minnesota [illegible] in the 20-plus [illegible] fish common in [illegible]

"[illegible] potential has led to [illegible] nationwide, [illegible] tourist anglers from [illegible] the Midwest and beyond," said Drewes.

Increased fishing pressure, especially for trophy-sized fish, is of concern among professional fish managers and local community leaders, who are worried about the future of catfish tourism in the Red River Valley.

Will the new, high-profile status of catfish fishing become too much of a good thing?

In 1990, this concern led to the development of a cooperative, interagency management group comprised of personnel from the Minnesota DNR, the North Dakota Department of Game and Fish, the Manitoba Ministry of Natural Resources, and the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks.

"Our management program had three objectives," explained Drewes. "First, was to standardize the regulations and protect the trophy fish population."

In 1990, both Minnesota and North Dakota adopted new regulations in effect on the Bois de Sioux, the Red River and all tributaries, which reduced the possession limit from eight catfish to five, with only one fish allowed over 24 inches in length. Several years earlier, the Province of Manitoba had adopted similar regulations and a four fish limit to protect trophy catfish in that portion of the Red River.

"Our second objective," continued Drewes," was to obtain additional information about the catfish population. We designed a long-term project to gather data on relative abundance, size, distribution and movement within the river system."

During the summers of 1990 and 1991, length and weight data were recorded on more than 20,000 channel catfish—specimens captured and returned, unharmed, to the river at numerous strategic locations between Breckenridge and Pembina.

During the initial phase of the study, specimens measuring 12-inches or longer were also tagged before being released. In 1990, a total of 3,005 catfish were tagged in the Red River and four major tributaries, including lower portions of the Red Lake and Ottertail rivers in Minnesota, the Sheyenne River in North Dakota, and the Bois de Sioux River south of Breckenridge. In 1991, nearly 1,000 additional catfish were tagged in Canada, both north and south of the Lockport Dam, located north of Winnipeg. Fisheries specialists from UND and the Minnesota DNR assisted Canadian researchers in catching and tagging the fish.

In the U.S. portion of the river, channel cats were tagged with yellow, oval-shaped "disc dangler" laminated plastic tags each having an individual tag number on one side and the name and address of the UND Biology Department on the other. The Canadian fish received a similar tag, either red or blue in color, depending on whether the fish was caught above or below the Lockport Dam. The tags were attached with a stainless steel wire through the upper back of the fish, just behind the dorsal fin.

Over the next several years, anglers who catch the catfish will be asked to return the tags of those fish they keep—and the tag numbers of fish caught and released—along with the date and location of the catch. Researchers also want to know the number of untagged fish caught at the same time, and either kept or released. Tags should not be removed from fish that are released.

This phase of the project is intended to gather data about catfish movement and distribution within the river system: on age and growth, fishing pressure and harvest levels.

So far, approximately 100 river anglers, and several commercial fishermen in Lake Winnipeg, have reported tag information. Another 100 or so tagged fish were recaptured in subsequent survey nettings in 1991. About half of the tagged fish have exhibited considerable movement up-stream or down-stream from where they were tagged.

A U.S. fish, tagged near Drayton, ND, in June of 1990, was recaptured June 25, 1991, by a commercial fisherman in Lake Winnipeg, nearly 200 river miles to the north. A Canadian fish, tagged just north of the U.S./Canada border, was caught 14 days later near Hecla Island in Lake Winnipeg. It had traveled nearly 200 miles in two weeks, including a trip through the locks at the Lockport Dam. Other tagged fish have traveled from Canada into the United States.

As with other low-growth, trophy-fish species, catfish anglers on both sides of the border are being encouraged to practice catch-and-release fishing. "A 24-inch Red River catfish, weighing about 6 1/2 or 7 pounds, is 12 years old," said Drewes. "A 20-pound fish may be close to 20 years old."

According to Drewes, catch-and-release will not only sustain a quality fishing experience for more anglers, it will also improve the value of the research project.

"The more often a tagged fish is caught, and the information reported, the more that fish will be able to tell us," said Drewes. "An individual fish tagged at one location and caught and kept at another gives us one small piece of the puzzle. But knowing when and where the same fish was caught and released at several locations over a period of several years, and perhaps knowing how many other tagged and untagged fish were caught along with it, will tell us a whole lot more. It's possible we could be collecting information for 10 years or more, and that would be great."

Anglers catching fish tagged in the United States—those with yellow tags—are asked to send their catch information to the Department of Biology, Box 8238, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, ND 58202. Information on Canadian catfish, which have a red or blue tag, should be sent to the Catfish Program, Manitoba Ministry of Natural Resources Fisheries Branch, Box 20, 1495 St. James Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba R3H0W9.

The third objective of the research project will be to gather recreational use and economic data related to catfish tourism in the Red River Valley. Project officials have applied for a grant from the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCMR) to conduct such a survey.

"A recreation and economic survey would help us identify the economic contributions of this resource to communities along the river," said Drewes, "as well as identify angler needs such as the best locations to add river access sites and shore-fishing facilities."

The recreation and economic survey would be conducted over a period of two or three years. In the meantime, researchers will continue to collect and analyze tagging date for another eight years. Another fish population survey would be conducted in the year 2000 unless there was a major flood before then.

"A major spring flood would allow fish to travel freely back and forth across all the dams in the system," said Drewes. "We'd probably go right in the same year with another comprehensive survey to see how the fish were redistributed.

"Right now there are eight low-head dams on the U.S. portion of the river that restrict fish migration at certain times of the year to certain segments of the river," explained Drewes. "One of the questions we'd like to answer with our research is whether there is any connection between spawning success and the distribution of trophy sized fish, and regular flooding in the river system," Drewes said. "This information is essential for understanding the potential impacts of flood control measures on this unique resource.

"Time is a critical factor in the decision making process," Drewes said. "But time is the one advantage we have with the Red River; we are looking toward the future while the quality of fishing is still pretty good. With cooperative research and management efforts, we should be able to make a real difference in future catfish populations and sustain a quality fishery resource."

Minnesota and North Dakota anglers in possession of a resident or nonresident fishing license from either state may fish the Red River from shore in either state, but only one limit of fish may be taken, even if the angler holds licenses from both states.

There are only eight public boat access sites on the Red River. They are located along Highway 175 west of Hallock, and in the communities of Oslo, Grand Forks, East Grand Forks, Hendrum, Fargo, Moorhead, Breckenridge and Wahpeton.

Canada goose hunt planned Sept. 1-10 in three DNR zones

Individuals interested in participating in the Sept. 1-10 Canada goose seasons will need to apply for a permit by July 31, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Early Canada goose seasons will be held in three areas during 1992: Fergus Falls/Alexandria Zone, Southwest Border Zone (Jackson and Martin counties) and the Twin Cities Metro Zone.

"These seasons are held prior to the arrival of migrant Canada geese from Manitoba and northern Canada," said Tim Bremicker, DNR Section of Wildlife Chief. "By hunting in September we direct hunting pressure toward the Minnesota resident goose flocks rather than migrant Canada geese. These Minnesota flocks need additional hunting pressure to prevent local over-population and subsequent human-wildlife conflicts."

"Our agreement with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for conducting September Canada goose hunts requires that we obtain an annual estimate of hunter numbers and goose harvest," Bremicker said. "The $3 permit provides hunter addresses and funding necessary to administer the special hunt and survey."

Hunters must have the special goose hunt permit in their possession to participate in these September seasons. Permit applications are available from county auditors, DNR wildlife offices, license agents, and the DNR License Bureau in St. Paul. To apply, mail an application with the $3 fee in a business-sized envelope to the address provided on the application. A separate application must be submitted for each hunt.

Applications must be postmarked or delivered to the address given on the application by 4:30 p.m. Friday, July 31. An unlimited number of permits will be issued.

In addition to a valid special permit, hunters must have a current small game license, federal duck stamp and Minnesota migratory waterfowl stamp in accordance with state and federal regulations.

All three seasons will be Sept. 1 through Sept. 10, with shooting hours from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset daily. Canada goose bag limits will be four daily and eight in possession in the Twin Cities Metro Zone, and two daily

IT WAS ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL COUNTY FAIR
Support and Cooperation of So Many People Made the 91st Annual Pennington County Fair Another Success!

The work of volunteers who spend so many hours of donated time with the help of County and City Workers is made less difficult by the people who enter exhibits and those who attend events and enjoy themselves at the annual fair. We thank all for their participation and dedication again this year.

Attendance at the bandshell was again this year excellent, with the combined financial effort of the Elks Lodge 1308 and St. Hilaire Community Club and the Pennington County Fair pickup raffle.

THANKS, AGAIN
For Making The Pennington County Fair a Thing Of Pride In a Proud Community.

LEC officials to investigate rash of burglaries

Police in Thief River Falls and the Pennington county sheriff's department are investigating a rash of burglaries.

Pennington county sheriff's department received four reports of burglaries from local businesses in the county and one vandalism. Pennington county sheriff Bob Wold said there are indications that all five incidents are related.

The sheriff's department received the first report at 8:48 a.m. on Saturday, July 11, from Holtan Iron. Someone had broken through the front window of the business. An undetermined amount of money was taken.

The second report came at 11:15 a.m. from Nelson Implement. Entry was gained through a back door and a tool box and tools valued at between $300 and $400 were taken.

The third report came at 1:07 p.m. from Bob Auto Sales. A tool box and tools were taken from a vehicle on the lot.

The fourth report came at 1:54 p.m. from Hubert's. Two stereos from one customer's vehicle on the lot was taken. There was evidence that someone had gone through several other cars.

The fifth report came from Safe-Key storage which reported that a gallon of paint had been thrown through an office window. Nothing is missing.

All five incidents are under investigation.

The Thief River Falls police department also received a report of a burglary to a local business. On Monday at 7:33 a.m. Thief River Oil reported that someone had pried open a door and had taken one pair of sunglasses, 14 cartons of cigarettes, $100 cash, a case of pop, some deli sandwiches and several other miscellaneous items. The total theft loss was estimated at $500. Damage was estimated at $31. The incident is under investigation.

Rupprechts host Polled Hereford state field day

Ran[illegible]line Polled Herefords, owned and operated by Daryl Rupprecht of rural Thief River Falls, hosted the Minnesota Polled Hereford field day Friday and Saturday, June 26 and 27, at the Donald and Margaret Rupprecht farm eight miles northeast of Thief River Falls.

Approximately 150 people from Minnesota and North Dakota visited the farm for the two day event to show and view the more than 20 Polled Hereford cows and calves that were entered in competition or on display.

Activity began Friday afternoon with arrival of cattle and junior exhibitors at the Rupprecht farm. Junior picnic was held at 7 p.m. and at 8 p.m. Van Swanson, Pennington county 4-H club agent, spoke on "Animal Welfare/Animal Rights."

Registration and viewing of cattle began at 9 a.m. Saturday with the Junior Polled Hereford show starting at 10 a.m. Welcome and introduction of guests preceded the noon meal. Guests included Ken Harwell of Kansas City, MO, executive vice president of the American Polled Hereford association.

Fun events were held for the participants after the noon meal and at 2:30 p.m. Deb Gebeke of the North Dakota State University extension staff spoke on "Family Farm Relationships."

In a program distributed at the field day, Daryl Rupprecht gave a review of his involvement with Polled Herefords, noting that he purchased his first registered heifer from Dakitch Hereford Farms in 1979 as a 4-H club project. Other foundation females were purchased from Lone Pine Farms and were also for 4-H club projects.

"My interest in Polled Herefords kept growing and today I have a small herd of cows that has supported me through college.

Rhoda Wengeler receives award from LSS

When Rhoda Wengeler returned to school to get her degree in social work from the University of North Dakota, she thought she would eventually focus her energies on troubled teens. She was open to almost any area of social work, except work with the developmentally disabled. Ironically, she fell into an internship at the Occupational Developmental Center serving persons with developmental disabilities in Thief River Falls.

"I think there is always a reason for those things in your life," Wengeler said. "When my internship ended, they had a party for me, and it was hard to leave."

Rhoda Wengeler is now the coordinator of three 24-hour care facilities for the developmentally disabled operated by Lutheran Social Service in Thief River Falls, Crookston and Fosston areas. She oversees 28 staff people who work with nine adults and three children. "They have taught me a lot about myself," Wengeler said. "They taught me compassion and helped me to be less judgmental of other people."

In April, Lutheran Social Service honored Wengeler with the Homestead classification includes relatives

"I would like to make sure homeowners in our area are aware of an important change the Legislature made last session in tax laws covering homes occupied by relatives of the owner—which should result in lower property taxes," states Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

The new law extends homestead classification to most relative-occupied properties. Under the old law, the owner had to occupy the home for it to be classified as a homestead and get both the Homestead Credit and the lower tax rates applied to homestead property. But that rule overlooked the numerous cases where a parent or grandparent occupied a home owned by their child, or vice versa.

"Since that situation is much different than a rental involving strangers, many of us felt it shouldn't be treated that way," Rep. Sparby said.

Under the new law, if the home is occupied by a parent, step-parent, child, step-child, spouse, grandparent, grandchild, brother, sister, uncle or aunt of the property owner, that home can be classified as homestead property.

When classified as a homestead, the property would be taxed at one per cent of its value up to $72,000, and two per cent of the value in excess of $72,000. If not classified as homestead property, it would be taxed at a higher rate depending on its use. Furthermore, the Homestead Credit was not extended to non-

"Making A Difference" award. The award recognizes employees who bring a unique sense of "heart" and effectiveness to their work.

"She strives for a high quality of life for the residents, and treats everyone with respect," said Jayme Baird, a program counselor.

Wengeler helped open all three facilities with the first program in Thief River Falls opening in January 1989. Two others opened in 1991 in Crookston and Fosston. Remodeling to meet needs of disabled, organizing records and meeting with parents and social workers were all part of the process. While the projects were highly time-intensive, Wengeler said she thrives on her work.

"I love my work! This is a great place to be."

Lutheran Social Service of Minnesota is the largest non-profit provider of services to the developmentally disabled serving nearly 400 children and adults in over 40 group homes and smaller living arrangements statewide. Other agency programs include counseling, adoption, guardianship, refugee resettlement, senior nutrition services, chaplaincy, in-home counseling and group homes for troubled teens.

to the herd's success in all positive ways," he added. "The cow herd now contains bloodlines from the most popular pedigrees in the industry. Cows are rigidly culled if they do not perform with their contemporaries.

"Herd sires are selected on visual appraisal, performance and EPDs....Our goal is to breed Polled Herefords for efficiency and adaptability with the performance that can add profits into purebred and commercial programs."

homestead property.

"However, the new law states that the relative-occupant is not eligible for either a renter's credit or the homeowner's property tax refund. That's to prevent people from exploiting the new law by claiming multiple homesteads through various family members," Rep. Sparby added.

"The Legislature's aim is that with this new law, grandma and grandpa can stay in their own home, or a parent can provide a home to a child, without worrying about property tax complications or getting hit with a big property tax hike. Persons with questions should contact the Pennington, Red Lake or Marshall county property tax office (auditor) for more details and information."

FAITH DECLARES A BUDGET VACATION AN ENJOYABLE ONE

Vacation time is here for many of us, and this year it may have to be a low budget one. However, wherever we live in this wonderful country, there is always something beautiful to see nearby, as well as some fun things to do; even if we just lounge around the back yard and maybe take an occasional ride to the woods or a beach, if there's one handy. It's not necessary to spend a lot of money in order to have a good time, escape from the cares and chores of the rest of the year, and see the wonders of nature. Just remember that God made this world we live in, and He put a lot of beauty into it that man, with all his huge shopping malls, etc., cannot completely eradicate. Remember also that God will be watching over you, whether you're at home or away.

So didst thou travel on life's way, in cheerful godliness.
- William Wordsworth

and will keep thee
whither thou goest."

The Strandquist Senior Citizens met at the Center on Thursday, July 2nd with 13 members and eight guests. The rainy weather was blamed for bringing some of them the arthritis pains and also the muddy streets they had to contend with that day. In spite of that Anna Setten sewed away on the piece quilt and Helen Jacobson worked on dish towels. The hostess Anna Rud served a lovely lunch and she also won the door prize. Many of us in this area are looking for sunshine again but so far we have not much in sight. In fact, we are beginning to feel moldy and I noticed that moss is growing all the way around the oak trees in town.

About 100 family members of the former Robert and Nettie Koland gathered at the Anderson farmstead July 4th and 5th, for a family reunion. Many of the children attended along with other relatives. What about the safety of our children?

In our industry, it makes good sense to think safety day-in and day-out. But what about the safety of our children?

Far too often, missing and exploited children are a fact of life in today's world. But, like the demands of the traffic system, there are steps you can take to protect your children from these unthinkable consequences:

How To Help Your Children Protect Themselves

First of all, TALK to your children about some of the dangers they may face in your absence and tell them WHY it's important for them to follow these guidelines.

Guidelines For Your Children
- Never get into a car or go into a house without your parents' permission
- Don't give any information over the phone to someone you don't know
- Always play and walk to school and stores with friends
- Never go anywhere with anyone without your parents' permission
- Always keep your parents in sight in a public place. If you are separated from them in a store, ask a clerk for help.

Bernie Omann Has The Right Idea On Finance

State Rep. Bernie Omann, the I-R endorsed candidate for Seventh District Congressman, has the right idea on campaign financing. He has announced, through his campaign finance director Mary Beth Megarry, that his campaign will accept no more than 25 per cent of its funds from Political Action Committees (PACs).

"People are weary and rightly distrustful of the huge amounts of special interest money that pours into campaign coffers," Megarry says. "And it has been widely reported in the media that those contributions often lead to the contributors getting exactly what they want from elected officials."

In the three months since Omann has begun an active campaign, he has raised $51,000, all from individual contributions and none from PACs. That isn't a lot of money for a congressional race, and it will have to grow if Omann is to mount an effective campaign against the incumbent, Congressman Collin Peterson.

Omann has criticized Congressman Peterson for raising 71 per cent of his campaign money from PACs, most notably big labor. Megarry renewed Omann's earlier challenge that all campaigns in the district agree to accept no more than 25 per cent of their campaign funds from PACs.

"When Congressmen or candidates raise the vast majority of their campaign funds from special interests rather than citizens, you have to wonder how much support they have within their actual districts—and whose interests they are going to represent when they cast their votes in Washington," Megarry added.

Now there are people who contend—and justifiably so—that it is easier to say you will turn down what you don't expect to get than it is to turn your back on buckets of bucks handed to you with very little effort on your own part. There is no sacrifice in such a challenge, but there is good reason for it. It is certainly dangerous to have a republic operated by the best politicians that money can buy.

Omann is an aggressive campaigner who is on the move throughout the sprawling Seventh District. He has been in the Thief River Falls area at least three times in the early stages of his campaign. Perhaps his candidacy will be a "good Omann" for the district.

We hope he continues to adhere to his PAC limitation whatever his public office status. Sen. Paul Wellstone is apparently one office holder who has taken a different view of PACs as an incumbent than he did as a challenger. Funny how perspectives change when the seemingly unreachable suddenly drops into your hand. But we think Omann has the right idea in limiting PAC participation in election campaign financing, although we don't expect those candidates who have PAC support to turn it down in any great amount.

Not All Wildlife Is Endangered

Aaron Pass, writing a column for PM Editorial Services, says that if you watch enough of the "nature specials" appearing on television, you might draw the conclusion that all of the world's wildlife is on the brink of extinction.

"From hummingbirds in Hawaii to condors in California, the death knell of a species is a recurrent litany in many nature programs," he writes. "Bad news is good news when it draws both viewers and contributions."

And he also observes correctly that "unfortunately, hunters often are blamed by a frequently simple-minded media approach to endangered wildlife.

"Of course, we all know of the plight of the African elephant, decimated by ivory poachers—or do we? In East Africa, the elephant is in dire straits, but we seldom hear about the thriving elephant herds in southern Africa. There, scientific and professional wildlife management uses selective 'culling,' (including licensed hunting) to control elephant numbers, reduce poaching and fund programs benefiting elephants and other wildlife species."

In pioneer days wildlife in America was indeed exploited. "In the East, bison and elk were eliminated and the white-tailed deer and wild turkey nearly so," Pass writes. "With westward expansion, plains bison, elk and pronghorn antelope were hunted for the market. North American wildlife reached its lowest ebb toward the end of the 19th century.

"A conservation-minded President, Theodore Roosevelt halted the destruction, with the support of America's sportsmen. Wild lands were protected as national parks and forests, commercial hunting was stopped and sport hunting was placed under controls.

"Ninety years ago, the Eastern white-tailed deer were scarce; today, the deer population exceeds 20 million—possibly more than existed when Columbus discovered America. The wild turkey—almost gone by the turn of the century—now is numerous, occupying much of the range in which it flourished at the time of the Pilgrims! In the West, elk and pronghorn antelope are abundant, and even the plains bison fare well on the limited range that an expanded human population will allow.

"These days," Pass writes, "it is not the gun, but the chainsaw and bulldozer wielded by human encroachment that endanger the most wildlife. As rain forests fall and wild habitats are turned into human habitats, some wildlife species indeed are endangered.

"At the same time, we have amassed an enviable record of wildlife restoration through good management, and today, many wildlife species are not at risk but are doing quite well."

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Several weeks ago I read an article in a magazine put out by another religion. Something in the article has been pressing on my mind ever since. The article had to do with the high cost of making someone a god! The figure was 98 million dollars—for that amount of money certain publishing companies could help you create your own little god, thereby establishing another false religion!

Since my conversion, it always amazed me how such "intelligent" Americans can be fooled so easily by the devil's old tricks! Even in politics, the 98 million dollar candidates are setting up shop in an effort to become a god unto themselves. When will we ever learn? How many of these false gods, with their obvious price tags in open display, will it take for the economic ruin of America to take place before we see through the smoke screen? How many good, church-going folks have been skinned already through the gods of materialism, humanism, scientism, traditionalism and self-deism?

Too many well-meaning, honest individuals have been fooled by the 98 million dollar look, and deceived by TV evangelists and celebrities of our day. The cults and false churches have had a real financial "hey-day" at our expense and heartache!

What's the point? Just this. Deuteronomy 13: 1-5 calls for the death penalty for the "dreamer of dreams" who cultivates and creates false religious systems. Now, if we shot all the people following these dreamers, who would be left?

The revival of the U.S., whether it be economic, political or spiritual is entirely dependent upon our willingness and readiness to follow the one true God that is not false, even though He does own the cattle on a thousand hills....and the hills, too! Ninety-eight million dollars could not even begin to estimate the value of His wisdom!

Be watchful! (Matthew 7:15)

Save electrical energy while taking vacation

Taking a few simple steps to reduce home energy waste while you are away on vacation is important in summer as well as winter, advises the Minnesota Department of Public Service (DPS). The measures take very little time, cost nothing, and will reduce costs to your pocketbook and the environment.

"This kind of easy-to-do energy savings, multiplied by hundreds and thousands of households, has a definite impact on total energy use," said Kris Sanda, Commissioner of the DPS. "We hope everyone's energy awareness will increase to the point that they routinely consider such savings," said Kris Sanda, Commissioner of the DPS.

Here are the measures recommended by DPS energy specialists:

- Turn the water heater to its lowest possible setting.
- Draw the shades or blinds on the sunniest sides of the house and close the storm windows if you have combination windows. Remember, the same devices used to keep out cold winter winds also keep out hot summer air.
- Unplug electric clocks and all appliances, except the refrigerator and freezer. "Be sure not to forget the VCR," said Phil Smith, DPS energy specialist. "You can gain some idea of the energy this appliance uses, even in its 'resting' state, by placing your hand on top of it and feeling the heat—hours after it has been turned off."
- Set the thermostat on its highest setting, or turn the air conditioner off.
- Use a timer to bring on a security light for a few hours each evening while you are gone, and use a compact fluorescent or other energy-saving lamp as your security light.

As the state agency responsible for developing energy policies that protect the environment, the DPS has available a variety of consumer information brochures on ways to avoid energy waste at home and work. Energy specialists also staff a DPS telephone answer line. If you have energy questions, call the DPS toll free 1-800-652-9747 and ask for "Energy."

Admission is free and coffee and cookies will be available. Live music will also be provided in the Centennial building.

Janese Buzzell, new owner at Health Food Specialties on Main avenue in Thief River Falls, recently received a First Dollar award from the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors. The store carries flours, breads, and grocery items, vegetarian products, vitamins and supplements, homeopathic remedies, aroma therapy products, spices and herbs, juicers, body building product, organic meats and product, books, and specialty products for people with allergies and special diet needs. Anything they don't carry can be ordered. Buzzell said she always wanted to have a health food store. The best part of running the business, she said, is the customer. Commander Dave Odette of the Thief River Falls Civil Air Patrol Squadron accepts the local squadron's charter and emblem at the charter night program recently at the Thief River Falls regional airport. Col. Jerry Quilling, inspector for the Minnesota Civil Air Patrol Wing headquarters in Minneapolis (right), made the official presentation.

Civil Air Patrol at TRF given charter

Just five months after an organizational meeting was held February 12 at the Thief River Falls regional airport, a Civil Air Patrol Squadron for Thief River Falls has received its charter from the Minnesota Wing Headquarters in Minneapolis.

Col. Jerry Quilling, Inspector for the state CAP, made the presentation recently at ceremonies held in the Thief River Falls technical college's training center at the airport. Accepting was Dave Odette, commander of the local squadron.

Following the ceremonies, Col. Quilling worked with the local squadron in answering questions and reviewing some of the things that the squadron will need to put in place in the next few months.

More than 100 people attended the February meeting with representatives on hand from the Thief River Falls city council and airport commission, chamber of commerce, CAP wing office and Duluth and Bemidji squadrons. The mayor of Red Lake Falls also attended.

Three weeks later a meeting was held—with 35 to 40 people attending—to determine if there was enough interest to organize a squadron in the Thief River Falls area. The decision was made to organize and the procedure toward receiving a charter was placed in motion.

The squadron presently has 26 members with Odette as commander and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf as deputy commander. Other officers are Sheriff Bob Wold, emergency services officer; Hardy Hodge, communications officer; Cliff Larson, public affairs officer; Brian Barth, logistics officer; Jan Heuer, administration officer; Wayne Schindler, safety officer; Pat Hoffman, flight operations officer; and Mark C. Larson, finance officer.

Since the Civil Air Patrol is a volunteer support organization with its specialty in air and ground search and rescue, April was used to teach the members the basics of first aid and CPR through an eight-hour First Responders course. One of the members used the training recently when he was first on the scene of a motorcycle accident.

Meetings in May were used to study aerial search procedures and to prepare for the Blue CAP (practice in aerial search) in June. This included gridding maps, determining positioning with the use of latitude and longitude in degrees, minutes and seconds and proper radio communications.

The Blue Cap drill was held June 26 and utilized a course around Thief River Falls with ground targets to find and identify. The route took about an hour to fly and radio communications were maintained with a portable communications center set up at the airport. Each aircraft carried a pilot and three observers.

On July 11 nine pilots attended the CAP flight clinic in Bemidji. Four-hour training sessions were held in the morning and covered FAA and CAP procedures as well as aircraft load and performance characteristics. In the afternoon the pilots flew with CAP instructors for in-flight upgrade training and testing to become qualified CAP pilots.

Commander Odette said efforts in the next six months will be concentrated on several areas:

- Obtaining fixed base radio equipment for a permanent communications center;

Patrick Jaeger found not guilty on sex charges

After two and one-half days of testimony, Patrick Lee Jaeger was found not guilty by a jury in Thief River Falls of criminal sexual misconduct.

Jaeger was charged with two counts of criminal sexual conduct in the third degree involving an adult female. A jury found him not guilty of those charges on Friday. Jaeger was represented in court by Al Larivee of Grand Forks.

Pennington county assistant attorney Al Rogalla, said he was not sure why the verdict went the way it did. He said he believes the jury, which was composed of about half women and half men, was a fair representation of Pennington county.

Nicole Paulson enters pageant

(This is the sixth in a series of articles about candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the official Miss America preliminary scholarship pageant Saturday, August 1, in the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Pageant tickets, all of which are for general admission seating this year, are now on sale at $5 each at Kezar Music and Ekeren Drug in Thief River Falls. Admission will be $6 at the door.)

Nicole Paulson

Nicole Paulson of Goodridge doesn't lament growing up in a small community and attending a small school. "It has given me the opportunity to participate in many extra-curricular activities, to receive support from teachers and community organizations, to develop personal qualities and achieve personal goals," she says.

Daughter of David and Diane Paulson, 18-year-old Nicole is five feet eight inches tall, has brown hair and green eyes. Her pageant talent number will be a flute solo entitled "Largo and Allegro" by Georg Philipp Telemann.

Nicole played flute in the Goodridge band from seventh through 12th grade and earned district double star rating on flute solos in 1990 and 1991. She was also a choir member for six years, a boys' basketball cheerleader for six years and played volleyball for three years.

Nicole won the cheerleader of the year award in 1987-88 and the most spirited basketball cheerleader award from 1988 through 1992. She took part in six cheerleading camps and two regional and state competitions.

An honor roll student since seventh grade, she was an honor graduate this spring. Homecoming queen in her senior year, she was also a sno-fest queen candidate in 1989 and 1990, student council secretary in 1991 and 1992, alternate to Girls' State in 1991 and received letterperson's and leadership awards in 1992.

Nicole has taken piano lessons for nine years and been a pianist for the Sunday school in her church as well as a Sunday school teacher.

Her hobbies include exercising, walking, playing the piano, camping, reading and spending time with friends and family. She has a 14-year-old brother, Troy.

Having taken college courses while in high school, she plans to graduate from Northland Community college in Thief River Falls next spring and attend Bemidji State university in the fall, majoring in elementary or special education. Serving as a peer tutor with elementary students while in high school influenced her decision.

"The children always had the ability to make me smile," she said. "I'll never forget the wonderful feeling of accomplishment and self worth I received teaching them a new skill or reinforcing an old one and touching their lives in a positive, caring way."

Public information effort starts on school district building plan

With a bond issue election set for September 15, the steering committee which recommended a restructuring plan to the board of School District 564 is moving ahead with a public information effort. The effort is geared to emphasizing the educational concept as well as the financial advantages under debt equalization funding through the State of Minnesota.

Tax impact figures on the nearly $18 million total project are included in a mailing being sent to taxpayers in the district this week.

"Our final financial run showed our local cost to be $3.8 million with the state picking up more than three-quarters of the project cost," states Key Teeters Asp, who chairs the steering committee. "The committee feels it's important for the individual taxpayers to see what their investment is going to be."

But she adds that the committee also wants the public to be aware that the project is more than just an exceptional financial bargain.

"We also want to show the district that the plan, especially the elementary concept, is really educationally sound," she said.

According to the plan—which was officially adopted by the board of education at a special meeting July 15—elementary instruction would be incorporated into a single campus center constructed off Pennington Avenue, south of the Abundant Life church. The building is planned to be about 131,000 square feet in size.

Heidi Hoks, who chaired the elementary subcommittee which recommended the plan, said the committee had been concerned about the size of the building, but is now comfortable with the way in which it is designed to serve young children.

"We like to think of the elementary complex as four little school houses, sharing cafeteria, physical education, music and library services," Hoks said. "Grade levels are grouped two by two into separate wings, each with its own restrooms, computer labs, playground and teacher preparation area."

Hoks said the plan provides for individual attention in a small school atmosphere but would eliminate duplication of services in several buildings and student transfers to balance class size.

Student transfers have been a difficult problem in the district for a number of years, Hoks said.

"It just isn't educationally sound," she said. "In fact, it's cruel to move a child from one building to another just to balance class size. This has been a real hardship for our families. For the last two years the district administration has made a concerted effort not to move children, but now some classes are pushing 30 or more students. That truly limits the amount of time teachers can spend with individual students and it's more than our classrooms were designed to accommodate."

According to the conceptual plan prepared by the architectural firm of Dana, Larson, Roubal and Associates, preschool children would have their own instruction and activity area in the new elementary building. Kindergarten and first grade would share one wing of the building, second and third grades would share a second wing and fourth and fifth grades would have their own "school house" in a third wing. Each wing would be fitted with updated instructional technology and age-appropriate equipment," Hoks said.

"The plan includes separate unloading areas for school buses and private traffic," Hoks said. "I think we're very eager to see how the transportation department is going to handle busing for the new school. Although more than 70 per cent of the district's children already ride buses, it's going to be a transition for the 30 per cent who have walked to school every day."

Representatives of the steering committee are now making appearances at meetings of organizations in the community to outline the restructuring plan.

Dear Readers,

A nurse attended the funeral of a former patient, who had been hospitalized for several weeks. She had cared for this woman often, and was on duty the night she died. After the service, the husband of the deceased reached out his hand to this nurse who had been so compassionate. "You know, my wife really loved you. Your gentleness and concern made all the difference in the world."

There are many we cannot cure - but few we cannot comfort.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

Larry Belmont

WE Fest opens Friday, Aug. 7 with its tenth anniversary. Twelve big-name country singers and bands are scheduled to perform at the three day event which runs until Sunday, Aug. 9.

WE Fest is located at the Soo Pass Ranch in Detroit Lakes. Its organizers expect over 100,000 visitors for the event. Ninety-six thousand people attended in 1991. The largest audience for a performer was last year's 38,000 crowd for Kenny Rogers.

Ingrid Morken in program for young scholars

Ingrid Morken, daughter of David and Mary Morken of Thief River Falls, is one of 20 academically talented high school sophomores and juniors participating in the fifth National Science Foundation (NSF) Young Scholars program at the University of Wisconsin - Superior.

In addition to Minnesota and Wisconsin, states represented by students in the program include California, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Texas and New York.

The program is called "Modeling Acid Deposition" and deals with acid rain. It is designed to increase the participants' knowledge of and exposure to science and mathematics and stimulate interest in science disciplines as possible career choices.

"The program also increases student awareness of the academic preparation necessary for science careers," states Dr. Francis Florey, director of the program. "It acquaints the students with the environment and resources of universities and contributes to students' confidence in their ability to make career decisions."

Focusing on acid rain, students learn chemistry, biology, applied mathematics and computer modeling through a combination of classroom and laboratory experiences, field trips and special guest lectures.

Field trips include a visit to Superior's Midwest Energy low sulfur coal facility, a tour of the Clay Boswell power plant near Grand Rapids and a two-day camping trip near acid sensitive lakes in Vilas county. Students will also visit a National Atmospheric Deposition Program site at Trout Lake to observe how data is gathered.

"Using this data, they work in groups of four with senior staff members to develop a predictive model for acid rain based on chemical components such as sulphate, nitrate, calcium and ammonium," Dr. Florey added.

They study with a chemistry professor to gain the background necessary to understand the data that is being modeled and with a biology professor and research scientist to learn the environmental effects of acid rain.

Students learn the multiple linear regression techniques and computer modeling to develop their own models, and during the fifth and final week of the program they have an opportunity to explain and defend their models to the staff and other students.

"These are bright, highly motivated students and a pleasure to work with," Dr. Florey said. "We try to make this a positive experience that the students will carry with them throughout their lives. These are the types of students that will assure this country remains in the forefront of science and technology."

Dr. Florey said that the NSF has funded the program at the University of Wisconsin for well over $250,000 since 1988.

Impressions . . .

Beth Johnson

The race has began. From the radio and television, from the newspapers and magazines, come the promises and promises and promises of our Presidential candidates. By the time November's Presidential election is over, we will have been inundated in the political drama of yet another Presidential election.

This past week, we listened as the Democratic candidates began their campaign in earnest. The convention itself did not seem to be remarkable. It seemed to be merely a formality. I was reminded of the Democratic convention in Chicago in 1968 in which formality was replaced by rioting. I was of the age of the protesters of that convention—so were this year's candidates. Did we of that troubled era ever think that our generation would be party to a "formal" political convention? Did we of that generation realize that we would one day be a part of the status quo political parties? This year, as youth is a common ingredient in the Democratic candidates for our top elected offices, we can but wonder what, if anything, has changed.

I listened to the speeches of the Democratic candidates as they accepted their party's nomination for President and Vice President. One speech was more enthusiastic, people inspiring, voter inspiring. The other speech was more difficult to listen to and become inspired. Both speeches promised actions and results to the actions. Both speeches spoke of inaction and broken promises by the current governing party.

As I listened, I wondered if all political candidates really think that the public is as dumb as they must think we are. Do they not know that we have minds? Do they not know that we know that they will most likely not keep their promises? Do they not know that we know how difficult it will be for them to be able to accomplish all that they think they can accomplish?

We, the public are not dumb. We see that governments fail. We see our government fails us daily. We see the compromising which is continually in evidence so that all political parties and interests and lobbying groups can get something of what their particular group needs. We know that the promises made during a campaign will most likely be broken.

The politicians must be overwhelmed at the helplessness they must feel when confronting the burdens of our society. How will they truly balance the budget and also see that our national defense is strong and also see that little children get fed and people are employed? How truly will they solve the social issues of homelessness and abortion? The politicians must be overwhelmed by the faith and trust we the people need to place in them so that somehow just a little bit will be accomplished.

So, if politicians are overwhelmed by the impossible task they face and if they are overwhelmed by the enormous problems our country faces, what can they do to convince the public that their ways are better than their opponents? We the public are tired of promises and more promises. We know that they will be broken. How can we be convinced that a candidate is the better one for which we should vote?

The answer is also not simple. The answer actually started long before the campaign. The qualities of honesty, integrity, hard work and stability are but a few of the qualities we as a public will be searching for in our candidates. We will also be searching for consistency in life styles and work styles. We will be watching the actions, and not always listening to the words of the candidates. We will be reading and listening to informed sources about the candidates' past accomplishments.

In the end, each candidate will be judged by each voting individual as to his merit for the position. Fancy words and lots of promises are not what we the public want. We want someone who perhaps has the integrity to take a bit of time to make sure that among the myraid of promises, the Scripture he quotes is quoted accurately. Integrity, accuracy, honesty, will speak louder than yet another promise.

Plummer

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District I

Every time a complicated law is passed, there's a good chance some people will violate it because they did not understand it. Now there is a new program to help people understand a complicated federal law.

It is called the Small Business Air Quality Compliance Assistance Program. It is designed to help small businesses comply with the federal Clean Air Act.

This effort is necessary because the Clean Air Act will affect many small business owners. Many of these owners do not have the technical expertise needed to wade through the regulations.

Information and technical assistance will be provided to help comply with state and federal regulations. Businesses with fewer than 100 employees will be eligible.

To make sure that small businesses get the services they need from the program, an ombudsman will be appointed for them. This person will oversee the program and will represent the concerns of small business.

So that small business owners will have a voice in how the program is operated, an advisory panel will be established. This nine-member will report to the Pollution Control Agency on the program's effectiveness.

A fair and controversial amendment to this bill also removed a $30,000 cap on what the state's largest polluters pay in fees. Air quality programs are partially paid for by these fees.

One of the reasons I was a co-author on this measure was because I believe people sometimes need assistance figuring out new laws and regulations. This is particularly true in the complicated world of environmental law.

I also believe that people want to obey the law. The only way they can do that is if they get enough information to know what new laws mean.

For Adults

"An Eye for an Eye" - by Joseph Telushkin: This mystery confronts one of the more pressing questions of our time—is the Biblical demand "an eye for an eye, a life for a life", revenge or justice"? When one murder sets off another, in revenge, and then—following the court case, another revenge murder, the whole issue comes to question.

"Growing Up Again" - by Jean Illsley Clarke - Jean Illsley Clarke, author of "Self-Esteem: A Family Affair," has now written a book for adults on reparenting their own inner child, which can assist in developing new parenting skills and self-esteem for parents, themselves. Charts, illustrations, and helpful exercises assist in showing effects on children of parental behavior and help parents modify their own behavior, this giving them better parenting skills.

"Paradise" - by Judith McNaught: This romance is a heart-moving love story about Meredith Bancroft, a beautiful blonde executive with her family's firm of Vancroft & Company, and Matthew Farrell, a dynamic and relentless corporate tycoon whose business was acquiring multinational companies. "Paradise" is the story of their destined lives together.

The Peterson Report

I recently cohosted an informal summit meeting with Canadian and American legislators on issues affecting our common border. Bob Nault, the Member of Parliament from across the border, and I believe that most of these problems should be solved by elected representatives. We gathered together a group of legislators from our respective states and provinces to begin work on solving these continuing problems.

The issue of work permits for border guides was at the top of our agenda. Currently our resort owners are caught in a "Catch 22" situation because the Canadians want to force them to hire some Canadian guides, but our current immigration laws forbid this. We decided to work for a change in immigration regulations which would treat fishing guides like musicians; musicians are freely granted work permits under a special exception on either side of the border.

The issue of whether Lake of the Woods should be considered international waters will be taken up by a working group under the U.S.-Canadian Free Trade Agreement later this month. Hopefully, this will resolve the status of these waters once and for all.

We also agreed to work to standardize fishing regulations on the border waters. Legislators from both sides agreed that consistent regulations are necessary to preserve the productivity of the fisheries. Besides, it is simply not fair to have fishermen from one side of the border treated differently than fishermen from the other side. We know that banning commercial fishing has been good for the economy on our side of the border. The Canadians understood that consistent regulations are necessary to protect those gains.

The Canadians asked for our help in having Rainy River designated as an agricultural port of entry so their cattle haulers can take the short way across to Manitoba. Likewise, the Canadians agreed to help us get a 24 hour port of entry on Highway 59 at Lancaster. We are also going to work together to once again permit Canadian Customs to do entry inspections at the airport in Baudette, which will save everyone hassles.

The Canadians raised the issue of development and pressure placed on the lake by our side; we raised the issue of commercial netting on their side. We also discussed possible solutions to the Lac la Croix situation.

Our next meeting is scheduled for the fall. We can't solve these problems overnight, but this meeting demonstrated our commitment to work together. There are always border issues and leaving them to the buresucrsts will mean they never get solved. I intend to change that.

...No Bumper Sticker

So I heard the news that Ross Perot stepped out of the presidential race. And here I was even considering putting a bumper sticker on my car.

I was waiting to hear Mr. Perot's stand on the issues before I bought the sticker, but I thought, from what he had been saying, that he might be the man for the job this year. He appeared to have a good head on his shoulders and a good grasp on the issues, and knew just what was wrong with the country.

I was eagerly waiting for him to reveal the plans he had for fixing up the country, so I could see if he was really the man I wanted for president. I figured he would soon be telling us exactly what steps he was going to take to get everything shipshape.

I'm glad I didn't buy a bumper sticker. They are hard to remove.

What bothers me isn't so much that Mr. Perot quit in the middle of a campaign. I've seen that happen a lot in every presidential election that I can remember. Seems to me a lot of the "quitters" were my choices, too, but that is another story.

What bothers me about Mr. Perot is the fact that I never found out what wonderful solutions he had. What was he going to do to fix everything he said was wrong with the country? I want to know.

I feel abandoned. It's a bit like having an old stove that doesn't work very well. I feel as if I had called in a repair man to fix my stove and he looked at it and told me all the terrible things that were wrong and needed fixing right away, and then turned around and left without doing anything.

Now I feel like I have to find myself another repair man immediately, because this stove is in really bad shape, much worse than I thought it was, and I have no idea where to start looking for such an expert person who can fix a stove that is in such bad shape.

Maybe it would have been better if I hadn't called the repair man at all. I would have gone on using the stove the way it was, wiggling the knobs now and then and kicking it, and never have known just how bad it really was.

Then again, come to think of it, maybe it was better to find out the truth about the stove. It might be better to know what needs fixing and then get a good man in to do the job so the stove doesn't blow up or fall apart.

I guess I'll start looking around for another good repair man right now. But I will not buy a bumper sticker.

To The Editor:

What an exciting week for Thief River Falls!

First the Lincoln High School Band returned from its performances at the Calgary Stompede with third place winnings and $1,500 in prize money. Not only did they earn this recognition, their behavior was exemplary! We had raves from the chaperones...the bus drivers...the restaurants and Canadian Escorts.

One of the escorts said our Lincoln Band was the best behaved she ever worked with. She even took the band's soiled flags home and laundered them so they'd be fresh for the next day.

The weather didn't cooperate—it rained on their parade every day—but it didn't dampen their spirits. We congratulate the parents, the students, the chaperones, the fundraisers, the school, and most of all, director Bruce Felt for extracting all this musical talent. Keep up the good work; we are very proud of you.

Secondly, the production of "Annie" was just superb. I've never enjoyed a performance more and it was wonderful to see all the community interest.

A musical production such as "Annie" is quite an undertaking and Jane Olson is to be commended—along with all the outstanding performers. We are so proud of you and realize all the long, hard hours spent on rehearsing, sets, advertising and clean-up.

I know it's too much to expect, but I hope you can do another one soon. Pat yourselves on the back.... it was wonderful!

We're fortunate in Thief River Falls to find dedicated directors willing to develop all this talent in our community. Many thanks.

Sincerely,
Annette Bergan

Legion 5-1 in Duluth event

■ TRF first in runner-up bracket

Five wins in six tries at the Lakeview Classic produced a Thief River Falls championship finish in the runner-up portion of the multiple division 25-team American Legion baseball tournament played in Duluth Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The tournament began with five groups of five-team round-robin play. The top ten teams, record-wise, moved on – the top four qualifiers playing in the championship bracket, with the next four finishers competing in the runner-up bracket, while the No. 9-10 teams met in a consolation game.

Post 117 began the round-robin portion of the tournament with an 8-4 win over Cloquet, before losing to eventual finalist Hopkins 4-3. Thief River Falls bounced back to beat Anoka 3-2 and handled Ely 16-3.

Thief River Falls then knocked off the Tri-City Blues from the New Brighton suburban area 11-3 and stopped host Duluth Lakeview 12-3 in runner-up bracket match-ups.

"I was really pleased with the effort, especially the way they came back after losing to Hopkins," reported Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "They were down after the loss to Hopkins, but they responded really well. Everybody played, and everybody contributed. It was a team effort. We didn't have to rely on any one individual. A lot of different kids came through for us in different ways at different times during the tournament."

It was the third solid tournament effort of the summer for Post 117 – a winner at the Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks Invitationals earlier.

A 10-game Thief River Falls win streak ended in a 2-0, 10-3 doubleheader loss at Fargo July 11. Shorthanded Post 117 then lost a 12-2 five-inning decision in the first half of a July 15 twinbill at Fergus Falls before overcoming a 4-1 seventh inning deficit to claim a 5-4 nine-inning victory in the nightcap prior to the Duluth trip.

One week of regular season play remains, starting with a 5:30 p.m. doubleheader at Moorhead on Wednesday. The schedule then wraps up at Irv Wilson Field with a 5:30 p.m. doubleheader against Roseau Friday and a 5:30 p.m. single game against Detroit Lakes the following Tuesday – with Detroit Lakes playing Crookston in the second half of the split twinbill in Thief River Falls that night.

The eight-team state tournament-qualifying Ninth District playoffs will get underway July 30 at Matson Field in Moorhead.

Grygla graduate in football game...

Rychlock headed to all-star contest

Jeremy Rychlock

Jeremy Rychlock of Grygla will be part of the cast reporting for the 1992 Kemps Classic Minnesota high school all-star football game when a one-week training camp opens Sunday, July 26, at the University of Minnesota.

Rychlock, who helped lead Grygla-Goodridge to a runner-up finish in the 1991 Nine-Man state football playoffs, will be a member of the Outstate team that will meet the Metro squad in the 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 1, football game at the University of St. Thomas in St. Paul. He is listed on the roster as a 6-1, 225-pound offensive guard.

The game, which features last year's outstanding senior players, is a project of the Minnesota High School Football Coaches Association. Kemps is in its second year as the title sponsor.

Other area players on the Outstate team include runningback Jason Miller, Mahnomen; center Bryan Boll, Crookston; offensive tackle Chris Bergstrom, Warroad; defensive end Ryan Tangen, Win-E-Mac; offensive tackle Jeff Nelson, Detroit Lakes; and nose guard John Winter, Waubun.

John Feterick of Mahnomen is one of the assistant coaches on the Outstate team, headed by Steve Solem, who led BOLD to the 1990 and 1991 Class B state titles.

Mike Grant, whose Forest Lake team lost to in double-overtime to eventual Class AA state champion Burnsville in the 1991 playoffs, will be the head coach of the Metro team.

The 1992 Outstate-Metro match-up will be the 13th meeting in the annual all-star series, which is tied at six games apiece. The Metro team won three of the first four games, prompting speculation that the talent from the Twin Cities was superior and a change in format would be necessary. "There was a concern raised, but then the Outstate won three of the next four games and there has been no talk of changing the format since," said Game Director Jim Dotseth.

Included on the two rosters are several players headed for major college football programs, including Bergstrom and Mark Tangen (Concordia Academy), who will attend the University of Minnesota; Mike McCullough (Chaska), Notre Dame; Graham Gnos (Bloomington Jefferson), Northwestern; Jamal Clark (Hopkins), UCLA; Steve Rosga (Cretin/Durham-Hall), Colorado; and Pat Larson (Stillwater), Wyoming.

Tickets are available in advance from high school football coaches with players in the game, and will be sold at St. Thomas beginning at 6 p.m. on game day. Tickets are priced at $6 and $4 when purchased in advance; $7 and $5 at the gate.

Insurance Update

by Dee Schmidtgall

Insurance coverage is not something anyone wants to think about-UNTIL YOU NEED IT. The following questions and answers can possibly prevent a misunderstanding of your rights as a policyholder.

1) Can a company cancel an insurance policy?

Yes, but an insurance policy is a legal contract. It can be cancelled only for the reasons listed in the policy.

2) Can an insurance company decide not to renew a policy?

Yes, but Minnesota requires companies to give 60 days notice to their policyholders before coverage ends.

3) What can you do if your policy is not renewed?

If the reasons for non-renewal are not stated on your notice, call your agent or the company right away. Your agent, however, may have ceased working with the company. In this case, the agent has a moral responsibility to help you find replacement coverage-even if it means sending you to another agent.

The staff at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is available to assist you with your insurance concerns. Our office is located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Sentencing of TRF man

Sentencing for a Thief River Falls man accused of possession of a controlled substance took place in a Ninth District court in Thief River Falls on Monday.

Steven Mark Beich, who pled guilty to two counts of possession of a controlled substance in Pennington county and one count of possession of a controlled substance in the third degree in Kittson county was sentenced before Judge Dennis Murphy in a Ninth District court in Pennington county on Monday.

Murphy sentenced Beich to six months in jail to be served concurrently with six months in jail on the charge in Kittson county. Beich was assessed a $300 fine for the two charges of fifth degree possession of a controlled substance in Pennington county. He was also assessed a $750 fine for the charge in Kittson county.

Regents pave way for UMC 4-year campus

In a unanimous vote Friday, July 10, the University of Minnesota board of regents approved a mission change for the University of Minnesota—Crookston, paving the way for expanding the campus to a four year institution.

The regents will vote on baccalaureate programs this fall, the Higher Education Coordinating Board will review the programs in late fall and those approved will begin in the fall of 1993, according to UMC Chancellor Donald Sargeant.

"Today's action by the University of Minnesota Board of Regents is the first step toward the goal of providing select baccalaureate degrees on the campus in Crookston," Sargeant said. "It has involved a tremendous amount of consultation from within the university and with higher education institutions, students, employers and legislators."

The regents' vote approves implementation of a revised mission to provide access to selected baccalaureate programs in partnership with other U of M campuses and in partnership with other institutions.

Select baccalaureate programs would be offered in agriculture, business, natural resources, early childhood education, small business management, hotel/restaurant management and appropriate interdisciplinary studies.

Primary funding for the program growth would come from tuition from increased enrollment, Chancellor Sargeant said, and additional state funds will not be needed. UMC can offer its students special opportunities through a major telecommunications project that links the campus with programs from other campuses, including the Twin Cities campus.

"The UMC campus faced a fork in the road," Sargeant said. "One path led to a dead end. The other path, the one chosen, extends the existing two-year programs into four-year degree programs. The plan includes only a minimal increase in the freshman class size, few new programs, no additional state funds, and it includes courses from other colleges as part of the curriculum. The plan is not creating an additional higher eduction institution but rather making better use of an existing institution.

"...This decision goes beyond providing undergraduate education to students on the Crookston campus. It will, through increased investments in telecommunications, make available more courses, workshops and seminars throughout the state.

"And it greatly enhances research with a focus on rural development," Sargeant added. "So today's action is one that is educationally and economically sound for the University of Minnesota and for Minnesotans."

Job Service accepts extension claims

All Minnesota Job Service offices are now accepting claims for the extension of emergency unemployment compensation benefits under a new law passed by Congress and signed by President George Bush over the holiday weekend.

A previous emergency benefits law enacted last winter expired on July 4. This new measure does not give additional benefits to those who have already received 26 weeks of extended benefits, however it does allow workers who exhaust regular benefits now to qualify for extra weeks of unemployment benefits. It also restores some benefits taken away since June 13 under phaseout rules.

Under the new law, Minnesotans who exhaust their 26 weeks of regular benefits after June 13, will be eligible for up to 20 additional weeks. People who qualify will be notified by mail with instructions

BEAT THE HEAT AT YOUR HOUSE OF WORSHIP; IT'S COOL

During the oppressive heat and humidity of summer, remember that your House of Worship is always open, all the year 'round, and always ready to revive your spirits. You'll find it cool inside, and you will leave there feeling refreshed in more ways than one. You will learn that God made this world you're living in, and established the four seasons, including summer, so that we could grow our food and enjoy the beauties of nature that unfold along with the calendar. Remember even in the heat of summer that He made the water that you may have a chance to swim in, the cool grass on which you might enjoy a picnic, and the balmy star-studded nights. So don't forget to attend your House of Worship regularly this summer; it's the "cool" thing to do.

How God comes to thee, and all times are His seasons.
- John Donne

"To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven."

on how to apply at their local offices.

Individuals who applied for emergency benefits after June 13 under the old law were told at that time that they were eligible for only 13 weeks of benefits. The new law automatically extends benefits to 20 weeks for those people.

People who were entitled to 26 weeks of emergency benefits under the old law and who have not yet exhausted that entitlement will continue to be eligible for up to 26 weeks of emergency benefits.

People who have exhausted 26 weeks of emergency benefits under the old law will not be eligible for any additional benefits.

Unless the national unemployment rate shows marked and sustained improvement, new applications for emergency benefits will be accepted until March 6, 1993, and benefits will be paid out until June 19, 1993.

Norway Trip

On Monday, June 15, Signe Miller and her daughter, Marilyn LaCoursiere of Brooklyn Park left for Norway with the Sun Country Airlines at 10 o'clock in the morning, and arrived at Gardemoen Airport at 2:45 p.m. on Tuesday. (There is a seven hours difference in our time). Signe's cousin, Reidunn and John Haaverstad met us at the airport and were houseguests there. On Wednesday, John and Reidunn, Marilyn and Signe together with Oysten and Bibbi Anderson were dinner guests at the Dagfin and Magna Fadum home at Gjövik. Thursday we went sight-seeing at the Vigeland Skulpturpark and Museum in Oslo, "Norsk Folke" park and the famous Holmenkollen ski slide in Oslo. On our flight a group of Sioux Indians from Sisseton, SD, were going to perform on a stage near the area of the slide. But we had the opportunity to see them dance on TV, also the main star of the show was on the front page of the Oslo paper. She was real interesting to talk to. Friday Signe and Marilyn took the train to Nelaug (depot) where cousin, Solveig Dale met them. They were dinner guests at an aunts, Barbara Dale. Saturday Marilyn left by train for Kristiansand, where she visited for a week with a friend, Rundi Danielson, who had worked with Marilyn before she returned to Norway several years ago. Signe, Barbara and Solveig then went to see an uncle, Eivind Dalhalt and wife, Anne, at an apartment in Tvedestrand. Uncle Eivind is 95 years old, and Anne his wife is 85, and quite spry. Later we went to cousin, Erna and Gundar Sveinungen and their 13 year old twins, and aunt, Anne Nevestad of Saltrod Rest Home. Other relatives who came to visit there were cousins, Signe Nevestad, Oysten and Signe Annfred Aatelgon, Reneta and Gre Elene, Geir and Benta, Vedal and Glen, and Helge and Lena Anderson. The occasion was St. Hans festival, which is celebrated every year, on June 23. This is the longest day of the year. Signe stayed five days with her aunt and family in Arendal. Signe returned to Aamli on Wednesday evening accompanied by Gunder Erna and Glen. Thursday, Solveig, Barbara Dale, and Signe went to Tyersdal to visit with aunt, Gre Dale, also another cousin, Knut Ansgar Skreda. Signe's aunt, Regnhild Skrede passed away last February at age 92. On Friday Signe Miller, and Solveig Dale accompanied Aslak and Anne Liv Landbo, and Oline Oygarden to Honolass where they visited at the Amund and Ragnhild Lovrak home and also enjoyed a picnic lunch at their "Hytta" at the Brubakken gaard. The Landbos reside at Risør. While in Aamli Marlyn, Solveig and Signe visited at the Hillestad estate, where the family has created a center for arts and crafts, which has become renowen. They make the famous Tovdal jewelry and also exhibit works by leading Norwegian and foreign artists. There also stands the old church in Hillestad, where Signe's mother, Ingaborg Dale Sjulestad was baptized and confirmed. Many of the relatives are buried in the cemetery. Services are held in this church every three weeks, as the pastor has two other churches in nearby areas. They also visited at the Dale estate, where Signe's mother lived before she came to America. There she met several cousins, Sven V and Klara Dale and family, also Sven and Osordes Dalhalt, Bencha and John Berg, Oddvar and Gerda Dalhalt, Sven and Bargne Dale, Christian and Anna Jorgenson.

Barbecue In The Garden

Mr. and Mrs. John Haaverstad entertained in their backyard at a barbecue on Tuesday evening the day before Signe and Marilyn were leaving Oslo. Their guests included Helge and Marit Haaversted, Kine and Sandra, Capt. Rune Haaverstad, wife Bjornhild, children, Lise and Martin, Dr. Sven Haaverstad, Karl and Gunnulf Haukelidseter, Tor Olav Haukelidseter and friend, Bent, Ragnheld Bore, John and Reindunn Haaverstad, Signe Miller and Marilyn LaCoursiere. Wednesday, July 1, Signe and Marilyn left Oslo on the Sun Country flight for America. It was a wonderful trip. But they hadn't had any rain since May 1st. But it still was a beautiful land with fjords, valleys, mountains, trees, lakes, the ocean, and many scenic places. And may God bless Norway and America.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Holte hosted a supper at their home Wednesday evening in honor of Holte relatives from Norway, who were houseguests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Holte. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Miller and Aaron, Mr. and Mrs. Galen Dahlen, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Nelson and girls, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Miller, Jonathan and Kacey were among those who enjoyed the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Miller visited with Harvey Langness of Grygla, and Lyle Stephenson who were both patients of the Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls on Monday. We wish both, Harvey and Lyle a speedy recovery.

Helen and Selmer Holen visited with Harvey Langness at the hospital one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wells were noon luncheon guests at a Bemidji cafe of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kohlstorf of McPherson, KS, along with other friends on Tuesday, July 7.

Later in the day on Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. James Wells visited with Josephine Lien at the Beltrami Nursing Home in Bemidji, and also visited at the Hubert and Ione Denny home at Bemidji.

Mr. and Mrs. Selmer Holen, and Mrs. Elmer Johnson were among the large group who enjoyed the horse show at the Pennington County Fair in Thief River Falls on Sunday. Angie Holen won a trophy at the horse show, and Jamie Holen received reserve championship with her dog in the dog show. Congratulations Angie and Jamie!

Birthday of USA

Crowds of people filled the streets, homes, eating places, park and parade grounds in and around Plummer on our nation's birthday. The town had not celebrated for five years but it went all out this time. The day began with a flag raising ceremony at 9 a.m. in the park, which included a cannon shot (courtesy of the ND Cavalry), singing of the National Anthem by all, "A Song of Peace" and "Let There be Peace on Earth" sung by a ladies choir, and prayer by Howard Greenwald, Legion chaplain. At 10:45 a.m. the children's parade got underway followed by a 70 unit parade of five categories. The winners were Floats, a unit from St. Hilaire featuring the three ships of Columbus, The Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria; Antique Motors, a 1936 B John Deere shown by Lyle Bjorge of Thief River Falls; Horse, Howard LaFayette with his team and covered wagon; Marching band, Plummer School Alumni band; and Patriotic, the 40 & 8 of Thief River Falls. The Senior Citizens helped to feed the crowds at noon at their Center, and drawings were made for a quilt, won by Delyne Mattison, a set of dish towels won by Idella Peterson, and a birdhouse won by Barbara Pinc of Hastings. The ND Cavalry of Minot presented a reenactment from the Civil War era that was well received, followed by a horse pull, also popular, a water fight, as well as other entertainment. The fireworks and a street dance concluded the celebration and most people felt that the day will be long remembered. The Community club which had sponsored the event is most grateful for the support of any and all who participated and attended. Come again, folks!

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

John P. Mattson, publisher
Marvin Lundin, editor
David Hill, associate editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

And Then There Were Two.....Again!

America's favorite personification of the "none of the above" voting opinion, H. Ross Perot has decided to keep his hundred million dollars and forget about trying to become President of the United States. His abrupt announcement of quitting the race last week left thousands of his supporters feeling stunned, disappointed, bewildered and perhaps at least a little jilted.

More than a few people had set aside their views of what others might consider to be "rational" politics to join the independent Perot camp. By and large most were people who were not necessarily drawn to Perot but pushed away from the traditional GOP and DFL parties which seem adept at perpetuating what America insists it wants to see changed.

Perot not only seemed to offer a possibly electable alternative to what the major parties were putting forth, he also had—and said he was willing to spend—$100 million of his own money to finance his campaign. Bingo! A none-of-the-above candidate who could put his money where his mouth was. What more could a disenchanted American voter want?

And then the little weasel weaseled out. He turned tail, gave up, backed out, withdrew, quit. And the homeless voters who thought they had found a home with Ross were back out in the cold again, only worse. It is one thing to be hopeless; it is worse to have hope and lose the reason for it.

We thought the Perot candidacy made for an interesting election possibility and would have liked to see it continue, but we don't feel deserted by his decision not to run. He probably wouldn't have been all that good a President, but he wouldn't have had to be very good to be better than the choices remaining.

And that's the hard part. How can a person be a good citizen and vote for the nation's leadership when you wouldn't give either party's selection the time of day?

Some supporters say they will continue their efforts and they expect Perot to come back. Some people say they have seen Elvis Presley lately. All are equally realistic.

Political Earthquake In The Offing

It is expected that as many as 125 and possibly more of the 535 total Senators and Representatives in Congress will change following the November election. It will likely be the biggest shift since 1948 when 118 new members were elected in the aftermath of World War II. The record turn-over was 165 new members in 1932.

Dr. Richard Lesher, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, points out that there are a number of reasons for what he calls "the pending upheaval."

"One is that 1992 is the last year House members elected before 1980 can retire and take unspent campaign money with them for their personal use," he says. Another is a growing frustration of voters who sense our government is out of control and in need of change. The recent House bank scandal also served as a catalyst for political discontent, promoting an anti-incumbent mood. In addition, persistent economic malaise fosters a sense of unease and desire for change."

The call to throw the rascals out is not new, the C of C president says, but more and more voters are including their own rascals in that category.

In its April business ballot, "Nation's Business" magazine asked respondents if they would support their own representatives in the coming election. A clear majority (56 per cent) said "no." Dr. Lesher continues as follows:

"Predictably, the pending political earthquake has the Washington political class in a tizzy. Our representatives are particularly incensed by allegations they are out of touch with the people. They contend, and with some justice, that they are only doing what the people want them to do.

"But therein lies the crux of our national dilemma. It is only natural for people to want a long list of services and benefits from government, and low taxes to boot. Of such contradictory demands are $400 billion annual deficits born. We all know this madness must be stopped.

"The job of Congress, as envisioned by the Founding Fathers, is to sort through conflicting demands for resources and choose among them. It is because Congress is too responsive to citizens—because it seemingly can't say no to anyone—that we are in this mess. What we need is a congress less responsive to what the people want, and more attentive to what our country needs.

"In the final analysis, the fault lies not with Congress, but with us. We are the ones who, like spoiled children, demand endless benefits and programs, but balk at the price. We are the ones who threaten any legislator who even dares mention the runaway entitlement programs that are devouring our substance. We are the ones who repeatedly give control of Congress to one party and the White House to the other, rendering any cohesive action impossible.

"Our only hope is that we will eventually elect a Congress deaf to our pleas and resolved to do what is best for us, knowing full well we will probably boot them out of office for their trouble."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
On School District 564 Restructuring

School District 564 is considering a major building and restructuring program in the near future. The following questions and answers are provided by the Facilities Steering Committee, a group of local citizens which has researched the local school situation and recommended the project to the board of education.

QUESTION: Why put together an 18 million dollar project? Why not 12 million or 10 million?

ANSWER: The cost of the new elementary school alone is approximately 10 million dollars. The local share of the total project, according to the most recent computations by the school district's bonding consultants, is $3,769,500—much less than half the cost of a new elementary campus.

But a new elementary school alone will not address the full facility needs of the district—needs such as the music department at Lincoln high school and program deficiencies, music, science and media inadequacies at Franklin middle school.

State aid that's available today will allow us to create efficient facilities district-wide, which means better use of tax dollars in the future. This 18 million dollar investment, of which less than four million-dollars is local tax effort, is expected to address the district's facilities needs to the year 2050.

Inducting Farm Workers May Be Put Off To Sept. 1

"Minnesota draft boards were authorized Tuesday to postpone induction of registrants necessary to harvesting activities until Sept. 1. Authorization came in a telegram from Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director, to Lt. Col. J. E. Nelson, state chief. Nelson two weeks ago wired Hershey describing Minnesota's approaching 'acute' farm labor shortage and asking for the postponement."

"Next week is Fair Week and it probably will be the last Fair we will have until the boys write letters home from Tokyo and Berlin. Attendance at other fairs held recently in the Valley has been good, indicating that people still want to take a holiday now and then. It seems like a good idea. There is a labor shortage in the community and more than the usual amount of work to be done. There isn't much time to play. But the Fair this year comes between the rush of haying and harvest and a little outing at this time is certainly justified."

Pursuant to Law, the Pennington County Board of Equalization met in the County Board room of the Pennington County Courthouse in Thief River Falls on Monday June 15, 1992 at 10:00 a.m.

Members present: Commissioners Bill Penning, Oliver Swanson, Albert Koop, Ken Murphy and County Auditor Ken Olson.

Also present were County Assessor Gerry DeHaan and Deputy Assessor Adeline Olson.

David Voelk and Sam Haj representing HAVCO, Inc. met with the County Board to ask for consideration on lowering the value of their property formerly known as the Boatwicks Building. County Assessor DeHaan stated he had lowered the value to $128,300 from $144,300 and that amount was approved by the City of Thief River Falls Board of Review. The County Assessor then presented a chart of land and building valuations between townships. Also presented were reports on the tillable land values in the County and how it compared to the values of land in adjacent Counties. What Can Your Child Learn From You?

Kids May Be "Picking Up" More Than You Realize

Children are very observant. They pick up the smallest details. And they watch closely so they can do things just as they saw them done.

While this is natural, it can create problems. Have your children ever observed you using alcohol or other drugs?

Talk to your children and explain that not everything you do is something they should do--at least not yet. Ask them how they feel about drug use and tell them how you feel, too.

This can be a delicate situation, especially if it appears you're telling your children to "do as I say, not as I do."

But if you approach them in a rational manner and listen to their point of view, you should be able to get your message across without putting them off.

By talking to your children instead of lecturing them, you will gain their respect and help them avoid the dangers of drug abuse.

Talk to your children. The message they need to hear is one only you can send.

July 1942: ...Japan begins constructing air base of Guadalcanal; Japanese attack on New Guinea.

When he graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1940, Jarvis Prichard of Thief River Falls says he expected the war to start soon and wanted to be a pilot, so he and John Kiewel, a close friend, both tried to join the Navy. Jarvis, however, was half an inch too short, so after trying "stretching exercises" which didn't work, he finally joined the Army Air Force. He was originally sent to Sikeston, MO for flight training, after only about half of the course, officials showed up one day and reassigned 12 of the student pilots, who had college degrees in math-related areas, to navigation school at Kelly Field in San Antonio, TX. Jarvis had a degree in Mining Engineering. After nine months of navigation school, as the first class of navigators trained there, these young men became instructors at Kelly Field. Later some of them volunteered to go to England to take part in the war in Europe, but were sent in B17's instead to the Aleutian Islands. They spent a few days at Cold Bay on Unimak Island and lived in their planes, while they searched for the Japanese fleet, as the Japanese bombed Dutch Bay nearby.

Jarvis Prichard

Jarvis says they next were sent to a new airfield at Umnak where they lived in quonset huts, from which they again mounted a search for the Japanese fleet. They finally found it at Kiska, 600 miles to the west. Jarvis says about the Umnak base: "There were no trees, just mud, wind and fog." He adds that they could fly the B17's for about 11 to 12 hours and come home empty.

From there they moved to Adak, which was closer to Kiska and attacked the Japanese fleet from there. They were supposed to stay for six months, because many of the men developed sinus trouble from

Dear Readers,
When sending a sympathy card, take time to add a few personal words of love and encouragement. We all know the note of condolence is not easy to write. It seems the things we want to say go beyond words. However, a brief message in your own hand writing means so much to someone who is grieving. In the difficult days ahead, these expressions of sympathy will be treasured and read and reread many times. They serve as a lasting reminder of your personal concern.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

Dairy bill will help producers in Upper Midwest

The federal dairy program will treat milk producers in the Upper Midwest more fairly under provisions of a bill introduced in the Senate. Sens. Dave Durenberger, R-MN, and Tom Daschle, D-SD, introduced the Midwest Dairy Equity Act, S. 3011, on July 23.

Joining them as original co-sponsors were Sens. Herb Kohl, D-WI, Bob Kasten, R-WI, Larry Pressler, R-SD, Paul Wellstone, D-MN, and Quentin Burdick, D-ND. A similar bill, HR 5184, was introduced earlier this year in the House by Rep. Collin Peterson, D-MN.

Jack Gherty, president and chief executive officer of Land O'Lakes, Inc., applauded the efforts of the Midwest lawmakers. He said the bill provides a showcase for the concerns of dairy farmers in the Upper Midwest.

The centerpiece for the bill is a proposal to eliminate inequities from federal milk marketing orders that discriminate against Midwest dairy farmers. The proposal would set a uniform Class I differential for dairy farmers in all regions. Currently, Class I differentials vary from a minimum in Minnesota and Wisconsin of $1.20 per hundred pounds of milk to a maximum of $4.18 in southern Florida.

(The Class I differential is an additional payment to farmers for Grade A milk used in bottling fluid milk. It represents the cost of producing Grade A milk as compared to the cost of producing Grade B milk for manufacturing into cheese, butter, and nonfat dry milk.)

The concept often is referred to as the Upper Midwest proposal. A broad coalition of Midwest dairy cooperatives and other organizations developed and proposed it in 1990 for consideration at a national hearing on milk marketing orders and Class I differentials. The Upper Midwest proposal includes a series of surcharges to cover the cost of transporting fluid milk to assure that no region experiences a shortage of milk for bottling.

In addition to the Upper Midwest proposal, the bill includes other provisions of special interest to the Midwest dairy industry. These include:

- A minimum price for milk used for bottling. This provision would provide additional dairy income during seasonal dips in milk prices. The bill would create a national pool to distribute uniform payment of this benefit to milk producers in all regions of the nation.
- Increase the national manufacturing allowance—the margin permitted by USDA to cover the cost of manufacturing surplus milk into butter, cheese, and nonfat dry milk for sale to the government.
- Require USDA to study the standard for solids-not-fat in fluid milk. Currently, milk sold in supermarkets must contain not less than 8.25 per cent solids-not-fat. However, unprocessed milk from the farm contains an average of 8.6 per cent nonfat solids. USDA also must determine consumer acceptance of low-fat milk fortified with additional solids to improve its texture.

"We feel very strongly about the provision to implement the Upper Midwest proposal on Class I differentials," commented Jack Gherty from Land O'Lakes. "We put a lot of effort into the Upper Midwest coalition, and we were very disappointed when USDA refused to implement the proposal. Land O'Lakes is pleased that these legislators have introduced a bill that keeps the focus on treating Midwest dairy farmers fairly."

In addition to endorsing the new dairy legislation, Land O'Lakes supports a lawsuit filed by the Minnesota Milk Producers Association. The lawsuit charges that current Class I differentials illegally discriminate against Midwest farmers. If successful, it would require USDA to scrap the current differentials and adopt new ones that would treat milk producers in all regions equitably.

First clues are given in treasure hunt

First two clues in the annual treasure hunt for Summerfest in Thief River Falls have been given with additional clues to be given daily until the treasure is found.

Treasure hunt sponsors remind searchers that the treasure is located on public property and that nothing has to be moved or disturbed to find it. A $100 cash prize will be given to the finder. Here are the first two clues:

(1) It's blue when you look up and green when you look down.

(2) By bike, boat, car or foot, this is where you want to look.

LMC president calls payment a "misnomer"

This week's Department of Revenue announcement that a $337 million payment in local government aid to be an increase of $17 million over 1991 payments was labeled a "misnomer" by League of Minnesota Cities president Larry Bakken, mayor of Golden Valley.

"Even though the actual amount cities, counties, and townships received accounts for nearly $17 million more than a year ago, that is only half the story. State authorities are conveniently forgetting that state payments promised to cities were cut last year by over $42 million," Bakken said in a statement from LMC headquarters in St. Paul.

"Cities have had state property tax relief payments cut by over $180 million in 1990 and 1991," Bakken went on to say. "These cuts stretched local budgets to the breaking point. Some cities are now faced with making the difficult decisions of cutting programs and curtailing employment in order to balance budgets.

"The tax bill passed in April of this year requires cities, townships, and counties to begin paying the state sales tax of 6.5 per cent," Bakken stated. "This means that cities must pay state government approximately $45 million per year to help balance the state's budget. The net loss to cities constitutes over $125 million in the past three years.

"It is obvious that cities in Minnesota are operating with far less financial resources then they were four years ago," he said. "The governor does not want to increase taxes, but the direct result of his actions will mean a shift in tax policy in Minnesota, requiring local government to rely more heavily on property taxes to keep programs in place.

"City officials stand accountable for local spending decisions and must, at the same time, respond to changes in promised state payments or new taxes imposed on cities. These facts shouldn't be overlooked in discussing distribution of funds from the local government trust fund," Bakken concluded.

Impressions . . .

Beth Johnson

I [illegible] a weekend or two ago when I thought I would never get around to doing. I "did" the closets.

You might think lucky her, she got to spend a lovely summer day or two or three rummaging in the back corners of her closets. I imagine you probably would not be relishing the thought of doing your own closets and so would not really envy me as I was taking care of my closets!

But, notice, I did not say I was cleaning my closets. I was merely taking care of them. There is a world of difference between cleaning and doing closets. Cleaning closets is work, and not terrifically desireable work at that. "Doing" closets is a sign of settling.

Last October we moved into our own home. When you move, you empty closets and cupboards in the old house and fill them up in the new place of residence. That I did. The trash collectors can attest to the fact that just a few boxes left our house to be picked up by them. Empty boxes equal full closets.

Since October, we have painted and papered and painted and papered some more. Then, just when my men would think we were done for a while, we painted and papered even more. Little time was spent in living. A lot of time was spent with paint buckets and old rags and glue and rolls of paper.

Now, though, I think that for a while at least I have declared an end to the painting and papering. Now the settling has begun in earnest. So to my closets I went.

I spent many hours at this settling task. I moved things from one closet to another and then back to the first closet. I thought about the way things were arranged, and then back to the closets I went armed with a somewhat thoughtful organizational plan of attack.

I not only "did" the closets, but I also "did" my kitchen cupboards. I rearranged and re-rearranged the drawers and cupboards. Then, after a good night's sleep, I declared that truly my plan of arranging in my kitchen was probably fairly workable.

Now, however, I have a dilemma—I don't know where I put anything!!! I'm not the only one with this dilemma in our family, for my men also now truly have no idea where things are stored. I have tried to be helpful by sorting things by type and purpose. I have also insisted that everyone please take note of what's in which cupboard or closet. I have not resorted to labeling every nook and cranny. Hopefully we will all soon discover where things are in our home.

I used to head for a drawer or closet with a particular item in mind. On my way to the closet I would realize that in my mind's eye I was in the wrong house searching in my memory for the item. So, I would stop and think, and remember where the item was stored in the house in which we were then living. Now, though, because of my settling in process, I have found myself stopping in mid search to discover that I'm in the right house, wrong cupboard.

Settling in is satisfying. To know that things have found a place in my home helps to reaffirm that not only things, but the people of this household have found a home.

But, just as I begin to relish the feeling of being settled, I am struck by the fact that life is never settled. For, as our household is settling in, we are also in another transition. Our eldest has begun the process of moving out. Sure, he is only moving out to a dorm room in a college, but, he is moving.

As the trunks and suitcases begin to reappear; as the lists of what to take and what to leave are written, this mother wants to fight the unsettledness this move leaves her feeling. Life is always moving. Changes are always being made. Adventures are happening. Unsettledness comes in spite of our settling in.

Settling in as our son is moving out makes me realize that the affirmation and love we receive from one another are more important than the current place of residence. To settle in residences with our family's love surrounding us whether we are together or apart is the homewarming gift we give each other.

Cellular One begins using Roseau tower

Cellular One, a non-wireline cellular telephone system with its main office in Bemidji, recently announced a new transmission tower or cell site in Roseau as part of its multi-million dollar expansion.

The Roseau tower is the newest in a series of transmission towers for the company which also has future expansion planned toward Baudette.

Cellulor works similar to a sophisticated two-way communications link that is mointained between a cellular telephone and the local telephone network that serves the home or office. Everyone owning a cellular telephone has an individual number which is easily accessed by landline or cellular telephones. The number provides increased privacy and clarity not found in other forms of mobile communication equipment.

Transmission towers provide cellular communications virtually anywhere within an overage radius of 20 or more miles, depending on the terrain. When an individual drives beyond the range of one cell (tower), the cell is outomaticolly transferred to the next cell without interruption.

Air timo rates for Cellular One service vary between 20 and 55 cents per minute, depending on the time of doy ond the customer's monthly packoge beginning at $14.95 per month.

Tree planting in TRF helps win awards

Thief River Falls Municipal Utility is one of 32 Tree Power participants across the country and has planted five trees towards its local annual goal of 50 trees. These trees will be planted on public property, in conjunction with the city of Thief River Falls regular tree planting program. APPA has set a national goal of 16 million trees, or one tree for every public power customer. To date, more than 1.5 million trees are pledged to be planted and hundreds of thousands have already been planted.

"Thief River Falls Municipal Utility is proud to take part in the national Tree Power program through our own Community Tree Planting Program", said Arlo Rude, director of Utilities. "By taking part in this successful national effort, our utility, with the community's help, is making a lasting contribution to preserve and enhance our environment and our public resources."

For more information about the program, contact Al Newton, customer service representative and John Johnson, city forester.

Thief River Falls Municipal Utility's tree planting efforts helped earn two major national awards for environmental improvement and energy conservation promotion.

Thief River Falls Municipal Utility is taking part in the national Tree Power effort launched by the American Public Power Association. Tree Power has earned a semi-finalist award in the Department of Interior's Take Pride in America Awards contest, as well as a certificate of achievement from Renew America, a national environmental organization with its headquarters in Washington, D.C.

U.S. Secretary of the Interior, Manuel Lujan, has praised programs like Tree Power and remarked that participants "deserve the gratitude of all Americans." U.S. Secretary of Energy James D. Watkins also lauded Tree Power, saying it was "an excellent complement to the President's America the Beautiful program and a fine example of responsible corporate leadership in promoting environmental quality and engaging local communities."

Speaking Of . . .

Sharon LaCoursiere

Oh, No, I Think I Do!

They say that people resemble their pets. I wonder if that is true. I've been trying to make some observations of this phenomenon, although my observations have been limited.

I haven't been able to observe cat owners and their pets, because most of them are inside their houses. Once in a while I see a cat creeping through a yard, stalking some prey. I have not seen any cat owners creeping around, though.

Nor have I had a chance to observe the owners of parakeets, canaries, hamsters, gerbils, guinea pigs, fish or other types of small animals, I suppose because they are kept in a cage—the animals, I mean.

I have, however, been able to observe people out walking their dogs and I am beginning to fear that the saying is more than a saying. My eyes have told me that it may very well have some basis in fact. An awful lot of people look an awful lot like whatever it is they are walking on the ends of their leashes.

Yes, I am beginning to have a nagging feeling that the saying is true and I may look like my pets.

I have both a cat and a dog. They look nothing alike, so I cannot see how I could possibly look like them.

My cat is black and smooth-haired. Her name used to be Beelzebud, but everyone has called her Bibs since she came to our house because she has a small white bib under her chin. Sometimes she acts like a Beelzebud, though.

She scratches furniture and watches to see if I notice her, ready to jump and run the minute I do. She had her claws removed a few years ago, but she still scratches furniture, even though it doesn't do any damage, still with that same wicked expression on her little face, watching me to see how I react. I think she misses my yelling at her about it.

Bibs also pouts when I don't do what she wants immediately, such as feed her. If I am lying in bed, facing the edge of the bed, and she wants breakfast, she will park herself two inches from my sleeping face and pout and breathe heavily. To say the least, it is very disconcerting to awaken and find yourself face to face with a pouting cat, not to mention breathing her cat breath. Some morning I may have a heart attack from it.

Bibs has a small face with rather rounded ears (they froze) and wicked green eyes. Her front paws are large because she has several extra toes. I believe there are may cats in the area running around on large feet with several extra toes, because she passed this characteristic on to nearly all of her copious progeny (prior to her visit to the veterinarian).

My dog, on the other hand, is the color of honey, and that is her name. We did not name her Honey; she came with that name. I would never have named her Honey because I would have thought of how I would sound to passing pedestrians and motorists when she gets loose from her chain and I stand in my door yelling her name.

Nonetheless, her name is Honey. Her fur is coarse and some of it stands up, some of it curls, and some of it hangs straight down. My children like to tell their friends that she is a long-haired chihuahua, but I don't think so. I think she is a Heinz 57 mixture.

Honey is about the size of a chihuahua, however, and sometimes I think her brain is the size of a pea. Her main occupation is chasing a tennis ball. She loves tennis balls. She is her happiest when she can lay in the grass surrounded by tennis balls in various degrees of decrepitude, holding one in her little mouth, just for the taste of it.

When her tennis ball rolls outside of the range of her chain, she barks at it, and barks, and barks, and barks. I know just what she is thinking. She is thinking that the tennis ball is going to grow legs and walk back to her if she barks long enough.

Oddly enough, the tennis ball does come back to her when she barks at it, but this is because no one can stand to hear the continual barking and they get up from whatever they are doing and go out and kick it back to her. I have noticed that even the neighbors kick tennis balls back to Honey. Maybe I am mistaken in the size of her brain and she is much smarter than I think.

Honey is very cute. She greets everyone who comes to the door by smiling. Yes, she really smiles and I am not making this up.

Often people who come to the door think she is snarling. If it is a salesman or someone I don't want to come in, I let them think that she is snarling and going to bite off their leg. It works quite well, even though, if they thought about it, they should realize she could hardly get her mouth around their leg. Did I mention that Honey is smaller than the cat?

Honey also sneezes to welcome family and people she especially loves. There is nothing more wonderful than a welcome home dog sneeze right in the face as you bend down to pat her head.

Then too, both of my pets are getting on in years and both of them have gotten rather roly-poly since they made trips to the veterinarian a couple of years ago. Actually, "rather roly-poly" may be too mild a term for what they have gotten in the past couple of years. Could I say they have gotten, yes I can, downright FAT.

Both animals used to be lean and trim and neither of them has adjusted to their fatter bodies yet.

The cat still tries to leap gracefully to the top of chairs and on to window sills. Every so often I hear a CLUNK and it is the cat falling off of some small place where she used to sit but cannot any longer because of her bulk, or trying to jump up on the chair or couch and missing.

Honey used to be able to run after tennis balls for hours, and she now has to rest and pant a while after a few quick dashes, no longer the agile creature she once was.

Now that I think of it, I'm afraid the saying is true. I and my pets do resemble each other.

Road crew finds tanks

The Highway 32 road construction crew ran into a slight delay Friday afternoon with the discovery of three abandoned underground storage tanks in front of the Norwest parking lot between Second and Third Streets in Thief River Falls.

In accordance with state law, samples were taken around the tanks to determine the amount of contamination.

GME consultant Conrad Kragness, a senior environmental specialist, used an HNU meter to measure the amount of organic matters in the soil.

Twelve samples were taken from the soil surrounding the tanks. Some of these samples will be sent to Minnesota Pollution Control Agency for further testing. Kragness said if abnormalities appear, the MPCA will conduct core sampling. In the meantime, road construction will proceed as planned.

Due to the clay nature of soil around the tanks, Kragness said the saturation of the ground was probably minimal.

Further testing will determine the exact nature of the tanks, but it is assumed they are abandoned fuel tanks. A Pontiac garage used to stand where the Norwest bank parking lot is currently located.

Todd Broadwell, the project engineer for the Minnesota Department of Transportation said such obstructions were not in the plans.

Forsberg is in read-a-thon

Rachael Forsberg of rural Thief River Falls, a student at Our Saviour's Christian Academy in Thief River Falls, was among winners who qualified for but was unable to attend read-a-thon day at Valleyfair in Shakopee.

The read-a-thon raised funds for the Multiple Sclerosis Society. About 15,000 elementary, middle and junior high school students participated in the 1992 event.

Your Times

Allows readers to speak out on a variety of issues

by State Rep. Jim Tunheim District 1A

Since the Legislative Session ended, many people have expressed their concerns to me about HealthRight, the new state health care plan. I share many of their concerns, but it's also clear that there are many misconceptions about HealthRight that should be addressed.

First, HealthRight is not socialized medicine. Unlike the universal health care available in Canada or Sweden, it isn't free. It will start slowly and eventually provide an affordable insurance plan that all Minnesotans can buy into. It will begin to cap ever-increasing health care costs, it will end insurance discrimination against seniors and women, and it will finally help maintain and expand rural health care services.

HealthRight will begin this October 1992 by expanding the existing state Children's Health Plan to include the families of the 26,000 children already enrolled. This January, it will be expanded to allow families with higher incomes to enroll. Inpatient coverage will be added to the plan next July, and single adults who are eligible for a HealthRight subsidy can enroll in July 1994.

The HealthRight plan is not intended for people who already have health insurance through their employer, or for those who are clients of Medicare or Medicaid. It is intended for middle class families who can't afford—or their small employer can't afford—to provide them with health insurance.

Benefits covered under HealthRight include outpatient hospital, physician and clinic services; diagnostic, rehabilitative, outpatient lab and x-ray services; home health and mental health services; dental care; medical supplies; immunizations; vision care and eyeglasses; and prescription drugs.

Adults eligible to enroll in HealthRight based on income guidelines will make the following co-payments:

- 10 per cent for inpatient hospital services for adults not eligible for Medicaid, with a $10,000 annual benefit limit, beginning in July, 1993.
- 50 per cent for adult non-preventive dental care.
- $3 for prescriptions for adults.
- $25 for adult eyeglasses.

(There are no co-payments or limits for children)

Monthly premiums for HealthRight will be based on income. The maximum premium for an individual is $127 per month. The maximum for a family of three or more is $382. Under the plan, a family of four with monthly earnings of $2,235 will pay $98 each month to enroll in HealthRight. An individual earning $1,093 monthly will pay $48 per month. The cost decreases with lower incomes.

Another advantage HealthRight offers small business is the opportunity for small employers to buy into a large insurance pool, ultimately lowering their costs. And since Minnesota's 370,000 uninsured people will have access to an affordable health plan, the $120 million spent each year on hospital charity care will decrease.

HealthRight contains four key provisions that will help to improve rural health care. One is expanding a University of Minnesota program that trains pediatricians and family practice doctors in rural Minnesota. Another provides a loan forgiveness program for physicians, nurses and other practitioners who agree to work in rural Minnesota. Two grant programs will be established to help struggling rural hospitals. Also, an Office of Rural Health will be created to serve as a clearinghouse of information, and to coordinate the state's rural health efforts.

I didn't vote for HealthRight because I objected to the funding sources, even though I agree we needed to do something in our state to address the problems of skyrocketing health care costs and the thousands of citizens who can't afford health insurance.

HealthRight will be funded by two sources: a tax on cigarette sales—a decreasing revenue because more people are quitting—and a tax on health care providers. The provider tax could end up being passed along to sick people, which I believe isn't right. It could also end up being too much of a burden on our rural hospitals and clinics that are already dangerously close to closing.

But no matter what concerns we have about HealthRight, the fact is that it has passed into law and we must do what we can now to make it workable. It is a very complex piece of legislation, so I'm sure it will be back before the Legislature many times for modifications— and that will give us a chance to solve some of those problems.

Pennington county sheriff's department is investigating damage to two vehicles parked at the St. Hilaire elevator in Hazel.

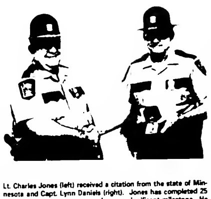
On July 27 at 7:35 a.m. the sheriff's department received a report that two pieces of equipment had been taken on an apparant joy ride. A John Deere 5020 and International Semi truck parked by the Hazel elevator had been taken. The tractor was located three-quarters of a mile south of the elevator tipped over on its side. The motor had been left running and was damaged. The semi was located one-half mile north on county road 80. The front end, brakes, fenders, grill and radiator were damaged.

The total damage loss was estimated at about $5,000. The sheriff's department is investigating the incident.

Semi trailer runs intersection

Early Tuesday morning a semi trailer crossed the intersection of Highways 59 and 1 and went into the ditch.

Minnesota state patrol received a report of an accident at 4:39 a.m. According to the eeport, a 1988 Peterbuilt Semi driven by Gerard Fontaine of Manitoba was south bound on Highway 59 and went off the dead end at the junction of Highways 1 and 59. Fontaine complained of leg and ankle pain but did not request medical attention. There did not appear to be damage to the semi. There was some damage to property owned by Westside Motoes. The accident is under investigation.



Lt. Charles Jones (left) received a citation from the state of Minnesota and Capt. Lynn Daniels (right). Jones has completed 25 years of service as a state employee, a significant milestone. He was presented with a citation and watch. Jones was a Thief River Falls police officer before he became a state patrol officer. In 1967 he was assigned as a state patrol officer to Warroad. He then spent five years in the metro area. In 1983 he was promoted to Lieutenant. He has been with the state patrol in Thief River Falls for almost 10 years. His wife Judy is employed with Digi Key.

Gov't loans on sunflowers to mature July 31

Sunflower growers who have maturing government loans on their sunflowers as of July 31 should contact their county ASCS office before the end of the month, according to the National Sunflower association.

Growers who plan to repay those loans must do so before the 31st to avoid penalties. For example, repayment after loan maturity is possible but it will include principal plus interest. Repayment of the loan before maturity can be paid at the posted county price and interest charges are waived.

This repayment policy on market loans is different from conventional loans for wheat and other grains which can be repaid after maturity.

The National Sunflower association reminds producers that the ASCS discount scale on sunflower forfeitures is generally more aggressive than the market, plus the government's premium scale is not as generous. Producers are likely to find that repaying the loan prior to maturity and selling the product in the market place is a better alternative than forfeiting.

Farmers are encouraged to discuss these options with their local ASCS office before loan maturity.

Steam and gas engine show on August 1-2

How long has it been since you've seen a 1918 Advance Rumley Oil Pull or even a 1928 Oil Pull? Perhaps a 1918 Bates Steel Mule? How about a 1926 Hart Parr? Well perhaps a 16 valve Twin City Pen?

These are just a few of the antique farm tractors that will be on display Saturday and Sunday, August 1-2, at the Lake of the Woods Steam and Gas Engine Association Show nine miles north of Roosevelt, or about four miles north of County road 12, on Highway 17. Signs will direct traffic to the show.

There are many other types and models of tractors along with six full size steam tractors which will be on display. Some will operate throughout the show. One of the steam traction engines, as they are also called, is powering the Historic Comstock Sawmill, cutting logs into various sizes of lumber, just as it did 50 years ago or more at one of the local lumber camps. A threshing machine power by another steam engine will also be on display.

"Portable" stationary engines, such as were used to power much of the smaller machinery prior to the advent and popularity of the electric motor, will also be on display in all sizes and shapes. There will also be one quarter to one half scale model steam engines, some will be operating the miniature sawmill and threshing machines.

"Modern" conveniences of the homemaker 70 or more years ago will be display and operating in the old log house Pioneer Home. Close by a blacksmith shop, complete with line shaft, power and a good collection of hand tools, will be on display.

A flea market will be held during the show. And, a dining hall will serve meals. Concession stands will also be operating.

At about 2 p.m. there will be a parade of all the antique cars, tractors and steam tractors that can be persuaded to keep running. Most of these engines run only two or three days out of the year.

On Sunday, at 9:30 a.m. a non-denominational worship service will be held on the grounds with Rev. Dale Blanshan of the church of Christ in Warroad, bringing the message. After the one-half hour service, the show will continue.

The Lake of the Woods Steam and Gas Engine Association is a non-profit group of interested people who have joined together to save, restore and display many of the tractors, cards, machinery, tools, clothing of yesterday before they are lost to the ravages of time or the scrap dealer. Most, if not all of the items on display, have been collected, restored, and are owned by individuals and not by the organization.

GME consultent Conrad Kragness, a senior environmental specialist, uses an HNU meter to test contamination of the soil surrounding three storage tanks. Road construction crews found the tanks buried in front of tha Norwest parking lot last Friday.

Changes made in Arctco's management arrangement

by Mark Olson
Staff Writer

Arctco, Inc. shuffled its management in response to a new line of Tigershark watercraft and potential new products.

Ole Tweet, formerly vice president of marketing, is now vice president of new product development and general manager of the marine division.

Mark Blackwell, formerly of American Suzuki, is vice president of marketing. Blackwell began the position at the beginning of May.

Tweet worked at Arctco since its conception, and previously worked for Arctic Enterprises. Tweet joined the wethike engineering division of Arctic Enterprises in 1977 and began working with the snowmobile division in 1978.

"I enjoyed the mechanics of it," Tweet said. "I suppose I miss it to some extent. Now I get to mess around with that again. I have the engineering and the marketing side, so it's kind of interesting."

Blackwell previously was in charge of marketing for the motorcycle, ATV and outboard motor production lines of American Suzuki.

A major portion of Tweet's product development job involves traveling. He recently returned from a business trip to Japan and was greeted by a desk full of "While you were gone" notes. "It takes a lot of hours to get a project like this done," Tweet said referring to the new Tigershark waterbikes. "I don't have time for hobbies."

Tweet said the travel involved had its ups and downs. "It's always interesting to see different places and people," Tweet said. It's sometimes hard to sit in a cramped chair for long periods of time.

"Traveling isn't all lousy. You miss your family. (Tweet is married to Ruth and has five children.) You are also away from phones and other people so you can sit and do a lot of work."

Tweet's job does not only include the Tigershark, but will encompass potential Arctco products as well. "We're always looking at new stuff. We just can't say specifically what we're looking at," Tweet said.

Blackwell had a longer geographical jump than Tweet, who is originally from Roseau. Blackwell is from Yorba Linda, a suburb of Los Angeles and home of the Richard Nixon library. "It's a huge change, but I'm really excited about it," Blackwell said.

Blackwell began his career as a motocross racer — a type of dirt-bike racing. After high school Blackwell raced professionally for two seasons in Europe and four seasons in the United States, becoming a national motocross champion.

Blackwell said injuries forced him to reduce his racing career and he became more involved in product development and promotion sides of motocross racing, testing tires, goggles and shocks.

While working, Blackwell went to National University at nights and weekends graduating with a business degree. He then went through the Pepperdine University graduate program, receiving an MBA.

Blackwell started working for American Suzuki in product development. He put together a motocross school for Suzuki and did promotional work.

Blackwell left Suzuki to work for the U.S branch of Husqvarna, a Scandinavian company that makes items such as chainsaws. While at Husqvarna, Blackwell held positions in sales, product planning, advertising, public relations. He was promoted to vice president of marketing after a year and a half.

He returned to Suzuki for six years and worked in marketing and sales before coming to Arctco. "I hope to be here a number of years," Blackwell said. Blackwell's wife Patti is enroute to Minnesota. Patti is a nurse who works as a home health liaison.

Blackwell called his move from California "a pretty big change. When you're in California and you ask somebody 'How are you doing?' they don't have time to answer you. Here you ask somebody how they're doing and they stop and tell you how they're doing and it's really sincere."

Blackwell said he looks forward to the quality of life and the outdoors. Blackwell can also look forward to snowmobiling. "When I accepted this position, I said to Chris Twomey that from a credibility standpoint I really need to know something about these products. I don't want to go through six months on the job never having ridden one."

Twomey sent Blackwell to Wyoming to snowmobile with the engineering/testing staff. "You don't become an expert in two days," Blackwell said, "but it gives you a heck of a feel for it."

Mark Blackwell, a native of California, began his marketing vice president position at Arctco, Inc., in May. Blackwell previously worked for American Suzuki where he was vice president of marketing for the motorcycle, ATV and outboard motor product lines.

Ole Tweet recently was assigned the position of marine division general manager and new product development vice president at Arctco, Inc., in Thief River Falls. He originally held the position of marketing vice president.

On July 25 police arrested Steven Richard Glass, St. Paul, for second degree assault, a felony. The charge stems from an incident reported on July 10 from the Riverview trailer court where an alleged victim reported that he had been knocked down and kicked causing several cuts and other bruises. Glass is also alleged to have pulled out a gun and pointed it at the face of another individual. Glass is in custody at the law enforcement center.

Vandalism. On July 26 at 14 minutes after midnight police received a report that a pickup had run down several mailboxes in Northwest trailer court. After running down 12 mailboxes and a stand the vehicle left the scene. Just north of Barzen and First street, police found more mailboxes and a stop sign damaged. Parts of the vehicle were found at the scene. Damage to the mailboxes and stop sign was estimated at $930. The vehicle was located a short time later in the parking lot of the Best Western and the owner talked to. The owner claimed that someone else had been driving his pickup. Damage to his pickup was estimated at $1,500. The incident is still under investigation.

Consumption under age. On July 25 at 12:47 a.m. police stopped a vehicle for speeding and issued a warning. The subject was also found to have been drinking. Scott Mostrom, route 3, Thief River Falls, was cited for consumption under age.

No burning permit. On July 25 at 12:20 a.m. police received a report of a house fire near 13th street. Steven Roy Carlson, 33, Thief River Falls, was cited for burning within the city limits.

Hit and run. On July 24 at 11:24 p.m. police received a report that a small black car going fast in the 600 block of South Crocker hit a parked car owned by Bromley Carr and then headed north in the alley. Carr's vehicle was pushed about six feet. Damage was estimated at about $200. Police have a witness to the accident. The incident is under investigation.

Phone scam. Police received a report from a resident of the county who reported a phone scam. The individual was notified that he had won a prize and had to claim it. Then the resident received calls and was asked to give out his credit card over the phone. Residents are asked to be wary of game prize claims.

Criminal damage to property. On July 27 at 8:27 p.m. police received a report of a vehicle being driven in an erratic manner at the Chaparral apartments. TRF residents recall W.W. II the damp climate. As they were about ready to head home the base at Adak got several new B24's, but lost all of them almost immediately, so the crews of the B17's had to stay another six months, even though they were getting beat up pretty badly. They remained there until the Battle of Attu.

Jarvis adds that flying was often difficult because the winds, while blowing at an average of 27 mph, could "climb to 125 mph like nothing." The men sometimes had to hang onto ropes to get from building to building. They flew about ten hours a day in weather that was often foggy and hard to navigate. They had no lights at the air field, no radios on the planes and had to "ride the waves" for hours on end. "Sometimes we flew so close to the water that we had waves breaking on the windshield of the plane and even pouring in." Having serious sinus problems added to the danger.

Fifty years ago this month Jarvis' family had a terrible shock when his father, who was in Washington D.C., was told that his son's plane had crashed and Jarvis was believed dead. He had been scheduled to be on the flight that had crashed, but fortunately for him, had requested not to fly that day.

After he left the Aleutians in mid-1943, Jarvis stayed in the service until 1945 as an instructor and later head of a radar training school in Victorville, CA. The science of reading radar was just being developed at that time and he recalls that they could see marked improvement in the quality of the radar pictures from the time he started working there to when he left two years later.

After his discharge at the rank of major, Jarvis helped to start the local National Guard unit and served in Germany during the Korean War.

"The world lost its conscience." Dorothy Berve of Thief River Falls talks about her memories of World War II. She recalls both World Wars and believes that the First World War was "more idealistic."

She was a student at Cornell college at that time, and remembers the First World War Armistice, when "we had a street dance. It was a Methodist school and didn't allow dancing, but everyone was so excited, the college didn't object at all. We all cut classes and marched to Lisbon, a nearby small town, where they served all of us a good dinner."

Dorothy Berve

She tells about her husband's War World II activities helping with processing the soldiers who left this area. "He never got paid for that. It was all volunteer. But he got a letter thanking him from President Roosevelt and one from the governor." Her husband, a local attorney, was active in politics, serving as county attorney, city attorney and in the state legislature. Dorothy recalls that "he was always going to meetings to speak and campaign for other Democrats." The meetings were held in churches, schools, and, in the summer, outdoors. "I talked to people and really enjoyed myself. Everyone was very friendly."

Dorothy spent much of her time caring for her home and doing tutoring since she had been a teacher for several years in Chicago and in Colorado before her marriage. She later worked for one winter as a social reporter for the Thief River Falls Forum, the local Democratic newspaper, as the Times was the Republican one. "I walked all over to cover weddings and write about people. I think I got paid about $50 for the whole winter."

She modestly jokes she was not very good at some of the things women were supposed to do during the war, although she participated in many of the activities even so. "My gardens were not prize-winning, not enough sun to ripen tomatoes," she recalls. "I tried to roll bandages, but I never seemed to get them right. I'm not very artistic. You would have to be an artist to do it correctly." Dorothy says she was "not a leader, very much a follower."

Strandquist . . . .

Peter H. Thompson says he wrapped his seed potatoes in newspaper when he planted them this spring so they wouldn't get dirt in the eyes. I know he is a caring person, but now I'm wondering if he isn't carrying it a bit far.

Earl and Ebba Sihlberg's "Good Will" neighbors, Donovan and Kelly Donarski, and Donna Donarski were over on Saturday and mowed the lawn, and hauled up wood. Earl is recovering from a recent surgery, and Ebba is under the weather with a severe cough. It could be this up and down weather changes that is so tough on us oldies. But even the tomatoes aren't doing very well neither this year, nor anything else in the gardens. Ebba hopes for at least one BLT sandwich our of her own garden, since she has spent so much of this summer keeping track of it.

June Kasprowicz and Frank and Judy Kleinvachter went for a long drive Sunday afternoon, stopping at Bud Steffen's in Argyle on the way home.

Roseau runner Cory Lund was tagged out by Thief River Falls catcher Jason Svir in the first inning of Friday's American Legion baseball game at Irv Wilson Field. Lund tried to score from second base on a single by Ryan Vatnsdal, but was cut down at the plate on a throw from centerfielder Marc Haugen. Thief River Falls won the game 7-3.

Ninth District American Legion baseball tournament...

TRF will receive first round bye

Play doesn't officially start until Saturday, but Thief River Falls already has a one game edge on the rest of the field for the 1992 Ninth District Division I American Legion baseball tournament at Matson Field in Moorhead.

Thief River Falls was scheduled to play Perham Saturday at 4 p.m. in the first round of the eight team, double-elimination event, which continues with games Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and if necessary, Wednesday. The winner will advance to the state tournament in Willmar starting Aug. 12.

However, Perham failed to complete the proper paperwork by a June 25 Legion deadline, making the team ineligible for post-season advancement, and tournament officials announced today (Tuesday) that Perham would not be part of the Ninth District playoffs.

Fergus Falls, Moorhead and Detroit Lakes, are seeded 1-through-3 in the Ninth District South Half (Perham would have been No. 4). Thief River Falls has a lock on the No. 1 spot in the North, but positions for East Grand Forks, Roseau and Crookston won't be determined until after an East Grand Forks-Roseau doubleheader is played tonight (Tuesday).

Saturday's first round Ninth District games will start with Fergus Falls vs. the North No. 4 team at 11 a.m. and Detroit Lakes vs. the North No. 2 team at 1:30 p.m. in the Upper Bracket. Thief River Falls picks up the bye at 4 p.m. and Moorhead takes on the North No. 3 team at 6:30 in the Lower Bracket.

On Sunday, the first round losers play at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. – the second contest now listed as a bye, while the first round winners play at 4 and 6:30 p.m.

The 1992 tournament appears to be a wide-open affair, according to Thief River Falls head coach Howard Dalager, whose team fared well in three regular season invitationals – taking championship honors at East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls, while going 5-1 for a runner-up bracket title in a recent 25-team tournament at Duluth. However, Post 117 followed the strong Duluth showing with a 3-2, 6-4 doubleheader loss at Moorhead last Wednesday.

"There is no clear cut favorite going into the tournament," noted Dalager. "We were pretty high coming off the Duluth tournament, but I was disappointed after losing to Moorhead. We didn't play as well against Moorhead as we did in Duluth."

Moorhead has a string of six straight Ninth District Class AA/Tier I/Division I titles. The Blues beat Class A/Tier I/Division I champions Dilworth, Barnesville and Tri-County in the Ninth District playoff finals earn state tournament berths in 1986, 1987 and 1988, but lost to Perham in the final AA/A match-up in 1989. The Blues added to their title run with championship game wins over Thief River Falls in 1990 and Fergus Falls in 1991.

"I always feel Moorhead has an edge," acknowledged Dalager, "and this year they have the home field advantage. But there's no question, if we play up to our potential, we're capable of winning it."

The 1991 Ninth District tournament was played at Irv Wilson Field in Thief River Falls.

Friday night baseball match-up at Irv Wilson Field...

Legion beats Roseau 7-3

Four bloop hits fell in during a five-run third inning Friday, lifting Thief River Falls past Roseau 7-3 in an American Legion baseball game played at Irv Wilson Field.

Post 117 batters didn't rip the cover off the ball, but their seeing-eye swings frustrated the head-shaking Roseau defenders who were unable to reach the soft fly balls.

It was Thief River Falls' first home appearance since June 23 – a month-long string of 18 road games – but if the Post 117 players were excited to finally be on home turf, they hid it well. Roseau took a 1-0 first inning lead on back-to-back game-opening walks and an RBI single by Andy Hedlund, and the visitors went up 3-1 in the third on a two-out, two-run home run over the right field fence by Ryan Vatnsdal.

Thief River Falls, after scoring in the second inning on a triple by David Blazek and a sacrifice fly by Pete Balmer, took charge in the bottom of the third, starting with a lead-off walk issued to Jason Svir and consecutive wild pitches that were followed by the first of the bloop hits – single behind second by Carter Rogalla.

Rogalla then stole second and third, scoring when the throw by the catcher to third sailed into left field. Mitch Bernstein, who dropped a single into short center field, also came up with two stolen bases and scored on a two-out single by Balmer to break the 3-3 tie. A short pop-up to left field wound up as an RBI double for Darin Wald as Balmer scored from first base by just beating the throw to the plate.

Wald took third on the throw and scored the fifth run of the inning on yet another blooper – a double down the left field line by Marc Haugen.

Only other run crossed the plate in the Thief River Falls sixth when Svir walked, stole second and scored on a two-out single to right by Trevor Haugen.

Bernstein and Marc Haugen, along with Vatnsdal and Jon Vagle of Roseau, were 2-for-3 for the night.

Blazek pitched the first four innings for the win. Jeremy Olson threw three shutout innings in relief. They gave struck out eight, but walked nine.

Chad and Ryan Hedlund did the Roseau pitching. Chad went the first three inning and took the loss. They struck out four and added eight walks to the game's total.

Assistant coach Jerald Hagen directed the team for the night in the absence of head coach Howard Dalager.

Warroad 8

Thief River Falls No. 2 started District 7 tournament play in dramatic fashion, overcoming a 7-3 seventh inning deficit en route to a 9-8 win over Warroad in 10 innings Thursday.

After sending it into extra innings with the four-run bottom of the seventh rally, Thief River Falls had to produce another comeback in the eighth when, with his team trailing 8-7, Jon Lee came through with a double on an 0-2, two-pitch pitch, and scored moments later on a double by teammate Paul Otto.

Otto was 2-for-2, while Lee, Greg Wik and Tanner Martell all went 2-for-4. Martell drove in four runs.

Thief River Falls starting pitcher Courtney Skjerven went three innings before Stefan Ronchetti came on in relief and struck out 11 in seven innings of work for the win.

Opening dates are announced for LHS squads

Preseason fall sports practice for Thief River Falls boys and girls involved in high school athletic programs will begin Monday, Aug. 17, when workouts get underway for football, boys and girls cross country, girls tennis, and girls swimming.

Volleyball drills start a week later – Monday, Aug. 24.

Fall sports participants and their parents are reminded to make sure physical examination requirements are completed prior to the start of the preseason drills.

Parents of the athletes should check their records to see if the student is due for a physical before the start of the 1992-93 school year, and to schedule exams ahead of time to avoid a last-minute rush at the clinic.

Thief River Falls 14-15-year-olds place second...

Crookston wins Babe Ruth title

Three one-sided wins gave host Crookston a state tournament-qualifying title at the 1992 District 7 Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds that was completed Sunday.

Crookston handled Red Lake Falls 18-2, Roseau 11-4 and Thief River Falls 12-2 in the six-team, double-elimination event to earn a berth in the state tournament which begins Thursday in Mankato.

Thief River Falls' District 7 entry, featuring players from the rosters of the regular season Marlins, Lobos, Strikers, and Shockers, lost a 14-12 first round decision to East Grand Forks, but came back through the loser's bracket to reach the finals with wins over Red Lake Falls 10-8, Warroad 15-10 and Roseau 4-3 before losing to Crookston.

Coached by Chris Nelson, the Thief River Falls team anticipated a spot in the state in-tact tournament designed for district runner-up teams, but it was discovered Monday that mix-up at the district level will apparently keep the team out of the event, scheduled to begin Aug. 6 at East Twin in St. Paul.

Legion is 2-0 winner at Roseau

Six-hit shutout pitching by Mitch Bernstein produced a 2-0 Thief River Falls Monday night American Legion baseball win at Roseau.

The victory completed a home-and-home sweep in the series that included a 7-3 Thief River Falls win in a Friday match-up at Irv Wilson Field.

The 25-10 Post 117 team was scheduled to close out its 1992 regular season schedule at home tonight (Tuesday) with a 5:30 p.m. game against Detroit Lakes.

Bernstein struck out six and walked just one, getting out of a seventh inning jam to preserve the shutout and the win. After throwing 6 2/3 innings of three-hit ball, Bernstein surrendered three successive two-out seventh inning singles before getting the final out of the game on a bouncer back to the mound.

Thief River Falls also had six hits, including two apiece for David Blazek and Jason Svir.

First Thief River Falls run crossed the plate in the third inning when Wade Evenson drew a walk, went to third on a hit-and-run single by Blazek and scored on a sacrifice fly – a pop-up behind first base off the bat of Svir.

It became 2-0 in the fifth when an outfield error, a single by Svir and a walk issued to Bernstein loaded the bases, and Nathan Knutson was hit by a pitch to force in a run.

A portion of the drive is one-way traffic only. The recommended entry point is the main dike road one and three quarter miles south of the WMA headquarters building on County Road [illegible]. The speed limit on all WMA roads is 20 mph.

Motorists are urged to use caution in the dike areas because of narrow roads, soft shoulders and deep ditches. Inclement weather may require closing the drive if roadways deteriorate. Other dike roads on the WMA will remain closed to vehicular traffic to provide undisturbed habitat for wildlife.

For more information, contact the Roseau River WMA office at 463-1557.

Turkey Release Illegal

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is again receiving complaints of pen-raised or game farm wild turkeys roaming through yards and gardens, roosting on houses, and generally creating nuisance problems, according to Gary Nelson, a DNR wild turkey specialist.

It is illegal for anyone to release a turkey into the wild in Minnesota, Nelson said. DNR regulations state: "A person may not buy, sell, transfer, import, or release in the state any wild turkey or wild turkey hybrid, without first obtaining a permit from the Commissioner."

Live turkeys, which are often advertised for sale to the public, may look like a wild turkey, but they are not, said Kevin Lines, the DNR's Farmland Wildlife Program leader. "These pen-raised or game farm wild turkeys are birds that have been maintained in captivity or have been associated with domestic poultry stock at some time, and do not exhibit wild behavior," Lines explained.

Not only is it illegal for someone to release pen-raised or game farm turkeys into the wild, it could also negatively affect whether an area is considered a potential release site for wild trapped birds by the DNR, according to Lines.

Minnesota's wild turkey population, estimated to be 18,000 to 20,000 birds, is the direct result of relocation efforts by the DNR using wild-trapped turkeys from established populations.

DNR has recently completed its first year of a six-year accelerated wild turkey trap and transplant project, Lines said. This accelerated effort will complete relocation of wild-trapped turkeys in Minnesota's primary wild turkey habitat by 1997.

Zebra Mussels

Now that zebra mussels have been discovered on barges in the Mississippi River at St. Paul, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is urging boaters to check their craft when they remove them from the river. That's not just a suggestion – soon it will be the law.

The yellow-and-brown-striped zebra mussels reproduce rapidly and attach themselves to hard surfaces in large numbers, sometimes covering boat hulls, clogging water intake pipes, and posing problems for other waterlife.

DNR funds go to 82 Minnesota counties

Checks totaling $[illegible] were recently sent to 82 Minnesota counties from the Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Real Estate Management to compensate for loss of tax revenues on lands purchased for wildlife management areas.

The payments in lieu of taxes are made annually from the Minnesota State Game and Fish Fund. Receipts into the fund are primarily from the sale of of hunting, trapping and fishing licenses and federal aid monies appropriated to the state for fish and wildlife restoration projects.

The Division of Fish & Wildlife manages more than 715,758 acres in more than 1,137 wildlife management areas. WMAs are managed for wildlife production, habitat protection and enhancement, public hunting, trapping and other compatible uses.

Payments to the individual counties are calculated on a three-step formula. By law, the county treasurer is required to distribute the payments among the county and the respective towns and school districts where the wildlife lands are located, on the same basis as if the payments were received as property taxes.

In addition to these payments, the DNR also makes in-lieu-of-tax payments to counties from the General Fund amounting to more than $4.7 million dollars. Payments for wildlife lands are deducted from the next year's in-lieu-of-tax payments made from the General Fund.

INSURANCE Update
by Dee Schmidtgall

All auto policies in Minnesota covering private passenger vehicles must cover damage to any rented private passenger vehicle. This includes pickups and vans as well as rented trucks with a registered gross vehicle weight of 26,000 pounds or less.

• The policy covers a minimum of $35,000.00, even if the client has a non-standard policy and pays premiums for less than $35,000.00 coverage. The rental coverage is provided under the property damage liability portion of the policy.

• Rental car companies cannot require anyone who maintains a Minnesota auto policy to purchase insurance or damage liability waivers before renting a car. This is true in all states.

• In addition, because all Minnesota auto policies have rental car coverage, there is no need to ever purchase such coverage from rental companies in the United States, its territories and possessions, and Canada. Minnesota policies will cover accidents in those places.

Multi-zone DNR buck licenses are available for 1992 deer season

Applications for Minnesota's new multi-zone buck license are still available at all license vendors, county auditors offices, and the Department of Natural Resources License Bureau in St. Paul.

Hunters obtaining the license will be allowed to hunt during any open firearms deer zone season except the late Zone 3B and muzzleloader seasons. Hunters who purchase a multi-zone buck license are not eligible for the antlerless permit drawing, firearms deer management permits (formerly called bonus licenses), or other special firearms hunts.

Applications for the multi-zone buck license were first accepted on July 13, and will continue to be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis through July 31. No more than 20,000 of the $45 licenses will be issued.

Early interest in the new license has been lower than expected, according to DNR Wildlife Chief Tim Bremicker. "We want to make sure that hunters know there are still plenty of these licenses available.

DNR News

A rare outbreak of Newcastle disease killed 1,102 young pelicans and 601 young cormorants through July 13 at Marsh Lake near Appleton in western Minnesota, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

State and federal officials continue to be concerned about the outbreak of the disease and the potential that it could infect other wild birds and domestic fowl. Newcastle disease, which is caused by a virus, is not known to cause problems in humans. However, because the disease can be spread by direct contact, officials are cautioning anyone who has been in or near any pelican or cormorant nesting sites in the area to stay away from domestic poultry operations.

The outbreak was discovered during late June and early July when a number of dead cormorants and pelicans were found on two small islands at Marsh Lake in the Lac qui Parle Wildlife Management Area. Marsh Lake is a shallow lake on the Minnesota River in western Minnesota near the South Dakota border, between Lac qui Parle and Big Stone lakes. On July 7, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service National Wildlife Health Research Center staff confirmed the cause of death to be Newcastle disease.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Minnesota Board of Animal Health worked together to contain the disease and clean up the area. To prevent further spread of the virus, all dead birds were collected and incinerated, and all access to Marsh Lake was closed until further notice. The islands were disinfected with a chlorine solution to kill the virus.

The disease can be fatal to young birds, but it is not thought to affect adult birds. Approximately 120 young cormorants and 1,200 young pelican are still alive at the site.

According to Ron Windingstad, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist, Newcastle disease is rare among wild birds. Windingstad knows of no other such cases among wild birds in the central United States during his 14 years with the federal agency, although he said the disease has been reported in England and Canada in recent years. Other die-offs of cormorants in the Great Lakes and Midwest regions have recently been reported, but Newcastle disease had only been confirmed in Minnesota and on the Ontario side of Lake Huron.

It is not known how Newcastle disease was transmitted to the area. One possibility is that adult cormorants might have carried the virus from their wintering grounds in Mexico, where the virus is known to exist.

The virus could remain present in fecal materials for as long as six weeks. Because of concerns that the infection could spread to wild waterfowl and other birds, officials intend to 'clean' the area as thoroughly as possible before September, when thousands of migrating Canada goose traditionally begin stopping in the Lac qui Parle area.

Fishing piers popular

Fishing piers and platforms constructed by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources – like the one built on the Red Lake River in Thief River Falls – are proving popular with anglers.

"The fishing pier program has grown greatly in popularity since the first pier was installed on Hyland Lake in Bloomington in 1984," said Kim Lockwood, DNR Trails and Waterways federal aid specialist.

Piers are now located on lakes throughout the state, along with shore fishing platforms on a number of rivers. Seventeen more piers were scheduled to be installed this year, bringing the number of piers and platforms build by the DNR since 1984 to 127.

The facilities are maintained by local units of government under the Cooperative Opportunities for Resource Enhancement program.

A fishing pier is usually considered at the request of a local unit of government. The DNR then considers several criteria in evaluating the request. Priority is given to bodies of water with viable fisheries, free public boat access and substantial public use, said Lockwood.

Most piers are T-shaped, extending 84 feet from shore, with 40-foot T-crossbars at the ends. Other designs such as an L-shape pier are also available. All models are built of pine, with safety railings enclosing each section. They cost about $20,000 each.

"Piers allow anglers to get out over deeper water where the bigger fish are located," said Duane Shodeen, DNR Metro Region Fisheries supervisor. "Typically, anglers will catch more panfish and have a better chance for larger gamefish such as northern pike and largemouth bass," Shodeen said.

Popularity of piers continues to grow, particularly for anglers who don't own boats. The piers are also used by many people to observe wildlife and scenery.

Maps showing DNR fishing pier locations and shore fishing platforms are available at DNR regional headquarters in St. Paul, Rochester, New Ulm, Brainerd, Grand Rapids, and Bemidji, or by calling the DNR Information Center.

Former resident faces cancer one day at a time

Editor's Note: In 1986, a former Thief River Falls resident was diagnosed as having cancer. The following is the story of Angie Gronseth, daughter of Lydia Owen and the late Morris Owen of Thief River Falls as printed in the St. Louis Park Sun-Sailor on June 10, 1992 and written by Mickey Tibbits.

You need two things to cope with cancer, advises Angie Gronseth. Those two things, she said, are support and faith.

Gronseth, a St. Louis Park cancer survivor, considers herself lucky because she has that support from her husband and the members of her church, the Colonial Church of Edina. "I had a tremendous amount of support and tremendous faith. I prayed a lot."

Although she had not had any symptoms, her gynecologist discovered a tumor when he did a pelvic examination in January of 1986. A few weeks later exploratory surgery revealed she had ovarian cancer. It had already reached stage three (out of four stages), which means it had metastasized.

"Ovarian cancer is referred to as the silent cancer," said Gronseth. It does not show up on a pap smear.

Her oncologist, Dr. Gail Bender at Methodist Hospital, told her the survival rate for ovarian cancer is 20 per cent. "But she added, 'That is not to say we can't give you a lot of time,'" Gronseth said.

She compares her first round of chemotherapy at Methodist Hospital six years ago to a boxing match. "You get punched and knocked down with the treatments. When you're starting to feel better by the fourth week, you go back in the ring for another round to be punched backed down," she said. "I hate boxing, maybe that's why I relate it to chemotherapy.

"They're dumping poisons in your body."

Chemotherapy is hard, said Gronseth, especially the first treatment. "It's scary. You feel like a child going in for a tonsillectomy. You don't know what's going on."

Through CanSurmount, she reaches out to other ovarian cancer patients, providing them with the support only someone who has been there can give. "I briefly tell them what I've been through. Then I ask them what questions they have."

What Gronseth has "been through" is a lot. Her father died of a long illness three months after she started chemotherapy. One month later, her son and only child was killed in an oil-field accident in Texas.

"I often relate that to people. If I had known that in four and one-half months I would be diagnosed with cancer and deal with the death of my father and son, I would have told them, 'Forget it. I can't handle it.' I had a rough, rough summer."

Gronseth recognized the symptoms of depression and sought professional help. "It took four or five months to muddle through it."

Through her misfortune she has developed a level of understanding about life that many people never realize. "You need support and faith and to believe that you can win. You have to be willing to fight for what you want. You have to think positively. "I have truly learned to live one day at a time," said Gronseth. "It is absolutely marvelous not to worry about tomorrow, but to live life for today."

Gronseth said she dealt with her mortality when she was first told she had cancer. "You have to face dying before you can go on living.

"I can prioritize. I realize what's important. Why waste energy on what you can't control?"

Gronseth said coping can be different things to different people. "You need to do what's right for you," she said.

"When I was diagnosed as having cancer, my goal was to maintain life as best I could," said Gronseth, a retail banking manager and vice president of Firstar Bank in St. Louis Park.

Although she has worked for the bank 30 years and continued to work while she was going through various treatments, Gronseth said it has become less of a priority. Now spending time with her husband comes before everything else. The couple enjoys golfing and traveling.

As the result of her cancer, she has become closer to her siblings. Every year her sisters get together for a sister reunion. She just returned from a vacation with her sisters in Mazatlan, Mexico.

Gronseth copes with her cancer by teaching others about the disease. In addition to the CanSurmount program, she talks openly with friends and co-workers. "People need to know cancer isn't the end of your life, it can be the beginning of a lot of good things."

Everyone needs to know about cancer, Gronseth said, quoting the statistic that one out of every four people will have cancer. "If not you, someone in your family. It is fear of the unknown that is scary. You need to know the big C word is not so scary."

Gronseth started her fourth treatment series, a pill, last week. One of the reasons Gronseth has lived so long, she said, is that her cancer is growing slowly. In addition to the four stages, cancer is also graded from one to four to indicate how fast the cancer cells grow. She has grade one.

Initially Gronseth had a year of chemotherapy followed by a second exploratory surgery. During that surgery doctors discovered she has an inoperable tumor in the bowel area. They inserted a peritoneal tube in her stomach to give her chemotherapy. Because of complications with the tubing, she had a third operation to have it removed.

Gronseth said she takes an active role in her treatment. In 1987, Gronseth together with Bender and her husband decided to monitor her cancer, rather than continue aggressive treatments.

She is monitored by CAT scans and the CA125 cancer blood test. When she was first diagnosed, her reading was 458 (anything over 34 is considered abnormal). The CA125 test is discussed on television by Gene Wilder, Gilda Radner's widower.

Transit plan aired Aug. 14

Northwest Regional Development commission and the office of transit, Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT) will conduct a northwest Minnesota area meeting on the state transit plan Friday, August 14, at 9 a.m. at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls.

For information about the meeting call Sandra Warner-Coltom at the Northwest Regional Development commission offices, 681-2637.

The transit plan will be, in large part, the by-product of a number of such local meetings to be held across the state this summer. It will describe transit need throughout the state as expressed by residents, transportation professionals and numerous customer groups.

"It will set the vision for transit in northwestern Minnesota and establish a process for providing comprehensive coordinated service," Warner-Coltom said. "Please come and express your ideas and suggestions so that we can work together to develop a plan for transit in our area."

Linnea Dimich, daughter of Dr. Tom and Judy Dimich of Thief River Falls and a 1992 graduated of Lincoln high school, was recently awarded a $2,000 member scholarship from Lutheran Brotherhood. The scholarship is renewable through the fourth year of undergraduate study. Recipient selection among Lutheran Brotherhood members is based on academic excellence, community involvement and leadership. Linnea will attend Concordia college in Moorhead this fall. There were more than 3,000 applicants for the scholarships this year with 624 new recipients selected to receive a total of $742,000. Shown presenting Linnea with her award certificate is Kay Wedul, Lutheran Brotherhood district representative in Thief River Falls.

State leads way with Hwy. research

Residents traveling on Interstate 94 about 40 miles northwest of the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, may be wondering about a curious stretch of roadway which seems to go nowhere. Actually, the road is known as Mn/ROAD, a research project that will allow researchers the opportunity to study the effects of heavy traffic loads and cold weather climate on pavement performance.

The Minnesota Department of Transportation is constructing the world's largest and most heavily instrumented roadway testing facility parallel to Interstate 94 about 40 miles northwest of the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

The purpose of the Minnesota Road Research Project, known as Mn/ROAD, is to provide Mn/DOT and other researchers the opportunity to study the effects of heavy traffic loads and cold weather climate on pavement performance. Research conducted at Mn/ROAD will produce much more information than ever before due to modern technology. Nearly 4,500 roadway sensors will be connected to a central computer database system.

The idea behind Mn/ROAD began in 1986. Construction of the facility has been underway the last four years and has raised the curiosity of motorists traveling on I-94. It is scheduled for completion by summer of 1994.

Approximately $1.3 billion is invested every two years in the highway infrastructure in Minnesota alone. The research from Mn/ROAD could mean millions of dollars saved in the future on a statewide, national and international level.

"By designing and constructing better pavements that will last longer and require less maintenance, we can make tax dollars stretch farther," said Nelrae Succio, Mn/ROAD Project Manager.

The major objectives of the research at Mn/ROAD include verifying existing pavement design models, analyzing factors that affect pavement performance, developing new design models and intensively analyzing instrumentation.

There is a growing emphasis on highway research in the transportation industry; Minnesota is gaining national and international prominence because of the Mn/ROAD project, according to Transportation Commissioner James N. Denn.

"Our existing investment in transportation must be protected and the opportunities for a more cost effective system need to be developed using new technologies available only through research," said Denn.

The estimated dollar investment in the Mn/ROAD project is $20 million, with about 60 per cent funded by federal money. While the initial phase of research at Mn/ROAD is expected to last a minimum of 10 years, additional research could last 20 years and beyond.

Two types of test roadways are presently under construction. The first, a three-mile two lane "mainline" road, will carry live traffic switched over without interruption from the existing westbound I-94 lanes. The normally high number and variety of truck traffic will provide the axle load weights necessary for high volume, high speed pavement research.

The second is a closed loop roadway adjacent to the mainline test road used to study low volume road designs and materials, which would apply to many county, city and township roads. It will use trucks with specific weights, axle configurations and other factors. This low volume road will be used for controlled testing only and will have no effect on interstate traffic.

A total of 40 pavement test sections 500 feet long each are being constructed. Several pavement designs will be tested, consisting of various materials, thickness and compositions. Currently, there are 75 projects scheduled for research at Mn/ROAD.

The mainline test road will incorporate 23 sections designed to last five and 10 years. The low volume road will have 17 test sections designed for a three year life.

Sensors in the pavement and sub-surface layers will measure and record load responses such as strain, deflection and pressure. Other sensors will monitor and record moisture conditions, freeze/thaw conditions, temperature of materials, etc.

In addition, a Weigh-In-Motion (WIM) scale now monitors and

GOD ENABLED MAN TO REACH THE LIMIT OF OUTER SPACE

It has been 23 years since the crew members of Apollo 11 set foot on the moon, in that incredible triumph of man over the force of gravity that has always tied him to Planet Earth. Since then, others have ventured into outer space, and what may be even more mind-boggling, we have sent unmanned spacecraft on photographic missions that resulted in pictures of planets and satellites with minute details that gave you the feeling of actually being there. Some of us will in fact be there in the next century, for there are plans to send a delegation to our neighboring Mars. Go to your House of Worship and thank God for giving man the intelligence and technology to accomplish these marvelous feats, as well as the bright promise of even more achievements that the future will bring.

But, Gronseth warns, the CA125 test is not always accurate in diagnosing cancer. In her case it is used as a monitoring tool. Although her reading was down to 100, it has gradually fluctuated upwards and has been more than 300 for the last five months.

Last summer a breast biopsy revealed the tiny spot in her breast contained the metastasized cells from her ovarian cancer.

Gronseth said she wanted to get into a University Hospital's study to receive taxol, a drug extracted from the yew tree. Unfortunately, she does not fit the study's criteria.

Although she feels good and looks great, Gronseth said, "I'm a realist and an optimist. I realize I have an active cancer.

"Sometimes I feel guilty that God left me here. But I realize my work isn't finished."

A Century Of Peace...

This week we welcome to Thief River Falls the annual convention of the International War Veterans' Alliance, a group of military veterans from the United States and Canada which is built on comradeship and good will between the two friendly nations. About 300 people are expected for the convention and we are glad to have all of them here.

Most of us seldom think about that border between the United States and Canada as a boundary between nations. It is seen as a minor inconvenience, like a toll bridge without the fee, as we generally stop briefly, answer a few hasty questions and are on our way in or out of either country.

What a blessing it is to have such a good neighbor along that 3,000 mile border line! While neighboring nations are embroiled in bitter conflict all around the world and the meaning of peace in those lands is virtually unknown, we can consider Canadians as our friends and allies and expect to be considered the same by them.

Inside the cover of the IWVA convention program is a poem by Guy W. Bilsland, written during World War I but no less pertinent today. It' is entitled "A Century Of Peace" and talks about that miraculous U.S. - Canada border as follows:

A Century Of Peace

Three thousand miles of border line! One hundred years of peace!
In all the page of history, what parallel to this?
In times when warring nations' thoughts are crazed with hate's hot wine,
How God must look with pleasure down upon that border line!

From Maine it runs through lake and stream, to Manitoba's plain;
From Winnipeg to Kootenay—on, on, and on again!
Though farm and ranch and forest range, o'er mountains, crag and steep,
To far Vancouver's garden home by broad Pacific's sweep.

Three thousand miles of border line—two nations side by side,
Each strong in common motherhood and Anglo-Saxon pride,
Yet each the haven and the home for all of foreign birth,
And each their final fusion point—the melting pot of earth!

Three thousand miles of border line—nor fort nor armored host
On all this frontier neighbor-ground, from east to western coast;
A spectacle to conjure with—a thought to stir the blood!
A living proof to all the world of faith in brotherhood!

Three thousand miles of border line—nor has a century
Seen aught along this common course but peace and harmony.
O nations bound in brotherhood! O faith in fellow man!
What better way on earth to dwell, than this God-given plan?

Three thousand miles of border line! One hundred years of peace!
In all the page of history, what parallel to this?
God speed that surely dawning day, that coming hour divine,
When ALL the nations of the earth shall boast such border line!

Government Goes Too Far In Assessing Penalty

"If a court can put a media outlet out of business because it makes a mistake about what it publishes or disseminates, then the Damocles sword is hanging over the head of every media outlet in the country," attorney John Weston states in a recent article in the Wall Street Journal.

At issue is a federal law permitting the government to seize entire businesses as punishment for the sale of pornographic materials that may be only a fraction of a company's commerce.

A case in point is Ferris Alexander, who operated a chain of bookstores, theaters and video stores in the Minneapolis area and was convicted under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization (RICO) Act obscenity law for selling four pornographic magazines and three videotapes valued at less than $200.

Alexander was sentenced to six years in prison, fined $200,000 and forfeited a $25 million business! Yet the Justice Department has asked the Supreme Court to reject an appeal, arguing that the "forfeiture penalty is no more chilling than a prison sentence or fine."

Attorney Weston wrote in his petition to the Supreme Court that the seizure and destruction of inventories that have not been found obscene are an impermissible prior restraint that violates the First Amendment. Under a 1984 addition to the law, however, a person convicted of obscenity under RICO is subject to the barrage of penalties in Alexander's sentence.

Alexander is probably a very unsavory character whose "business" is despicable by the standards of most decent people. And the four magazines and three videotapes he was convicted of selling were probably only enough samples to make the government's case stick. Pornography has catered to and possibly created sick minds in people who can and sometimes do inflict harm on others, including children.

Wiping out a defendant's supply of pornographic material is one thing, but causing him to forfeit all of his business is quite another. We disagree with the Justice Department's assessment —the forfeiture penalty is more chilling than a prison sentence or fine, especially to the extent of a $25 million forfeiture.

With attempts at censorship by individuals or groups growing across the land—resulting in banning of "My Friend Flicka" from libraries because it contains the words bitch and damn and Grimm's "Little Red Riding Hood" because her basket contains a bottle of wine—who knows where the heavy hand of government will fall next.

On School District 564 Restructuring

School District 564 is considering a major building and restructuring program in the near future. The following questions and answers are provided by the Facilities Steering Committee, a group of local citizens which has researched the local school situation and recommended the project to the board of education.

QUESTION: Did the local school district officials ask the State Fire Marshall to make an inspection of buildings in the district?

ANSWER: No. During the last legislative session, lawmakers ordered inspection by the State Fire Marshall for all schools in the state. In our district, the State Fire Marshall's office has given us until 1994 to provide building-wide sprinkler systems at Knox elementary school (estimated cost of $50,920), Northrop elementary ($70,940), Washington elementary ($17,850), Mark Twain elementary ($22,500), the District Service Center (25,000), Lincoln high school ($28,000) and Franklin middle school ($38,400).

Under the restructuring proposal to be presented to the voters in a bond referendum September 15, the cost of updating our buildings to comply with fire codes would be carried by the bond issue, with the state picking up more than three-fourths of the cost. That option may not be available to the district in the long term.

From The Times Files of Fifty Years Ago

Local Band Plays at County Fair

"The municipal band will cooperate in Thief River Falls Day at the Pennington county fair today by performing this afternoon and evening on the fairgrounds, it was announced by the management of the fair. The band made its latest public appearance last Friday evening when it rendered a concert in the west side park, pleasant weather favoring the occasion."

Independent Grocery Expanded into Supermarket

"Work was started last week on the remodeling of the quarters formerly occupied by the Carlisle Hardware company with a view to incorporating them into the space in the same building occupied by the Independent Grocery, it was announced this week by A. M. Magnuson, proprietor of the grocery and owner of the building. The crowded condition of the present store will be relieved by expansion into a supermarket, the project being scheduled for completion about September 1. Nels O. Olson, local contractor, has charge of the alterations."

Children's Day at Fair Saturday

"With the cancellation of the automobile race scheduled for Saturday at the Pennington county fair necessitated by the federal ban on racing which becomes effective that day, the management of the fair has designated Saturday afternoon, August 1, as Children's Day, with a program having a special appeal for the young folks. A special program of outstanding circus and vaudeville acts will be presented in front of the grandstand during the afternoon, and to insure a capacity crowd the fair board has put into effect, for Saturday afternoon only, a fee of only ten cents for admitting children to the grandstand, while adults will be admitted on payment of 25 cents, this figure including the federal tax."

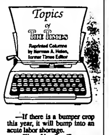
From the Editorial Page

"This is one of the toughest weeks of the year for us to grind out copy for this column — not because there are not numberless things that might be commented on but because it is difficult to settle down long enough to get a few ideas connected. We haven't looked at a newspaper for a couple of days, but we are sure the war is still progressing unfavorably. That's always good for a few lines on the fact that it might be a lot worse. Nothing like being cheerful when things are going badly. The school board is fighting a losing battle in its efforts to secure a faculty. For every teacher they hire a couple of them resign and their outlook is as discouraging as that of the government officials who are trying to build ships faster than the subs sink them. The result is that many married ex-teachers probably will be back on the payrolls, before the war is over. Good thing, maybe for the man who married teachers. Fair officials worry about weather, of course, but they are not necessarily opposed to rain, providing it comes at the right time. A shower at the right time of the day helps attendance. A rain-out the last night would be a real headache for them. What should they do about the big prize if there were only a few people on the grounds? They shudder when they think about it. So it goes. There are any number of things a fellow could be for or against, but none of them seem important during fair week. But why worry about it. There are plenty of other weeks that can be devoted to solutions of the world's vexing problems. Things won't go to pot if we skip a week. Good night."



Topics of The Times

—If there is a bumper crop this year, it will bump into an acute labor shortage.

—The U. S. Treasury reports that Minnesota citizens paid federal taxes totaling 146 million dollars during the past fiscal year. Ponder that fact well, you folks who think the government gets its money out of the air.

—The county fair this year features bands and bonds, not bunds.

—Billy Noonan of Baudette reports that Mae West is flat busted (financially).

—Rev. Henry J. Soltau perhaps is expecting too much when he hopes his martyrdom will carry him to the United States senate.

—Clipped quotation: Happiness is not a reward: It is a consequence.

—Attics around town are getting a rather empty look as a result of all the salvage campaigns.

—With the organization of the Women's auxiliary army corps, men again will be accused of hiding behind women's skirts.

—There was no shortage of heating last week when a shortage of beef developed in some of the larger cities of the country.

—If only the politicians in Washington would show as much concern about winning the war as they do about winning re-elections.

—They're planning on organizing a baseball team from among the nine candidates for sheriff in Roseau county.

—Maybe they call it shortcake because the strawberry season is all too short.

Lynnae Broten, 20-year-old daughter of Ron and Mary Broten of Thief River Falls, was crowned Miss Thief River Falls Saturday evening at the Miss America preliminary scholarship pageant in the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Lynnae succeeds Doni Doreen Loeslie of Warren as Miss Thief River Falls and will represent the community at the Miss Minnesota pageant in Austin next June.

First runner-up was Kari DeLap, 18, daughter of Roger and Carol DeLap of Thief River Falls. Second runner-up was Nicole Paulson, 18, daughter of David and Diane Paulson of Goodridge.

Kari DeLap won the talent division with a vocal solo, "The Music of the Night," from "Phantom of the Opera" by Andrew Lloyd Webber. Lynnae Broten won the swimsuit division.

Competition was also held in personal interview and on-stage personality (evening gown) divisions but winners were not announced for those divisions under Miss Minnesota Pageant policy adopted for this year. A member of the state pageant board said the talent and evening gown divisions represent respective high and low point values in the judging point system.

A three-way tie resulted in the vote among the candidates for Miss Congeniality. Sharing the recognition were Lynnae Broten, Celeste Bjerken and Nanette Berg.

In addition to her participation in the Miss Minnesota pageant, Lynnae will receive a $1,000 scholarship and $1,000 travel and expense allowance for activities related to her appearances as Miss Thief River Falls. She also received a hand-crafted walnut keepsake box, silver jewelry box and one day's interest on a million dollars at prime rate from the Thief River Falls financial institutions.

Kari DeLap will receive a $275 scholarship and crystal keepsake box as first runner-up and a $50 scholarship as talent division winner. Nicole Paulson will receive a $150 scholarship and crystal keepsake box as second runner-up.

All contestants in the event receive a 20 inch gold chain and division winners receive inscribed charms. Miss Congeniality winners receive $50 scholarships and crystal frames.

Sponsored by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, the Miss Thief River Falls scholarship pageant is an official Miss America Preliminary pageant. At the local, state and national Miss America pageants over $5 million in scholarships is available annually. Miss America receives a $35,000 scholarship plus a $7,500 scholarship from a national sponsor and first through fourth runners-up receive $20,000, $14,000, $11,000 and $8,000 respectively.

Tree planting helps save energy

Minnesota Department of Public Service (DPS) is encouraging homeowners and Minnesota communities to plant trees this season for energy conservation. DPS is the agency responsible for developing the state's energy policies.

"Energy conservation is a cornerstone of Minnesota's energy policies because it helps both the economy and the environment," states Kris Sanda, commissioner of the DPS. "Tree planting is an especially attractive strategy to save energy because it appeals to all ages. We all appreciate trees, their beauty, the comfort they provide and their many environmental benefits."

Studies at the University of Minnesota and in other sections of the country are finding that trees, when planted in strategic locations, reduce energy use for air conditioning as much as 30 per cent. They also can reduce winter heating bills.

To achieve maximum energy savings from trees, Sanda suggests following these general principles:

For summer savings: Give first priority to planting deciduous trees to shade west-facing windows and walls. Shading east-facing windows and walls, air conditioners (window units and outdoor condensers), and paved areas also is important. Generally, trees should not be planted near south-facing windows and walls since shade, even from leafless deciduous trees, can interfere with solar heat gain in winter.

For winter savings: The old principles of shelterbelt planting on farms hold true for city plantings as well. Evergreen trees that retain their branches and foliage to the ground should be planted upwind—generally to the north and west of the home. On large sites, multiple rows of evergreens and deciduous trees and shrubs can be planted.

A brochure describing these principles and listing various trees and shrubs suitable for planting in Minnesota is available from the Minnesota Department of Public Service. Other educational materials as well as cost-share grants for community conservation tree planting are also available. For more information, call 1-800-652-9747 and ask for "Energy."

Hahne named principal at Franklin middle school

Bill Hahne has been selected the new principal at Franklin middle school to succeed Dr. Milton Hoff who has retired. Hahne officially assumed the Franklin principalship July 1 and says he is excited about returning to the middle school. "I've always enjoyed working with middle school-aged students...it's the reason I moved to Thief River Falls seven years ago," he said.

Hahne graduated from North Dakota State University in 1971 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Language Arts. He then moved to Walnut Grove and taught English and Drivers Education there "on the banks of Plum Creek" for six years. In 1977 he left Walnut Grove and moved back to Fargo, ND, his hometown, to attend graduate school. He attended graduate school for two years, completing his Master's and Specialist's degrees in school administration/education.

Hahne's first administrative position was high school principal at Hendrum-Perley. While there he was instrumental in starting community education in the district. He also completed a study that led to Hendrum-Perley and Halstad first pairing and then consolidating into what today is called Norman County West.

After serving the district for three years, Hahne moved to Deer Creek, where he served as high school principal and again started community education in the district. Under his leadership, Deer Creek students were permitted to attend academic classes in Wadena, a larger neighboring town. This allowed students a full range of college-bound classes that his smaller school could not offer. Along with the vocational students who attended Leaf River Vocational Cooperative in Wadena, all student needs were fulfilled.

After three years in Deer Creek, Hahne moved his family to Thief River Falls where he assumed the assistant principalship at Franklin middle school in 1985 and served in this capacity for two years. From this position, Bill became director of the Northwest Vocational Cooperative Center School. In this job, he served not only Thief River Falls but also Newfolden, Goodridge, Strandquist, Plummer and Middle River.

As a principal, he also started an alternative school which today has become the Northwest Area Learning Center. The ALC now serves over 200 students per year locally and in Roseau and Warroad.

THANK YOU
On July 25th, our 3 year old son wandered away from my father's farm during a family reunion. The law enforcement agencies and people of St. Hilaire who responded to help in the search were magnificent. Within minutes the highway patrol, fire dept. sheriff's dept., and ambulance service were on the scene. In addition there were people from St. Hilaire and neighboring farms who abandoned whatever they were doing to help us. My husband and I want to express our most sincere thanks to everyone who participated. You are a wonderful community and are lucky to have such excellent emergency services. With your help and support our son was found unharmed.
THANK YOU FROM THE BOTTOM OF OUR HEARTS

Dear Readers,
Bitterness, guilt, anger, frustration and depression are all normal reactions to grief. When these feelings surface, they are not pleasant to observe. Many times they are necessary in order for grief to be resolved. If you sincerely want to help a grieving friend or relative, you must practice unconditional love. Be patient and remind yourself that as the pain of grief subsides, so will the negative emotions.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home
Larry Belmont

Ron Ray, Arctco's new vice president of manufacturing, previously worked for Advance Machine Company in Plymouth, MN. AMC makes commercial industrial floor cleaning equipment.

Ron Ray is Arctco vice president of manufacturing

by Mark Olson
Staff Writer

Arctco, Inc. recently hired Ron Ray as a new vice president of manufacturing.

Ray previously was vice president of manufacturing for Advance Machine Company (AMC), a manufacturer of commercial industrial floor cleaning equipment. Plymouth, MN serves as AMC headquarters.

Ray replaces Leon Johnson, who retired May 15. Johnson served as vice president of manufacturing for Arctco since its inception in 1983 and was involved in the Arctic Cat snowmobile business since 1965.

"The manufacturing process tends to be very similar," Ray said, "whether you're making cars or whether you're making chairs, or whether you're making snowmobiles or street sweepers.

"Obviously that (industrial floor cleaners) doesn't fit in with snowmobiles and water vehicles. They're not the same. That's one of the things that attracted me about this is that it is a fun product. After 18 years, I figured this is a great opportunity with a fun company that's just really starting to go up again."

As vice president of manufacturing, Ray is in charge of overseeing manufacturing of Arctic Cat snowmobiles, parts, garments and accessories.

Ray described Arctco management's approach as "hands on." Jim Keely, the manufacturing/engineering manager at AMC, described Ray as very detail-oriented with high expectations. "He asks a lot of questions and makes sure there's no B.S. involved in it," Keely said.

At AMC, Ray was the "driving force" behind the Advance 2000 program, said Keely. The purpose of the program was to train employees in team building, problem solving and employee involvement.

"What I look forward to is having influence upon the system so line operators and people within the company can have influence upon what they do," Ray said.

"The key in the role today is how close you can get your functional processes and your disciplines of manufacturing. The manufacturing guy is sitting next to the engineer and sitting next to the assembly (operators) are the machinists. The closer you can bring that group together, the better product you're going to have."

"We are still not to the same degree an engineering company," Keely said. "Under Ron's direction we've become much more of a manufacturing company. We look at product design from a manufacturing standpoint."

Another of Ray's priorities is increasing Arctco self-sufficiency by making its own parts. Ray is in charge of manufacturing at Arctco's Madison, SD, plant.

The Madison plant began making moldings in May and began painting in July. The plant employs around 50 people.

Ray has previous experience with satellite plants. AMC owns three plants.

"Advance was a very vertically integrated company," Ray said. "We did a lot of high tech machine operations. I think those are some things we're looking at here and that is how more vertically integrated Arctco can become."

Ray, who is 43, held the AMC job for 18 years, prior to which he spent four years with Western Electric. The Western Electric job was in Columbus, OH. "I'm not the kind of guy who moves around a lot, and so I didn't know what the real world was like outside of Advance, but what I'm seeing is much the same," Ray said.

Ray earned his bachelor's degree at Michigan Tech and earned his MBA at St. Thomas by taking night school classes.

Ray is married to Lindsey, an X-ray technician with 23 years experience. Lindsey previously worked at a medical center in St. Louis Park.

They have two children. Their daughter is 16 years old and will be a junior at Lincoln High School this fall. Their boy is 18 years old and is entering Northern State (University) in Aberdeen, SD.

Ray purchased a house in Thief River Falls near the river. One reason for the location was easier access to the river with his boat.

"I'm a boater. The great American dream is to sit on your butt, go fast and make noise. That kind of fits between snowmobiles and water vehicles."

Impressions . . .

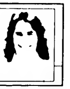
Beth Johnson



Have you, like me, spent some of your evenings this past week watching the Olympics on your television?

Imagine the millions just like us sitting in front of television sets around the world watching the Olympic events unfold before us through the miracle of delay time programming. As we sit watching, we are probably also dreaming. We are watching others perform and perhaps wishing we could be just like these fantastic athletes.

I have been in awe of the feats these athletes perform. Can any of us fling ourselves around uneven bars the way the young people we were watching can? They make flying through the air seem effortless. No one watching the gymnastic events could help but hold their breath in awe of the tiny young lady who flipped across a mat, and then, as if the camera simply put her flips in reverse, she flipped back to the beginning point.

The muscles and talent and coordination and perseverance present in each of the athletes is inspiring. The stories accompanying the athletes depicting their lives speak of the time and talent and repetitions and sacrifice and heartbreaks each of them has had to reach this goal of attending the Olympic games, representing their country.

The final events we watch on our televisions are preceded by preliminary events. Some of the great athletes never make it past the preliminary events. These super athletes, too, can have "bad days". Didn't our hearts want to cry with the young athlete who fell on his face twice during his olympic chance? We would have loved to be able to say that tomorrow he can try again—tomorrow, he can try once more for the medal. But, the gold medal is won and lost only once. There are no second tries for the gold—not in this Olympics. There are many who did not receive gold medals. Many who trained and persevered and sacrificed for years did not "win".

If winning is simply attaining the gold medal, then the myraid of losers truly did lose. But, winning is more than attaining the gold medal. One young athlete was asked if she felt as if she had missed her childhood because of all of the intensive training she had done during the years when she would have more normally been playing house and riding bike and just being a little girl. Her response was that no, her life had simply been broadened by the experiences she had had as a young athlete. The traveling and perseverance was weighed by her as positives. She didn't win a gold medal, but she did win, as her life attitude was positive.

I'm in no way an athlete. My only sport is walking. I'm pleased to see that walking is an official Olympic sport. I'm a long way from being an Olympic walker!! But in spite of my lack of athletic prowess, I can learn something about success from these athletes we have been so admiring these past few days.

I can learn from them that my focus in life has to be broader than whatever I do well. My job, my actions, my family, may all disappoint me at times. I will not be successful if I rely on what I do to make me a success. Rather, I need to focus on being a person with an attitude. I need to have the attitude that I can be a positive force in this world. I need to have the attitude that I can make an impression on those around me, and that hopefully, the impression I make is a positive one. I need to have the attitude that being the "winner" is not always necessary to succeed in life. I need to have the attitude that my life would be nothing without the Giver of Life, therefore, my life must express gratitude.

Olympic athletes most of us are not. People with positive, grateful attitudes we can be. Winners we can all be.

Caregivers often neglect own needs

Caring for an elderly family member at home can be overwhelming unless caregivers take time and energy to care for themselves.

An estimated 70,000 Minnesotans suffer from Alzheimer's disease, a progressive condition that deprives the middle-aged and the elderly of their memory, their thinking skills and, eventually, their independence. Since most Alzheimer's victims are cared for at home, the impact of the disease on the entire family, particularly on the primary caregiver, can be devastating.

"Unless caregivers recognize and deal with their own needs," says Colleen Shogren, R.N., clinical manager of adult psychiatry at a St. Paul hospital, "they may find themselves unable to cope with what is, at best, a very difficult situation."

If you care for a loved one with Alzheimer's Disease, says Shogren, following a few simple guidelines will help you do a better job by first making sure your own needs are met.

•Acknowledge and accept your own feelings. Anger, resentment and fear are common caregiver emotions. Giving yourself permission to experience those feelings without guilt and, if possible, sharing those feelings with other caregivers can relieve stress.

•Take time for yourself. Make arrangements for someone to be with your loved one while you're away. Then, spend an afternoon lunching with a friend. Go to a movie. Play bridge. You'll return home refreshed and better able to cope with your caregiving responsibilities.

•Learn to ask for help. Don't hesitate to call on a brother or sister, a son or daughter when you need them.

•Give yourself credit. You're doing a very important, very difficult job. Don't insist on perfection in everything you do. Just do the best you can.

•Prioritize. What needs to be done today? What can wait until tomorrow? What can be eliminated altogether from your list of things to do? Recognize that your time and energy are limited.

Speaking Of . . .

Sharon LaCoursiere

... More Than "Thank You"

My mother was recently hospitalized at Northwest Medical Center. While she was there, I came in contact with a lot of nice people who really care about other people.

People at the hospital are, of course, paid to care, but every one of the professionals that I saw working with her seemed to be performing above and beyond merely doing their job.

I saw doctors and nurses who went out of their way to be patient and kind to her, sometimes under the most trying, difficult circumstances. I saw how well-cared for and protected she was by the efficient nurses in ICU. I saw the patience of the orderlies and other hospital personnel as they performed their various tasks, even the most menial of tasks.

These people who were busy caring for my mother also took time to explain what was going on to me and answer my numerous questions, and this, too, was something that was greatly appreciated. Everyone my mother came in contact with in the hospital seemed to go out of their way to take special care of her, and I can't begin to tell you what that meant to me when I felt utterly helpless.

There are not enough words to express thanks to friends and relatives who helped us and sent food and visited with her, and with me, while she was in the hospital. The pastors from her church and ladies of the church auxiliary have gone out of their way to be supportive and generous with their time, a comfort to both of us.

Such gifts of thoughtfulness and selflessness can never be repaid, but are the most precious gifts of all. A "thank you" can never express gratitude for gifts such as these. The only way I can think to repay such gifts is to do the same for someone else, and that is what I plan to do.

Unemployment benefits are fully taxable

Most of the time, surprises are a nice thing. But not when they come from the IRS. If you get surprised by a tax bill, it's not fun at all.

People who have drawn unemployment benefits this year should make quarterly estimated tax payments to the Internal Revenue Service. These payments are necessary because unemployment benefits are now fully taxable for everyone regardless of income. And unlike a paycheck, there is no federal tax taken out of an unemployment check. Unemployment benefits have been fully taxed since 1987, yet many people are still not aware of this, says the IRS.

In addition, if you owe more than $500 in tax at the end of the year, you will also owe a penalty in many cases. Unemployment is always a painful experience. By making quarterly tax payments during the year the IRS says you can avoid the added pain of an unexpected year-end bill.

Each quarterly payment should be sent to the IRS along with Form 1040-ES, Estimated Tax for Individuals. Included with the form is a worksheet which can help you figure out how much to send in each quarter. To get a free copy, call the IRS toll free at 1-800-829-3676.

Tele-Tax, an automated system of recorded tax messages, has more information on reporting unemployment benefits to the IRS. Call 1-800-829-4477 and ask for tape number 218.

Work starts on highway at Greenbush

Work was scheduled to start this week on a project to rebuild the intersection of highways 11 and 32 in Greenbush and to resurface highway 11 from the intersection to about seven miles east, according to Roger Hille, resident engineer for the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT).

Hille said that the project will involve building a "T" intersection for highways 32 and 11. The approaches will be built with 10-foot paved shoulders south and west of the intersection and through the developed area on highway 11 east. Two-foot paved shoulders will be included on the rest of the resurfacing project.

Prime contractor on the project valued at $422,000 is Thorson, Inc., of Bemidji. Bernie Stinson of Thief River Falls is Mn/DOT's chief inspector for the project. Hille expects the work to be completed by the end of August.

Hille said that motorists will encounter lane closures, heavy equipment operating and transportation workers present in the project areas. He said that highway work zones can be dangerous workplaces for the men and women who work for Mn/DOT and the contractor and that motorists should slow down and "give 'em a brake."

OUR ADVERTISERS SAVE YOU MONEY!

Putting estate in order through will advised by CPAs

Failing to develop an estate plan can be costly. No matter how modest your estate, the Minnesota Society of CPAs recommends that you develop a master strategy to minimize the tax bite and adequately provide for your heirs. To help you get started, CPAs offer the following advice: Writing a will is the most fundamental part of any estate plan. A will specifies how your property and valuables will be distributed and can designate guardians for your children. If you die without a will, you forfeit the right to have your estate distributed according to your wishes. A court-appointed administrator will distribute your estate in accordance with the state law of succession.

If you have children, you face an even greater risk: The court may not appoint the guardians who you would like to raise your children.

Your estate is probably larger than you think. It includes all your assets—savings accounts, real estate, stocks and bonds, savings bonds, mutual funds, pension rights, employee death benefits and Social Security. Also included in your estate are collectibles, such as antiques and artwork, as well as valuable jewelry, furs and cars. Be sure to include the face value of all insurance policies you hold. To arrive at the value of your estate, you need to subtract from your total assets all outstanding debts, as well as charitable bequests, any estimated costs for settling your estate, and funeral expenses.

If the value of the estate is more than $600,000 a federal estate tax return must be filed with payment of estate taxes by nine months after the date of death. Taxes are usually based on the value of the assets at the time of death.

One of the best ways to reduce your estate without incurring high taxes is by making gifts to family members. Single filers can make an annual gift of up to $10,000 to any person and joint filers can make a gift of up to $20,000 annually without any gift or estate tax implications. What's more, gifts to your spouse—no matter how large—are not subject to any estate or gift taxes, as long as your spouse is a U.S. citizen.

You can also make a lifetime gift of your life insurance policy. As long as you transfer complete ownership of the policy more than three years prior to your death, the insurance proceeds payable to the beneficiary will not be included in your estate.

Finally, you can reduce your estate by giving some of your property to charity. When you donate cash or property, you may qualify for two tax benefits from one gift: You remove the property from your estate and can deduct your charitable contribution on your current income tax return.

Another way to minimize your estate tax burden and to ensure that your estate is distributed according to your desires, is to establish trusts. A testamentary trust is established in your will and goes into effect upon your death. Living trusts can go into effect any time during your lifetime.

Living trusts can be revocable or irrevocable. An irrevocable trust enables you to shift income to a beneficiary during your lifetime. Such trusts are worth considering if you are at a high income level. If the income is shifted to children 14 years of age or older, the income will be taxed at their tax rate. However, for children under age 14, any investment income above $1,200 is taxed at the parents' top tax rate.

The advantage of revocable trusts is that you can manage the distribution of the estate and have the option of changing your plans at any time. The assets of revocable trusts, unlike those of irrevocable trusts, are considered part of the grantor's estate for estate tax purposes. Also, during your lifetime, you will be taxed on the trust's income.

Finally, be aware that estate planning can be a complicated process that warrants the advice of financial planning experts as well as legal counsel.

Reasonable reaction given the circumstances. Denny's Pizza sponsored a pizza eating contest in Floyd B. Olson Park last week to celebrate Summerfest in Thief River Falls. Eleven-year-old Leah Hopkins of St. Louis Park, who was visiting her grandparents, Herb and Blanch Goetha in Thief River Falls, was one of the participants. An unknown spectator reacts to the spectacle of several people eating pizza as fast as possible.

Certain taxpayers may benefit from withholding rate

As a result of recent Treasury cuts in the withholding rates, many Americans are now taking home larger paychecks. However these taxpayers are not paying less taxes, says the Minnesota Society of CPAs.

Most of these individuals withheld more taxes from their paychecks annually than they actually owed in a given year. Consequently, they received tax refunds every year. By reducing the withholding rate, these same taxpayers will simply gain access to their own money sooner, instead of lending it to Uncle Sam—interest free.

Not everyone will benefit from the lower withholding rates. These rates are being applied only to married employees with less than $90,200 in income and single employees with less than $53,200 in income.

Keep in mind that the reduction in withholding rates is relatively modest. Single taxpayers can gain up to $172.50 a year in their paychecks and married taxpayers up to $345.

CPAs emphasize that if you generally don't receive a tax refund from the IRS, the lower withholding rate may cause you to owe Uncle Sam additional tax dollars when April 15 rolls around next year. That's one important reason why you should ensure that the amount of taxes withheld is as close as possible to the amount that will be due.

To be sure you're having enough taxes withheld from your paycheck, estimate your 1992 tax liability. Looking at last year's tax return will get you started. Determine whether your sources or levels of income have changed from last year and use this information to help you project your 1992 income.

After estimating your income, determine the tax credits and tax deductions you may be eligible to claim on your 1992 tax return. Then calculate your withholding allowances. The number of allowances you may claim are affected by such factors as marital status, the number of dependents, income level, number of jobs you hold and filing status, among other things.

Once you've estimated your income, as well as any deductions, credits and allowances to which you are entitled, you should have a rough idea of your 1992 federal income tax liability. Take a look at your most recent paycheck stub to find out how much tax is withheld from each paycheck and how much you have contributed to date. Keep in mind that at the end of June, your federal income tax withholding should equal about one half of your estimated tax liability for 1992.

The information that you provide on Form W-4 determines how much of your paycheck your employer will turn over to the IRS. If your withholding figure is way off the mark, the Minnesota Society of CPAs suggests that you update your W-4 right away. For example, to have more tax withheld, you should claim fewer allowances or ask your employer to withhold more tax. Conversely, if you're having too much tax withheld, you can reduce your withholding by increasing the number of allowances you claim.

You can obtain a copy of your W-4 from your company's payroll office. Your employer can also provide you with information on how changing your allowances will affect your take-home pay.

INSURANCE Update

by Dee Schmidtgall

Because the standard homeowners policy does not cover damage caused by flooding, homeowners with a potential for flooding should supplement their coverage with federally backed flood insurance. This coverage is sold nationwide to homeowners who live in any of the 18,000 communities that participate in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP). Voluntary community participation requires that it meet minimum NFIP standards for good flood plan management. According to the Federal Insurance Administration approximately 11 million households are in flood hazard areas, yet only 2.5 million are insured.

Being adequately insured for the proper type and amount of insurance is more important than ever today. Selecting the best coverage for your particular needs is not an easy task. Stop at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY for answers to your insurance concerns. The office of NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is conveniently located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are from 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls opens fund drive

To support its program of assistance to persons with kidney disease, the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls is conducting its annual fund drive during the month of August.

Members of the foundation's board of directors are conducting a raffle during the month with a drawing to be held September 4. Persons buying tickets may designate one of three prizes—A hand-painted porcelain doll from Victoria House; a fishing trip for four on Lake of the Woods, donated by Duane Glass; or $100 in cash.

Currently the local foundation assists eight area people with funds for travel to Grand Forks, ND, for dialysis treatments. Cost of the service is about $1,000 per month. Since the organization was founded it has donated more than $79,000 to assist area people who have kidney disease.

For some years a community auction was held as a fund-raiser. This has been discontinued for a variety of reasons and an appeal made for donations or raffle ticket purchases. Some donors have also considered the foundation an appropriate recipient for memorial funds.

To make a contribution contact Marilyn Winters at 681-7268 or send it to Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls, P.O. Box 222, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. Raffle tickets are available from Mrs. Winters or any other member of the board: Ruth Nepper, Duane Glass, Klem Gigstad, Bob Bergan, Rick Erickson or Cliff Bredeson.

Kidney Foundation auctions were held since 1976 and proceeds were sent to the Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest in Minneapolis until 1983. That year the local foundation was incorporated and all funds are now used in Pennington, Marshall, Kittson, Roseau, Red Lake and Lake of the Woods counties.

There are no paid positions in the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls. A great deal of time and energy is donated to the effort which has "People Helping People" as its theme.

The foundation reminds the public that the outlook for treatment and recovery from kidney disease varies according to the type of disease and the part affected. However, more can be done for kidney disease victims now than has ever before been possible.

Warning signs of kidney disease include the following:

(1) Burning or difficulty during urination;

(2) More frequent urination, particularly at night;

(3) Passage of bloody-appearing urine;

(4) Puffiness around eyes, swelling of hands and feet, especially in children;

(5) Pain in small of back, just below the ribs: and

(6) High blood pressure.

If these symptoms are present, contact a physician. Some diseases are present without symptoms, so have a urinalysis done at every yearly checkup.

The Grants are members of a bagpipe band in Beausejour which has about 35 members who are often called upon to perform at ceremonies.

Officers and special guests of the International War Veterans Alliance were piped to the head table Saturday evening when the IWVA convention banquet was held at the National Guard Armory in Thief River Falls. Piper Bob Grant of Beausejour, Man., led the procession.

Moorhead runner John Brunsberg tried to avoid the tag by Thief River Falls second baseman Nathan Knutson, but he was ruled out on the play during Sunday's Ninth District American Legion baseball tournament game at Matson Field. Shortstop Marc Haugen watched the action. Thief River Falls won the ball game 3-1.

Post 117 squad in tournament finals

Finals of the 1992 Ninth District American Legion Division I baseball tournament will be played tonight (Tuesday) at 6:30 at Matson Field in Moorhead. But because of the double elimination format, the champion may not be crowned until Wednesday.

Thief River Falls is the lone unbeaten team left from the seven-team line-up that began play Saturday. Fergus Falls and Moorhead were scheduled to square off at 1:30 this afternoon in a final losers bracket game to provide a championship opponent for Thief River Falls.

A Thief River Falls win tonight wraps up the tournament. If the Howard Dalager coached Post 117 squad loses tonight, a 6:30 p.m. championship game will be played Wednesday.

The winner will move on to the state tournament in Willmar beginning Aug. 12.

Post 117, after receiving a first round bye, advanced to the finals with a 3-1 Sunday night win over Moorhead and an 8-2 Monday afternoon victory over Fergus Falls. Moorhead opened with a 15-6 Saturday win over Crookston, and bounced back from the loss to Thief River Falls with a 3-2 decision over Roseau Monday afternoon. Fergus Falls handled Roseau 11-1 Saturday and out-scored Detroit Lakes 11-6 Sunday before losing to Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls is 28-10 for the year, Fergus Falls is 27-19 and Moorhead is 27-23. Moorhead is the six-time defending tournament champion, with the Blues winning the title 16 times in the past 20 years. Fergus Falls hasn't won a Ninth District crown since 1962 and Thief River Falls' last Legion championship came in 1955.

Ninth District Division I teams already eliminated by the playoff results, and their final records, include East Grand Forks (14-24), Crookston (19-15), Roseau (7-16), and Detroit Lakes (10-23).

TRF 3-1 winner over Moorhead

Mitch Bernstein and Co. did it again Sunday, beating host Moorhead 3-1 in Round 2 of the 1992 Ninth District American Legion Division I baseball playoffs at Matson Field.

Back on May 26, Bernstein tossed a six-hit shutout, striking out six and walking none, in a 5-0 Thief River Falls win over Moorhead in the first round of the North Sub-Section 8AA high school baseball tournament at Irv Wilson Field.

About the only thing different Sunday night was the site as Bernstein threw six innings of three-hit shutout baseball against the six-time defending champion Blues. Bernstein, gave up two first inning hits, but then limited Moorhead to just more two hits the rest of the way, again showing outstanding control with six strike-outs and just one walk.

"He (Bernstein) threw well," acknowledged Moorhead coach Bucky Burgau. "He throws strikes. And at this level, if you can keep the ball around the plate, you're usually in pretty good shape."

Greg Salvevold spoiled Bernstein's shutout bid with a lead-off triple to the right-center field fence in the bottom of the seventh, scoring moments later on a fielder's choice ground-out by designated hitter Kenny Bradsteen.

There were only two other scoring threats off the Thief River Falls righthander. Scott Kohler and Mike Ulness had back-to-back two-out singles in the first inning, but [illegible] the early challenge with a strike-out. In the third, the Blues gained runners on two errors and a walk, but nobody advanced past second.

"Bernstein pitched a good game," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Howard Dalager. "The kids know he's going to pitch like that, and they play well behind him."

Thief River Falls gave Bernstein a 1-0 lead to work with in the top of the third when Marc Haugen legged out a one-out double to left-center, advanced a base on a ground ball single to left by Jason Svir and scored on a sacrifice fly by Nathan Knutson.

The visitors gained a little breathing room in the fifth when David Blazek reached base on a one-out error, stole second, then went to third and scored when Moorhead lefthander John Brunsberg bounced a pair of pitches past catcher Erik Steen for a 2-0 game. Svir walked, stole second and was running on the pitch when Barry Dowers singled off the glove of relief pitcher Josh Arnold to make it 3-0.

"Thief River runs so well," mentioned Burgau. "Brunsberg is normally around the plate, but I think he got a little rattled when Thief River put runners on base. We didn't do a very good job slowing them down."

Even though Bernstein was in control, Dalager wasn't comfortable until Thief River Falls pushed those two runs across the plate in the fifth.

"Sitting on the visitors side with a 1-0 lead – you start thinking about that Moorhead tradition," confessed Dalager. "You wonder if it (the lead) will hold up."

Brunsberg went 4 2/3 innings and took the loss. Arnold finished. They gave up six walks and walked four, while striking out four.

Only multiple-hit games were 2-for-3 efforts by Svir and Ulness.

The Thief River Falls victory avenged a pair of regular season losses at the hands of the Blues, who swept a recent 3-2, 6-4 double-header match-up at Matson Field.

Moorhead, 25-23, opened the Ninth District tournament with a 15-6 Saturday evening victory over Crookston. The Sunday loss dropped the Blues into the losers bracket of the seven-team, double-elimination event. Thief River Falls, 27-10, received a first round bye.

Thief River Falls knocks off Fergus Falls in Ninth District Legion semifinals...

Big offensive show nets 8-2 win

Sunday, Thief River Falls had to figure a way to come up with some runs as coach Howard Dalager flashed signs for stealing bases, hit-and-run and a suicide squeeze bunt as Post 117 came up with a 3-1 Ninth District American Legion baseball tournament win over host Moorhead at Matson Field.

Monday Dalager's job was a lot easier as Thief River Falls banged out 13 hits, jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning and finished with an 8-2 victory over Fergus Falls to move into tonight's (Tuesday) 6:30 p.m. double-elimination tournament finals.

Moorhead and Fergus Falls were scheduled to close out the losers bracket portion of the tournament at 1:30 this afternoon, with the winner getting another crack at the unbeaten Post 117 squad.

"We hit the ball," noted Dalager. "The night before we had to manufacture runs. Today we hit the ball better, and the offense took care of itself."

The attack featured a 3-for-3 game and four RBI for Mitch Bernstein, who also starred in the win over Moorhead – with his pitching. Jason Svir, Nathan Knutson and Barry Dowers had two hits apiece.

This time the Thief River Falls pitching assignment went to righthander Jeremy Olson, who turned in six solid innings of five hit ball, striking out four and walking two. Rick Ortby worked a 1-2-3 seventh in relief.

The loss went to Joel Hopper, a lefthander who ended Thief River Falls 1992 high school baseball season with a one hit shutout in a 10-0 Fergus Falls North Sub-Section 8AA tournament semifinal win over the Prowlers this spring.

A game-opening error set the stage for the three run Thief River Falls first inning. A triple of Jason Svir scored the first run, and he crossed the plate moments later on a wild pitch. Barry Dowers then drew a walk and scored on a double by Bernstein.

"Getting those three runs right away really helped," mentioned Dalager. "That took the edge off."

Fergus Falls got one of those runs back in the bottom of the first, but Thief River Falls made it 5-1 in the third when Dowers singled, stole second and scored on a base hit by Bernstein, who came home on a double by Pete Balmer.

Thief River Falls added two more runs in the fourth on consecutive singles by Svir, Knutson, Dowers, and Carter Rogalla.

Final Thief River Falls run crossed the plate in the sixth on base hits by Knutson and Bernstein.

Duck population reported on the rise in Minnesota

Mallard and blue-winged teal breeding populations in Minnesota increased substantially from 1991 to 1992, according to results from the annual May waterfowl breeding ground survey.

The mallard breeding population this spring is estimated at approximately 360,000, an increase of 60 percent compared to 1991 and 71 percent above the 10-year average, said Jeff Lawrence, staff waterfowl specialist with the Department of Natural Resources.

"Minnesota mallard populations have been on an upward trend for the past several years, but there was a dramatic increase this year," noted Lawrence. "A combination of factors probably contributed to this increase, including better production of young last year, good survival, and poor habitat conditions to the west that may have resulted in the redistribution of some birds."

Blue-winged teal increased 34 percent to 357,000, which is 52 percent above the 10-year average.

The number of breeding waterfowl in 40 percent of Minnesota is estimated annually as part of an overall inventory of North American breeding waterfowl. Information on breeding duck populations from Canada and other states is not yet available, but drought conditions continue throughout many prairie areas that are very important to breeding duck populations.

Canada geese observed in the survey decreased 20 percent from 1990, but remained 71 percent above the 1975-90 average. This is the second year of decline in the Minnesota goose breeding population. The survey does not include the Twins Cities area, which also has a substantial goose population. Breeding Canada geese are expanding their range throughout most of Minnesota.

"We expected the dramatic growth of this population to slow as available habitat is occupied and goose regulations are liberalized," Lawrence said.

A late spring in northern Manitoba delayed breeding of the Eastern Prairie Canada goose flock, which migrate through Minnesota. This will result in reduced production and possibly a smaller fall flight," according to the DNR.

Habitat conditions were good across much of the state at the beginning of the breeding season, Lawrence said. Wetland numbers were similar to the previous year and to the long-term average during the May survey, but rainfall is needed over a large portion of the state to ensure good brood habitat.

The status of North American waterfowl populations will be discussed by the Mississippi Flyway Council, an organization of waterfowl biologists and administrators representing 14 states and three Canadian provinces, at its July meeting in Springfield, MO. This group will develop recommendations on waterfowl hunting regulations to be presented to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in early August in Washington, D.C.

Zebra Mussels

Boaters must remove zebra mussels from their craft. That's not just a suggestion; it's the law in Minnesota as of Aug. 1.

The yellow-and-brown-striped zebra mussels reproduce rapidly and attach themselves to hard surfaces in large numbers, sometimes covering boat hulls, cloging water intake pipes, and posing problems for other waterlife. They are present in Lake Superior and have now been observed in the Mississippi River as far upstream as St. Paul.

Zebra mussels have spread throughout the Great Lakes, and most likely reached the Mississippi River from Lake Michigan via the Illinois River. These mussels were discovered in Lake Erie in 1987, probably carried there from their native Europe in the ballast of ships.

The Minnesota Legislature last session made it illegal to transport zebra mussels or other water-transmitted harmful non-native species on roads of highways, amending a statute that already prohibited transportation of watermilfoil.

Minnesota DNR advises boaters to take a few simple precautions:

■ Carefully inspect boats for zebra mussels and watermilfoil when removing craft from any waters.

■ Do not transport any water from lakes or rivers to other bodies of water in boats, livewells or minnow buckets because the water might contain microscopic mussel larvae.

■ Try no to relaunch a boat into another body of water until it is completely dry, allowing zebra mussel larvae to die.

For more information about Eurasian watermilfoil or zebra mussels, or for an identification card or poster, call the DNR Information Center toll-free in Minnesota at 1-800-766-6000.

Hahne principal at Franklin school

On returning to Franklin middle school, Hahne said, "It's like coming home in a way...except that the philosophy of the school has changed completely. When I worked at the middle school it was really run like a junior high school. Since then, Dr. Hoff has done a fantastic job of changing the school philosophy to a middle school philosophy which does a much better job of meeting the unique student needs that need to be met."

Hahne said he is also excited about working with old friends on staff. "I have been extremely lucky in Thief River Falls. I have had the opportunity to work with three very competent and student-centered staffs from the middle school, the center school and the area learning center who put student needs and student self-esteem on the top of their priority list."

Hahne resides in Thief River Falls with his family which includes his wife, Paula, his 13-year-old son Michael and his 11-year-old daughter Rachel.

"The best decision I have made both for my family and my profession was to move to Thief River Falls seven years ago," he said. "The town has a lot to offer. The community is filled with friendly, religious and ambitious people not to mention its positive educational climate that begins in kindergarten in our fine public school system and culminates with either the community college or the technical college."

"I am looking forward to the 1992-93 school year. I am of the firm belief that schools can only be at their best if there is an open door policy. All stakeholders—which include not only the school administration and staff but also the community, parents and students—must be active participants if our schools are to grow and improve. I encourage all stakeholders to let us know how we're doing, not to mention suggestions and ways in which we can improve to fulfill our student needs. They are always welcome to visit us at school or give us a call at 681-8813. We value their input."

Terry Soina visited the Great Wall of China on his recent five-week tour of China. He is en route to "Woll Dung Tower" located on the Great Wall. A Fulbright-Hays scholarship sponsored the trip and Soine was hosted by Bemidji State University's sister school.

LHS Principal observes life in Communist China

by Mark Olson
Staff Writer

Terry Soine, Thief River Falls Lincoln high school principal recently returned from a five week trip to China.

Soine's trip was sponsored by a Fulbright-Hays Scholarship and included lectures and tours covering topics such as economic reform, modern history and the role of women in China.

Soine and other educators were hosted in Shenyang, the southern most province of Manchuria in Liaoning University, Bemidji State University's sister school.

Communism was apparent in different aspects of the trip. "Although only six or seven per cent of Chinese are registered communists," Soine said "they are a controlling factor."

There are still echoes of the Tiananmen Square demonstrations. "Now the military people, once they are off active duty or even on active duty, will not wear military garb because they are embarrassed of the Tiananmen incident," Soine said.

"I met two people who were involved with it and only in the strictest confidence and the most discreet places will they say 'I was there' because they still feel their name will be on some hit list."

Some remnants of pre-communist China are still apparent, including the bound foot tradition for women. Soine said he saw bound feet on a couple of women in their 70s. "It's grotesque as hell," Soine said. "The toes are worked under and the heel is pushed and bound in so the ball and heel come up together with a major high instep with the inability to walk very far very fast."

Another tradition which is not altogether phased out is arranged marriages in some rural areas, Soine said.

During the trip, Soine took a series of tours to different provinces in China. On one trip he took the Trans Siberian railroad to Harvin, the capitol of Hailongjaing, the northern most province of Manchuria. The land on the way to Harvin looked like the middle part of Minnesota, Soine said, except the soil was a little more red.

Corn was a major crop and was planted by hand. "Once in awhile you'd see it cultivated by hand or often mule, donkey or horse," Soine said. Other [illegible] were pole [illegible].

"Construction is going on all over," Soine said. Soine remembers watching twelve guys on a flatbed truck with scoop shovels. "They are all pitching it (large stones) off in their shower slippers and bare hands with scoop shovels. No steel toes or hard hats and rarely gloves.

"If they ever get their act together, the U.S. could become a third world country in comparison. I mean, take a look at that manpower," Soine said.

Soine also remembers a strip coal mine in Fushun. The coal was pushed down to the lower terrace where it was carried in buckets and shoulder yokes to a barge.

"They had electrical power coming almost right off the coal and the pollution is quite extensive," Soine said. "Not far from there is a rehabilitation center for people who have respiratory problems."

564 levy for tech college in question

School District 564 will include the final payment of $137,550 on a construction levy for the Thief River Falls Technical College in its preliminary levy request for next year, but will also pursue relief from the payment due to the technical college consolidation program.

School district business manager Harry Nelson said that the $137,550 is the final payment remaining on the local district's 15 per cent share of $415,650 for the technical college's aviation department hangar project at the regional airport.

While the state department of education has agreed to assume payment of the $810,000 principal balance in two separate bond issues which District 564 had been paying for technical college projects, the construction levy had been treated differently. "We don't really know why," Nelson said.

Consolidation of the Thief River Falls Technical College with technical colleges at East Grand Forks, Bemidji, Moorhead, Fergus Falls and Detroit Lakes into the Northwest Technical College district took place July 1. The new organization removes ownership and control of technical college facilities from the individual districts.

The question at issue is why the local districts should continue to pay for facilities which they no longer own. Nelson said the district will likely work with local legislators as well as state department of education officials in an effort to have the $137,550 obligation removed before the final levy is certified in December or to seek reimbursement in the future.

"At any rate," Nelson said, "next year will be the last year for payment of this three-year construction levy."

Spring wheat crop appears record-setter

Based on early indications, Minnesota's spring wheat crop should come in at 115.5 million bushels, up 80 per cent from last year's crop with yields projected at 42 bushels per acre, up 11 from a year ago, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

Hard red spring wheat acreage in the state of 2.8 million acres is up 700,000 acres or 33 per cent over 1991. The northwest district of the state accounts for 74 per cent of the state's spring wheat acreage, 50 per cent of the winter wheat acreage and 85 per cent of the durum acreage.

The nation's spring wheat crop should top all previous records, up 16 per cent from last year to 584 million bushels. Acres expected to be harvested are the highest since 1953 but yields nationwide are expected to be slightly smaller than last year at 32.3 million bushels per acre.

Durum wheat production in Minnesota will total only 450,000 bushels, down 53 per cent from last year. Yields are projected at 45 bushels per acre, an increase of 13 bushels from last year.

Barley yields in the state are expected to average 60 bushels per acre but total crop at 40.5 million bushels will be down seven per cent from last year. At 371 million bushels, the nation's barley crop is expected to be down 20 per cent from last year.

Minnesota's oat crop is expected to be 18 bushels per acre higher than a year ago at 58 bushels per acre, pushing the state crop to 29 million bushels, up 27 per cent from last year despite low acreage planted. The nation's oat crop is projected at 256 million bushels, up six per cent from last year with yields at 53.5 bushels per acre.

New Hope youth group raises $2,000 in funds for trip

Youth group at New Hope Lutheran church in Newfolden raised more than $2,000 to be used to attend a youth convention this summer at Estes Park, CO.

The youths sponsored breakfasts before worship services and held a spaghetti supper to raise the funds, according to Tom and Pat Mjelde, youth leaders at New Hope. Matching funds of $600 were added by Aid Association for Lutherans.

Polk county townships in District 1B

The northwestern portion of Polk county will now be part of House District 1B for coming elections, according to state Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

Because all of the 134 state House districts must hold an equal population, district lines are redrawn following each federal census. To include the required 32,650 people, Sparby's old three-county-based district was extended westward into area formerly represented by Rep. Bernie Lieder.

In Polk county Rep. Sparby picks up the city of East Grand Forks and the following townships: Angus, Belgium, Brandt, Brislet, Esther, Euclid, Farley, Grand Forks, Helgeland, Higdem, Huntsville, Keystone, Northland, Rhinehart, Sandsville, Sullivan and Tabor.

In Marshall county he retains the towns of Alvarado, Oslo, Warren and Viking as well as the townships of Boxville, Comstock, McCrea, Oak Park, Vega, Viking and Warrenton.

"If you have questions about the upcoming election or your new voting location please call me at (218) 681-5879 or write me at my Capitol office: Room 351 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155," Rep. Sparby said.

A monument to Communist Party leader Mao Zedong in Shenyang, the southern most province of Manchuria, is one of the few remaining statues of Mao in China. Shenyang was one of the places visited by Terry Soina on his 5-week trip to China.

BAD HABITS MAY BE FUN, BUT WE PAY THE PRICE LATER

Many of us, because of job stress, family problems, or just being "one of the gang," have fallen into the trap of tobacco, alcohol or some other drug, and have become addicted. "I can quit any time I want to," we say, but some of us never seem to want to. "It's fun." "I enjoy it." "It calms my nerves." "It makes me feel happy." Maybe it is fun now, but we will eventually have to pay the price in permanent damage to the heart, lungs, liver, brains, and worst of all, our unborn children. And speaking of children, we should teach them to shun these things, before it's too late. Prevention is a lot easier than trying to stop, once we're "hooked." Your clergyman can be of great help in this situation, so have a talk with him. It's a vital first step.

Other events Soine experienced was one Tang Dynasty opera and two Peking operas. The Peking operas were the same, but performed in different places.

In the Peking operas, the sets were minimal and the stage was limited to a 30 foot square space. "It was performed by pure and absolute prescription," Soine said. "In other words, the person who was in Beijing could do the part in Shenyang and vice versa. They had to know the moves, the words, the steps. It is absolutely prescribed. There is no room for interpretation."

Soine also visited the Terra-Cotta soldiers in Xian. The Terra-Cotta soldiers are larger than life pottery solders built for a Tang Dynasty emperor. So far, 6,000 of the soldiers have been unearthed.

Buddhist temples were included on the tour. "I made many contributions to Buddha so I know I will have health and longevity," Soine said.

Before the trip Soine had read about China and had orientation. "I'm still reading. Now I read more," Soine said.

Life In Minnesota.... It's A Gamble

"The gambling industry is rapidly expanding in Minnesota," states a July report by the office of Hubert Humphrey III, Minnesota Attorney General. The statement will come as no surprise to anyone in the state who is not unconscious and has reasonable ability to recognize what is going on around them.

Not everyone, however, is aware of the extent to which gambling is apparently a deep-rooted part of the way of life for many Minnesotans. More and more statistics are being compiled on the subject as it becomes a larger and larger issue both socially and financially.

"In 1991, gambling was a $2.5 billion industry in Minnesota, nearly equal to revenues taken in at the state's eating and drinking establishments," the Attorney General's report continues. "When all forms of gaming are added together, the average Minnesotan spends $558 annually on gambling. Of the $558, losses average $117. Minnesotans also lead the nation in trips to Las Vegas."

The 1990 adult survey of Minnesota gambling behavior indicates that 78 per cent of Minnesota adults have gambled at least once in their lives and 68 per cent have gambled in the past year. If those who have not gambled in the past year are deducted from the total state averages per capita, the average expenditure per gambler increases to $937 and the average loss per gambler to $196.

Averages in themselves can be deceiving. One million dollar lottery winner can bring the average losses per lottery player down a whole lot, but every other player is a total loser.

Interestingly, lottery players have income levels slightly below the general population. Since many players are wealthy, it figures that many are also below poverty level. A survey at a tribal casino found slightly more than half of the players had incomes in the $20,000 to $50,000 range and about one-fourth had incomes under $20,000. Although gambling is illegal for anyone under the age of 18, a 1990 adolescent survey of gambling behavior in Minnesota found 90 per cent of teens between the ages of 15 and 18 had gambled at least once.

Minnesota's Legal Forms of Gambling

(1) Tribal Gaming. In just a few short years, Minnesota has become the largest casino gaming center between Nevada and New Jersey. Tribal gaming generates tax dollars for federal, state and local governments, but to a limited extent. Indian tribes are independent political corcrounities and have sovereignty rights similar to those of a state within the United States.

Tribal gaming is shifting wealth to rural Minnesota, to 11 historically low income Indian communities and to counties with income levels well below those in the metro area, the Attorney General's office says. An estimated 85 per cent of casino visitors are Minnesotans, and Minnesotans appear to be reducing travel to Nevada in favor of visiting the tribal casinos.

(2) Charitable Gambling. Of the four types of gambling legally available in Minnesota, the most money is still wagered on charitable gambling. Operated by non-profit organizations, this gambling includes such games as pull-tabs, Bingo and raffles. Minnesotans spent $1.2 billion on lawful charitable gambling in 1991.

(3) Pari-Mutuel Horse Racing. Pari-mutuel horse racing began in Minnesota in June 1985 when Canterbury Down opened in Shakopee. With the opening of St. Croix Meadows greyhound track in Hudson, WI, in June, 1991, the total amount wagered at race tracks increased significantly last year, yet Canterbury Downs lost $4.3 million and St. Croix Meadows lost $1.5 million.

(4) The State Lottery. In 1991 Minnesotans spent $321.5 million on the lottery. Scratch-off tickets averaged 70 per cent of all lottery sales. Studies in other states have found that less than 10 per cent of the players account for more than half the sales. In 1991, despite a nationwide economic recession and the Gulf War, lottery sales contributed more than $66.9 million to state programs.

Those are the four means by which Minnesotans and a small percentage of visitors can legally gamble in Minnesota—not counting farming, the stock market and sharing a highway with a drunk driver.

Evidence suggests—and this should also be to no one's great surprise—that increased access to legal gambling leads to a higher incidence of compulsive gambling. While some people may be hooked by the first bet, gambling addiction usually takes about five years to develop. The Minnesota Compulsive Gambling Hotline states that 76,998 Minnesotans have been identified as pathological gamblers with another 224,582 people considered to be problem or at risk of being pathological gamblers. The largest number is in the 25 to 34 age group and the majority are male.

In addition, 6.5 per cent of teens are problem gamblers and 19.9 per cent are "at risk" of developing gambling problems. Interestingly, of the teens who are problem gamblers, 72 per cent are regular drug users and 83 per cent engage in some form of illegal activity.

Compulsive gambling is an addition characterized by severe mood swings. A compulsive gambler experiences a high after winning big. Lows after losses include feelings of anger, sullenness, depression and hostility. Friends and family members are often confused by the behavioral changes.

"Compulsive gambling is destructive to families and friendships," states Roger Svendsen, project director for the Minnesota Compulsive Gambling Hotline. "Compulsive gamblers lie and keep secrets to cover up their problem. They borrow money from friends and relatives. Often all the money is lost and the gambler is not able to pay back debts. Bills begin to go unpaid. Basic needs like money for food and rent are neglected. As the disease progresses the gambler starts spending more and more time away from home. Special occasions and vacations start to focus on gambling. Gambling becomes an obsession and eventually a way of life.

Proliferation of gambling in Minnesota is multiplying the problem of compulsive gambling, but the malady is still new enough to go unrecognized by many people. If a problem is suspected, call the hotline at 1-800-437-3641. The service is free, confidential and available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

On School District 564 Restructuring

School District 564 is considering a major building and restructuring program in the near future. The following questions and answers are provided by the Facilities Steering Committee, a group of local citizens which has researched the local school situation and recommended the project to the board of education.

QUESTION: The Facilities Project Steering Committee says "the state" is going to pay for more than 75 per cent of the school construction project. Who do they think "the state" is anyway? The state is us!

ANSWER: That's right. We are all Minnesotans, and in Minnesota education is everyone's concern. That means school problems in Thief River Falls are everyone's problem, and everyone is going to contribute to the solution. Legislators have offered us an opportunity to comply with state and federal building codes and equalize our facilities with school buildings anywhere in the state.

Under our state constitution, students in Minnesota have a right to an equal education. Property rich districts, including those in the Metro area, will now share their resources, paying a portion of the building project in Thief River Falls and other school districts.

Final Action on County Budget Put Off

"Adoption of a county budget for 1943 was deferred Tuesday by the Pennington county board until its September session, Chairman Alf Bredeson stating that action is being held up pending a decision as to whether or not provision is to be made for a county nurse in the levy for next year. Routine business, including the allowance of bills and the hearing of several road delegations, occupied the attention of the board at its August session."

Local Men Consider Organization of New Toastmasters' Group

"A dozen local men met at the Palm Garden cafe Wednesday noon to consider a proposal to organize a Toastmasters club as part of an international organization for training in public speaking. C. J. Davis of the Nash-Finch company, president of the first Toastmasters club in Minneapolis, outlined the purposes and benefits resulting from formation of the club. Final action in the matter was deferred until another meeting to be held in September."

Pennington Co. Again Passes War Bond Quota

"Exceeding its July quota of $43,200 by a substantial margin, Pennington county last month maintained its record of going over the top in war bond sales, local citizens having purchased bonds in July with a maturity value of $47,250.

"This figure is in addition to the purchase during the month by the city of Thief River Falls of $25,000 in war bonds, making total sales in the county $72,500. The post office here also sold $3,084 in war savings stamps during July, the largest amount sold in any month to date."

From the Editorial Page

"Silly now, to talk about the problems of the county fair when the war is over but we would like to second the suggestion that the forty acres of land that are the fairgrounds be given to the city or the county to be developed into something more useful than just a place to exhibit and entertain less than one week out of the year. It would make for a better fair if there were trees on the grounds, and beaches were provided in the shade for the convenience of patrons who desired to picnic. A larger grandstand must be built, but it should be built to serve a general purpose. The fair forty has many possibilities as a park and recreation center. When the war is over there still will be things to talk about."

Business Firms Change Location

"The federal employment office, of which Clarence Sjolander is manager, was moved late last week to a more convenient location on the main floor of the Northern State bank block formerly occupied by the Elizabeth Shop. The office had been located on the second floor of the Citizens block for the past four and one-half years.

"The Elizabeth Shop is now located in the quarters on Third st. formerly occupied by the business machine and office supply shop operated by Arthur Hamilton, who has moved his stock to new quarters in the Fountain on LaBree av. of which Mr. Hamilton also is proprietor."

NOTICE OF HEARING
BOARD OF ZONING APPEALS
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Katherine L. Wedul Steiger, 108 Oak Avenue North, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, and owner of property located at 1544 Highway 59 S.E., has applied for Variances to the Land Use Regulations (Zoning), Sec. 11.51, Subd. 5, and Sec. 11.70, Subd. 1. The property is legally described as follows:

A parcel of land which is a part of Lot Three (3) of Berg's First Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, according to the Official Plat thereof on record, bounded as follows: Beginning at the Southwesterly corner of said Lot 3 of Berg's First Addition, thence North 29 degrees 25' 15" West along the Westerly line of said Lot 3 a distance of 36.13 feet; thence North 53 degrees 32' 29" East a distance of 151.01 feet to the East line of said Lot 3, thence South 44 degrees 40' East along the said East line a distance of 199.00 feet to the Southeasterly corner of said Lot 3, thence South 76 degrees 23' West a distance of 165.54 feet to the point of beginning,

Together with a permanent right of way and easement for the purposes of ingress [illegible]

The petitioner is proposing to make improvements on the above described property, including construction of a 36' x 48' one story brick faced office building, hard surfaced parking and driveway areas, signage and landscaping. The petitioner proposes to provide angle customer parking next to the Southeasterly side of the building. In order to meet the provisions of Sec. 11.71, Subd. 3 C and D for off street parking and to provide adequate driveway space on her property between these proposed parking stalls and the Southeasterly property line, the petitioner proposes to locate the building (or the roof line) 11' 6" from the Northwesterly property line. This proposal would require approval of a three and one half feet (3.5') Variance of the Northwesterly property line to the fifteen feet (15') minimum Interior Side Yard Setback requirements of Sec. 11.51, Subd. 5 for the C-2 General Business District.

Sec. 11.70 Performance Standards for Commercial and Industrial Districts, Subd. 1 Buffers requires among other things that a thirty-five feet (35') wide buffer strip be provided between Commercial and Residential Uses. In order to maximize the number of parking stalls which can be provided on the property for the Proposed Use and any future change in use, the petitioner is proposing to provide a buffer strip thirteen feet (13') in width. The petitioner would propose to erect either decorative fencing or evergreen trees along the rear (westerly) property line and to provide other decorative plantings in the buffer strip in the thirteen feet (13') wide buffer strip area. This proposal would require approval of a twenty two feet (22') Variance to the above referenced buffering requirements for the C-2 General Business District.

Notice is further given, that the Board of Zoning Appeals will hold a Hearing on the Variance Requests at approximately 7:20 PM (CDST) on Monday, August 17, 1992, following other Hearings to be conducted by the Planning Commission and Board of Zoning Appeals, in the City Council Chambers, City Auditorium. NOTICE OF HEARING
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that U.S. WEST Business Resources, Inc., P.O. Box 1900, Fargo, ND 58107, has requested an Amendment to the Zoning of their property, located in the 400 Block of LaBree Avenue North, from C-4 Downtown Fringe District to C-3 Central Business District. The U.S. WEST Business Resources, Inc. property is legally described as Lots 1 - 6 Block 20 of the Original Town.

U.S. WEST Business Resources, Inc. proposes to construct an attached garage facility to house company vehicles which service the Thief River Falls Area. The 60' X 50' garage facility would be located on the north side of the existing office building.

Since the existing office building exceeds the 5,000 square feet maximum gross floor area permitted in the C-4 District, in order to construct the proposed garage the property would have to be rezoned to C-3. The office building and proposed garage would conform to the zoning requirements of the C-3 Central Business District.

(CDST) on Monday, August 17, 1992, in the City Council Chambers, City Auditorium. All persons wishing to comment on the Zoning Amendment Request will have the option to be heard at this time. NOTICE OF HEARING
BOARD OF ZONING APPEALS
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Big Key Corporation, [illegible] Arnold Avenue South, Thief River Falls, has applied for Variances to the Land Use Regulations (Zoning), Sec. 11.70, Subd. 5, Off Street Loading Areas. The Big Key property is legally described as the Easterly fifty feet (50') of Lot 3 and all of Lot 4 in Block Two of Arnold's First Addition to the City of Thief River Falls.

Big Key Corporation is proposing to open and construct two 8' x 8' ground floor doors on the South side of their building. The two ground floor doors will be provided with door shelters which will protrude 12' from the South building wall. These two sheltered doors will be used for loading express delivery service vans.

The south wall of the existing building is located 27' from the northerly right of way line of Lowell Drive. The petitioner in order to construct the above described loading areas will require a 23' Variance at the location of the proposed ground floor doors with door shelters and a 23' Variance for the proposed dock doors. The petitioner has previously received similar Variances for the existing doors.

Notice is further given, that the Board of Zoning Appeals will hold a Hearing on the Variance Requests at approximately 7:10 PM (CDST) on Monday, August 17, 1993, following a Hearing conducted by the Planning Commission in the City Council Chambers, City Auditorium. Vernon and Jean Wold named to 4-H Hall of Fame

By Mark Olson
Staff Writer

[illegible]

[illegible] 4-H Award [illegible] Wold and her husband Vernon the Pennington county 4-H Hall of Fame [illegible] Pennington [illegible]

Jean Wold began serving as a 4-H leader 36 years ago. "Mrs. Swanson was a leader and she talked me into being a leader," Wold said. "Now when you take over this leadership job you have to keep it until you find somebody else."

During her 36 years as a leader, Wold watched six children and four grandchildren graduate from the 4-H program. Five grandchildren are still in 4-H, and Wold said two great-grandchildren will join next year when they meet the age requirements. Three of her daughters and one grandson served as 4-H leaders. "It's a tradition. It's a family affair," Wold said.

Wold has been involved in 4-H since her father started the Rosewood 4-H club. At the time the most popular, and Wold's favorite, 4-H projects included canning and thrift, where 4-Hers made dresses and table cloths out of flour and feed sacks.

This club disbanded for lack of interest, but after Jean and Vernon married and had children, they became involved in the Sanders 4-H Club through their children. This 4-H Club was later moved to St. Hilaire and renamed the Satellite 4-H Club.

"There have been lots of changes in 4-H. I don't know if they were the best, but we had to make changes in order to keep up with the changing world," Wold said.

Some of these changes include additions to the 4-H format to include aerospace and video recorder categories.

[illegible] Wold said. "The kids have grown up and no new ones have moved in." However, Wold said the competition for the county fair projects is stronger. "You'll find kids enrolling in 14 or 15 projects."

Wold said her favorite project is cooking "or things you can do with your hands." These things include woodworking. "The children and grandchildren are avid craftists," Wold said.

Her influence rubbed off on relatives such as her grandson Brian Mills. Mills assists as a 4-H leader and, as a 4-H'er, won three grand champion ribbons at the state fair, two in cooking and one in wood working. "She started me cooking. I can make anything nowadays," Mills said. "I have her recipes memorized."

The 4-H booth at Dairy Day is Wold's priority. With local sponsors, the 4-H booth gives away free ice cream cones to draw attention to the dairy industry. "I've always liked Dairy Day because it's a one day event," Wold said.

4-H meetings are once a month and require preparation. "I read right along with the kids. I have to learn right along with them," Wold said.

Jean said Vernon has been a "faithful supporter" of her 4-H work. Vernon said he went to the 4-H meetings to assist when he could. "Someone had to watch the kids, so I held down the fort," he said.

Betty Kezar was a 4-H leader and served on the leaders council with Jean. "She always has time for kids. Whenever you see Jean she's surrounded by kids," Kezar said.

"I let things in my house sit when it comes to 4-H," Jean said. "She's the push and drive," Mills said. "She's the true 4-H'er."

Jean and Vernon Wold recently won the Pennington county 4-H Hall of Fame award. Jean has served as a 4-H leader for 36 years. Jean and Vernon are pictured with three grandchildren 4-H'ers. Left to right are Vernon Wold, Jennifer Wold, Jessica Wold, Jonathan Iverson and Jean Wold.

Volunteers make a difference. Carol Ihle, volunteer coordinator for School District 564 presented the district's annual report on volunteers in the school district during the school board meeting Monday night. Ihle's report outlined the importance of volunteers to the school district.

In comparison to the 5,570 hours of service last year, a total of 2,273 hours were volunteered the year before. Although the program has grown in its involvement, Ihle pointed out that it is hard to come up with a clear picture of how many hours are actually donated. Benefits of the program are also difficult to measure.

Ihle said that it appears that children who see parents and community members participating in their schools do better and are happier in their classrooms. Parents also have a better understanding of instruction style and programming, and teachers are more aware of the need for community and parental participation.

The focus of the volunteer program is to enrich and enhance the student's curriculum by involving volunteers who share time, talents and expertise. It is also to provide classroom support and clerical help for instructors, which enables them to devote more of their time to individual student needs. Ihle said it is particularly rewarding to her to see the requests for volunteers increasing all the time.

Some of the volunteer programs include: the Preschool Volunteer Friends program, the Jr. Great Books program, the Hello Science program, the Children's Musical, Hobby Days, Peer-tutor program, Cross-age peer tutor program and Activities Day at Franklin.

One of program, which is getting quite a bit of attention is the peer-tutor program. The program was implemented at Franklin Middle School this year. The volunteer program was involved in the planning, inservice, and implementation of this program which included recruiting and training of Peer Tutors. Della Burstad is the program coordinator at Franklin. The program was very successful, with 95 per cent of the students involved in the program as peer tutors raising their grades in one or more academic subjects and 75 per cent of the students receiving the peer tutor help raising their grades in one or more academic subjects. Ihle said she hopes that a similar program can be set up at Lincoln high school this year.

Ihle provided a breakdown of where the volunteers volunteered their time. At Mark Twain elementary school there were 98 volunteers compared to 43 from the year before and they volunteered 1,320 hours compared to 605 from the year before. At Knox elementary school there were 67 volunteers compared to 39 from the year before, and 946 hours were volunteered compared to 269 from the year before. At Washington elementary school there were 51 volunteers compared to 44 from the year before with 1,130 hours being volunteered compared to 580 from the year before. At Northrop elementary school there were 53 volunteers compared to 40 from the year before, with 1,295.50 hours volunteered compared to 445 from the year before. At Franklin Middle school there were 50 volunteers compared to 26 from the year before, with 878.5 hours volunteered compared to 205 the year before. In addition, there were volunteers at Lincoln high school and the district service center, but the

Ninth District judge race offers several candidates

Voters will face a confusingly long list of candidates for Ninth District court this year.

Geographically, the Ninth district is the largest judicial district in the state. There are 20 judges and 17 counties in the district: Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Koochiching, Beltrami, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Clear Water, Itasca, Aitkin, Crow Wing, Cass, Hubbard, Mahnomen and Norman.

This year, seven seats will be on the ballot — four of which are contested. Two of the seats will be on the primary election ballot because there are more than two individuals running for the same seat. In all, there are 16 candidates.

The primary election ballot will include races for the Ninth District Court seat called the Spooner seat located in Grand Rapids; and the Ninth District Court seat called the Weddel seat located in Bagley.

Primary election candidates vying for the Spooner seat in Grand Rapids include: Hugh Cameron, Helen Hill Blanz and John Hawkinson.

Primary election candidates vying for the Weddel seat in Bagley include: Michael S. Brouse, Darrell Carter, Arlen Larson, Karlene F. Melhus, Paul E. Rasmussen, and Timothy Faver.

The two other contested races in the Ninth District that will appear on the general election ballot in November include one seat in Brainerd and one seat in Walker. Candidates for the seat in Brainerd include: Frederick J. Casey and Max J. Rutger III.

Three uncontested elections will be on the general election ballot in November.

Robert S. Graff will be re-elected to a seat on the Ninth District court in Aitkin. James E. Preece will be re-elected to a Ninth district court seat in Bemidji. James R. Wilson will be re-elected to a seat on the Ninth District court in Roseau.

Regardless of whether voters are located near the seat of the judge, they will be asked to select a candidate to fill the position. So, they are being asked to do their homework. With a large number of candidates running for office, that won't be easy.

- The county assessor's office lists the property with the Culkins for tax purposes and it cannot be split until taxes are paid. Then ownership will be listed as unknown.

Chairman vows to fight for property

Red Lake Tribal Chairman Gerald Brun stated Friday that the bribe is prepared to defend its claim on 7.13 acres plot of land adjacent to Culkins property, the site possibly chosen for a casino.

Brun announced that the Red Lake Tribal Realty office recently cleared title to a 7.13 acre plot of land adjacent to Culkins property and tribal officials were considering development of the property.

In a meeting with the Tribal Council, staff and tribal attorney, on Thursday, August 6, 1992, Brun said, Sidney Culkins publicly admitted that they (the Culkins brothers) knew as early as 1958 that this land belonged to the Red Lake Indians. Yet they have been farming the land for years. They had earlier also admitted knowing this was Indian land to Harlan Beaulieu, tribal realty officer.

Brun said, "we stand ready to defend our claim in court, if necessary. This would cloud the title temporarily and set back our plans for development, but it is a battle the Red Lake band will win."

Jehovah's Witnesses build Kingdom Hall in 3 days

Jehovah's Witnesses congregated in Thief River Falls for three days to build Kingdom Hall.

The framework went up Friday and by Saturday the workers erected the 23,000 brick exterior. The landscaping was completed Sunday afternoon. Workers installed plumbing, wiring and all other interior work while the exterior construction was in progress.

The hall is "99 per cent" completed with only a few loose ends to tie up, said Local Presiding Overseer Larry Mogen of Thief River Falls.

The workers came from Jehovah's Witnesses congregations spanning an area reaching down to the Twin Cities, east into parts of Wisconsin, north to International Falls and west to the North Dakota and South Dakota border.

Mogen said members from this area generally build six halls each year. This year the number of halls was down to three. The members are given a schedule of the constructions in April or May so they can plan ahead.

The halls are built in three days as a rule. Jehovah's Witnesses used to build them in two days. Dan Danza of Floodwood said "We can (now) do it in three days and enjoy it a little more." "That (two days) was a little push," said Dwayne Carlberg of Baudette.
